Dedication

AS THE CLASS OF 1937 JOINS THE RANKS OF DARTMOUTH ALUMNI, EDWARD TUCK '62 CELEBRATES THE SEVENTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY OF
HIS GRADUATION FROM THE COLLEGE. THROUGHOUT THAT REMARK-ABLE SPAN OF YEARS HIS SOLICITUDE FOR DARTMOUTH'S GOOD HAS KNOWN NO INCONSTANCY. NOT ONLY UPON THE OCCASION OF THIS HAPPY ANNIVERSARY, BUT LIKEWISE IN GRATITUDE FOR THE MANY PRIVILEGES WHICH HIS GENEROSITY HAS MADE AVAILABLE TO US, AND IN TRIBUTE TO THE QUALITIES OF STRENGTH AND YOUTHFULNESS
WHICH ARE THOSE OF THE COLLEGE ITSELF, THIS SIXTY-FIFTH
VOLUME OF THE AEGIS IS AFFECTIONATELY DEDICATED TO MR. TUCK AS FIRST GENTLEMAN OF DARTMOUTH

FOREWORD

FOR DECADES THE AEGIS HAS PROVIDED A YEAR-

by-year history of undergraduate life at Dartmouth, serving such an essential function that the College administration has been willing this year to assume financial responsibility for its uncurtailed continuance. To preserve in word and picture the record of the college year 1936-37, and to mirror, as have its predecessors, something of the timeless spirit and beauty of Dartmouth, this sixty-fifth volume of the AEGIS is published by the undergraduates of the staff.

By gradual evolution, the modern AEGIS has become a rounded review of the college year rather than a mere senior book, and although predominance in the present volume has been given to the senior class, the editors nevertheless have endeavored to produce an annual that will be of interest to the entire College. The contents of college annuals vary little from year to year, but while this is necessarily so, there is small reason for the stereotyped dress in which annuals habitually appear. Not in order to be "different" but in order to avoid the unimaginative, or perhaps too-imaginative, features of year-books in general, the editors have made a sincere attempt to produce in the 1937 AEGIS a college annual that will be a beautiful book as well as an interesting and complete review of the year.

A black and white photograph of a landscape. In the foreground, there is a stone wall made of irregular stones. Behind the wall is a grassy area with some small shrubs. In the middle ground, there is a calm lake or pond. The background is filled with dense trees, including evergreens and deciduous trees. The sky is cloudy. A white rectangular box with a thin black border is superimposed over the upper part of the image, containing the word "Administration" in a serif font.

Administration

President Ernest Martin Hopkins

President Hopkins' ADMINISTRATION

ON OCTOBER sixth of the current college year, President Hopkins completed his twentieth year as head of Dartmouth College. During the two decades of his administrative leadership the College has enjoyed continuous growth in many ways and has attained to a new position of national importance. Since 1916, Dartmouth has developed its Selective Process of Admission, thus acquiring a student body of maximum quality and variety; has increased by millions of dollars the valuation of its educational plant; has doubled the size and broadened the sphere of its faculty; has quadrupled its endowment funds; and has extended and improved its curriculum and its extra-curriculum activities.

When instituted by President Hopkins in 1922 the Selective Process of Admission was the only admissions system of its kind in the country. It was based upon the premise that character and personality, range of interests, and extra-curriculum activities should, as much as scholastic achievement, be determining factors in selection for membership in the College. In 1934 this was still further developed with the dropping of the inflexible 15-unit requirement for admission and the substitution of the general requirement that all candidates admitted must present evidence that they are competent to carry on their course of study at Dartmouth. Fifteen classes have now been chosen under the once unique Selective Process, and the fine results secured unreservedly stamp the system as successful.

When President Hopkins entered upon the duties of his office, the Dartmouth faculty numbered approximately 150 members. At the present time this number has been nearly doubled, some of the increase having been brought about by the enlarged student body and some by the many new fields of study added to the curriculum. Increased office space has been provided for the faculty and new faculty dwellings have been erected by the College.

To house most of the student body, whose numbers have risen from 1400 in 1916 to 2400 in 1936, seven new dormitories have been built and others have been remodeled and made fireproof. The tremendous growth of the College plant has included the million-dollar Baker Memorial Library, Sanborn English House, Carpenter Fine Arts Building, the new Tuck School unit, Dick Hall's House, Silsby Natural Science Building, and many new additions to the athletic plant, among them Memorial Field, the Davis Field House, the Spaulding Swimming Pool, the Squash

Courts Building, and the Davis Hockey Rink.

The endowment funds of the College have increased greatly over the past twenty years. In 1916 they amounted to approximately four and a quarter millions dollars; in 1936 they had grown to more than seventeen million dollars. On the financial side, the annual Alumni Fund has been an invaluable asset to the College, the yearly contributions wiping out deficits and the percentage of contributors growing to the point where Dartmouth now has a record untouched by any other college in the country. In the field of alumni relations President Hopkins' administration has been signally successful, the graduate body of Dartmouth today serving as something of a model for unity, devotion, and continuous support.

Under President Hopkins the Dartmouth curriculum has been kept thoroughly alive. It has undergone numerous changes, in keeping with the liberal arts tradition, in order to fit undergraduates for the needs of the day. The modern curriculum, largely established in 1924, was revised only this past year to give increased emphasis to the social sciences; and with the introduction of the Topical Majors next fall, new steps will be taken toward the integration of related fields of study. Through Honors courses and the Senior Fellowships, the exceptional student has been allowed to set his own educational pace; and in numerous other ways attention has been given to the needs of the individual student.

New reliance has been placed upon the Dartmouth undergraduate through the system of self-government headed by the Interdormitory and Interfraternity Councils. The social side of undergraduate life has been thoroughly studied by the recent Social Survey Committee, and recommendations for better student life are being carried out at present in the revitalized fraternity program and in the new upperclass dining hall which will open next fall.

In the field of extra-curriculum activities, tremendous development has taken place during the past two decades. The Dartmouth Outing Club has extended the scope of its program so as to reach practically the entire student body, the intramural athletics department has made the "sports for all" program a near-reality, Dartmouth athletic teams have attained a new degree of prestige and ability, and both academic and non-academic interests have served as the basis for new organizations—all making for the development of well-rounded graduates better equipped to meet the demands of the modern world.

Council on Student Organizations

THE DARTMOUTH COLLEGE Council on Student Organizations was created to regulate the policy and manage the funds of the several non-athletic organizations. It is composed of three faculty members elected annually by the Faculty, three undergraduates, usually managers of the various organizations over which the Council has supervision, and one alumnus, who is elected by the Alumni Council. The Council appoints a Graduate Manager who is its executive officer and who is responsible for receiving and disbursing the funds of the various organizations. The Council exerts its control over the Dartmouth Players, the Musical Clubs, the Band, the Forensic Union, and the ushers for college functions other than athletic.

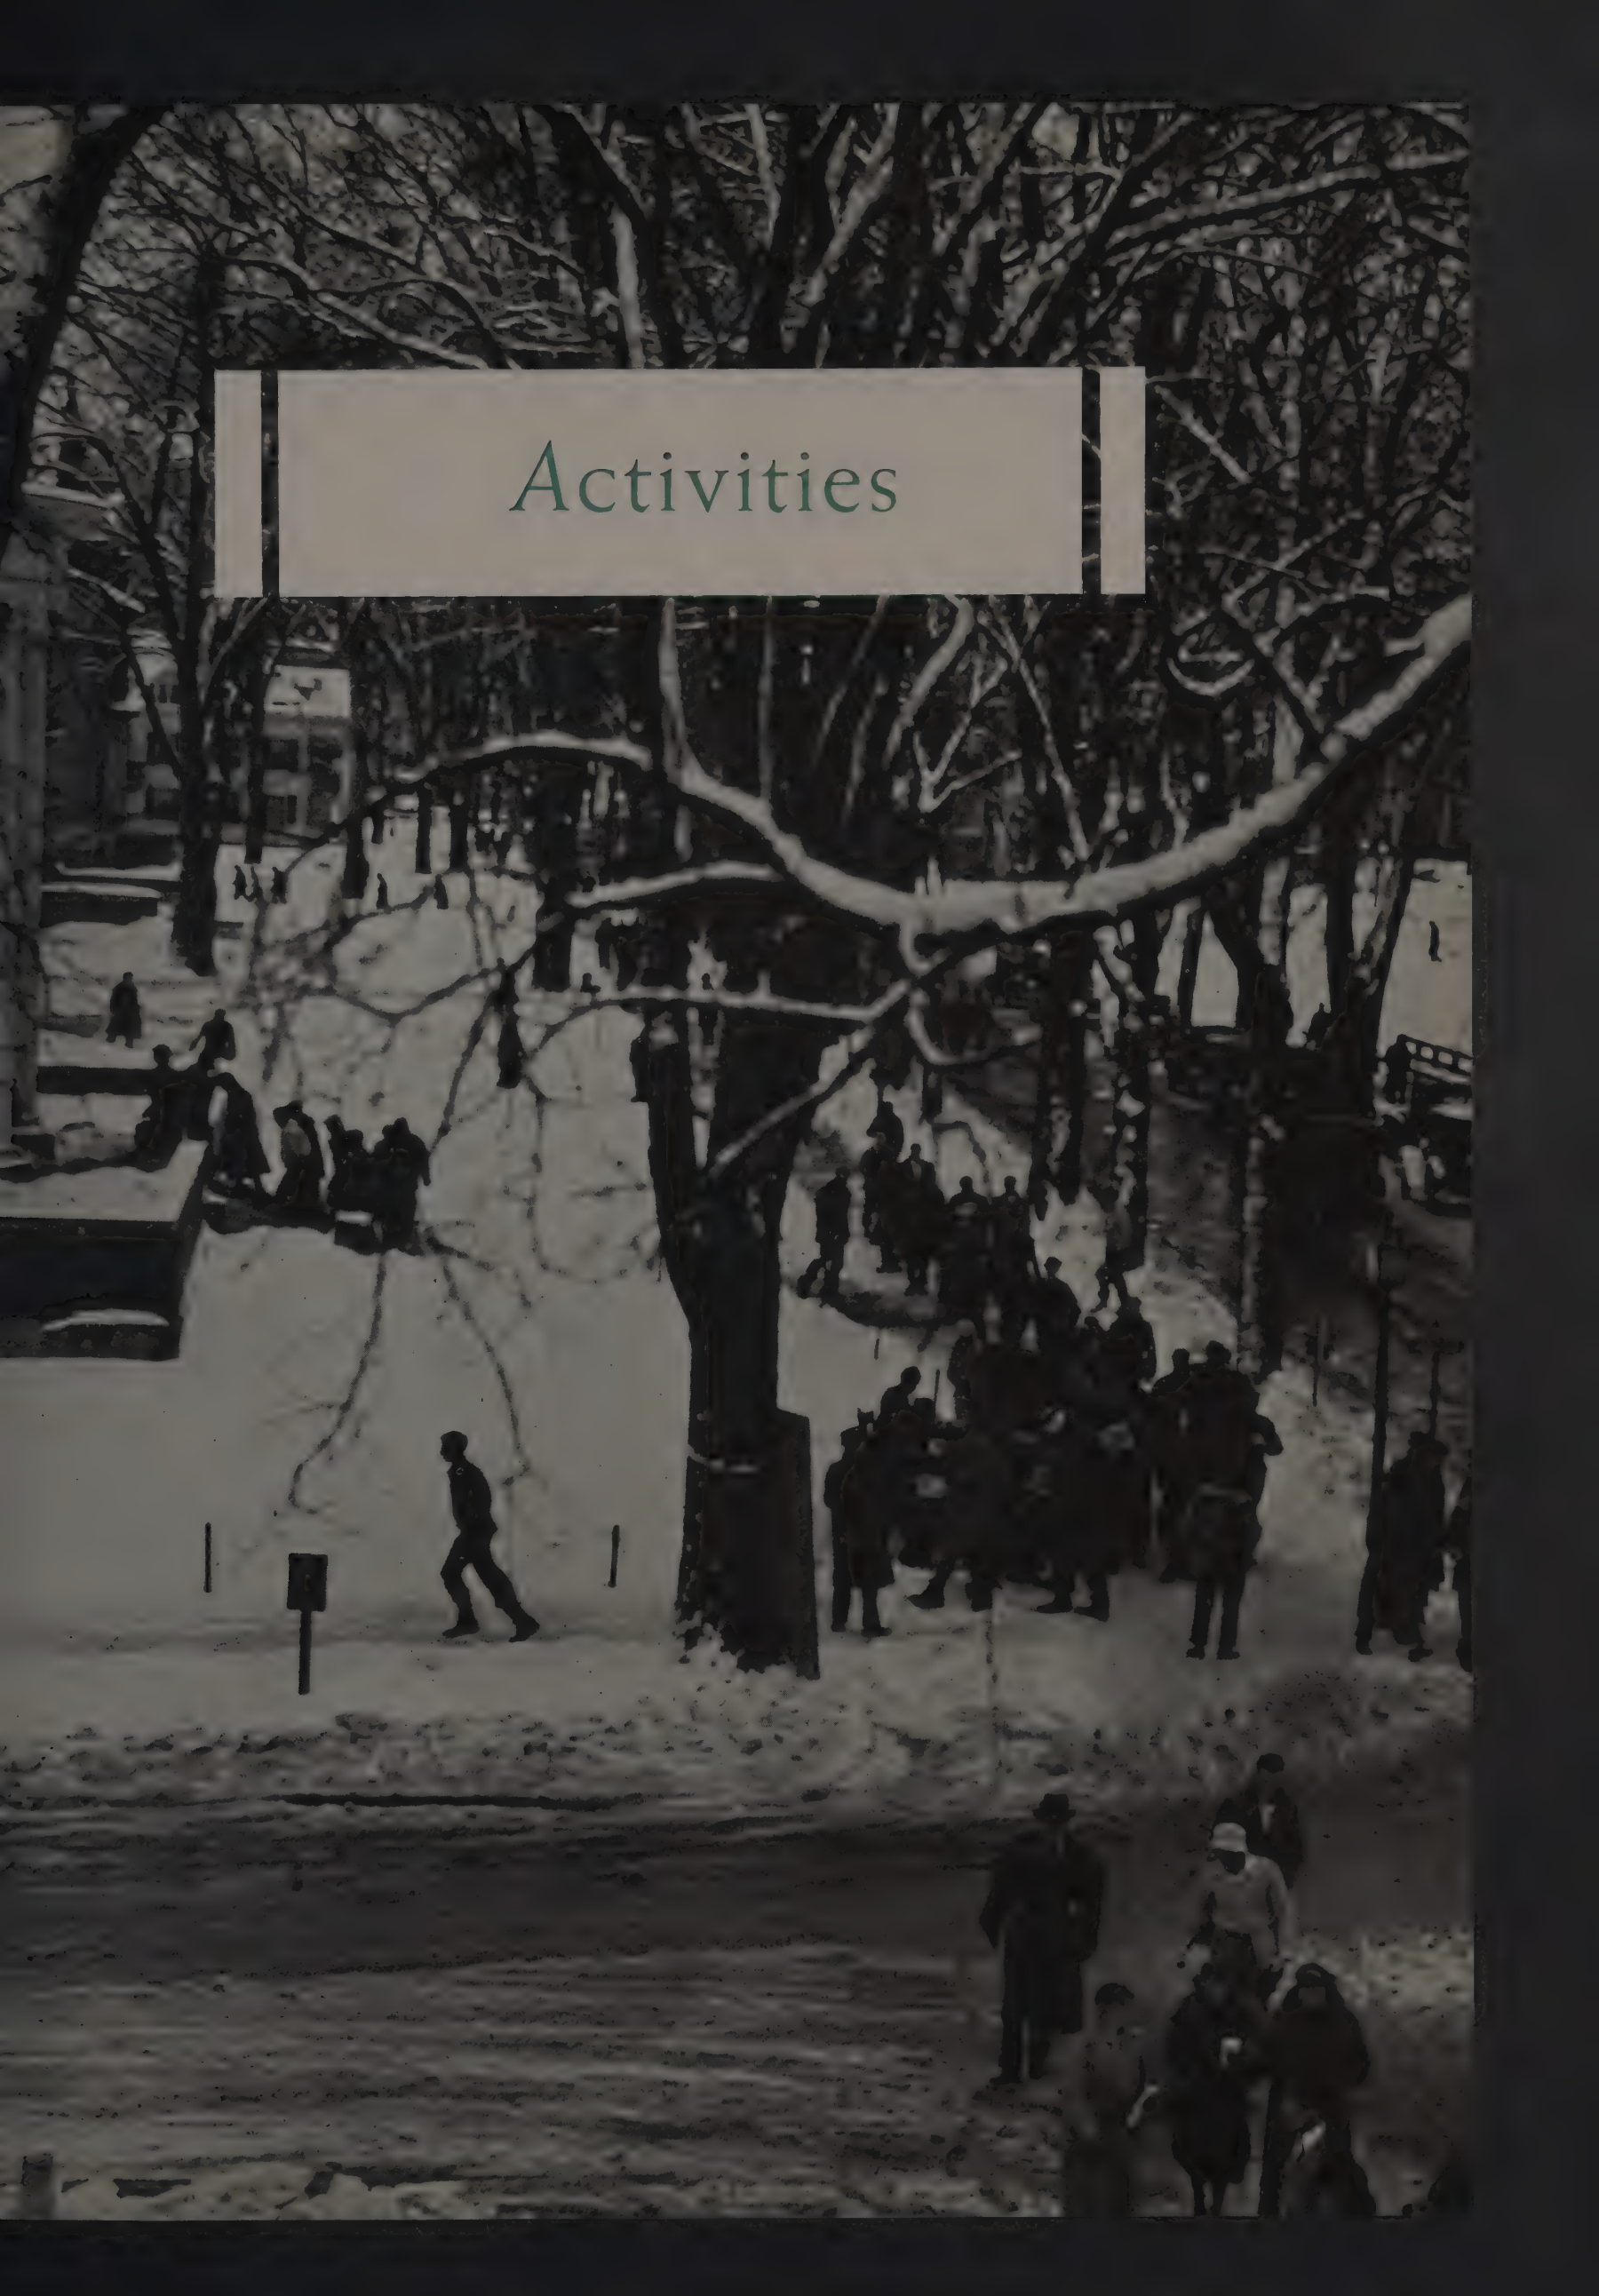

The Graduate Manager at the beginning of each year draws up a budget with the undergraduate manager of each organization which is approved by the Council. Any surplus from any of the organizations reverts to a general fund which is deposited in a sinking fund for any special use which may be authorized by the Council. Under this system it has been possible to purchase equipment and assume financial responsibilities for the activities which were not possible formerly.

Another function of the Council better known to the College as a whole is the sponsoring of the Non-Athletic Managerial Competition. The Council interviews members of the freshman class in the middle of April, continues with the selection of heelers and the actual oversight of the competition and from the final candidates chooses assistant managers who will serve the following year. Every effort is made to give the heelers as much practical business experience as possible and to develop a sense of responsibility in each man. The assistant managerships which are awarded each April are Assistant Managerships of the Players, the Musical Clubs, the Band, Players Publicity, Musical Clubs Publicity, the Forensic Union and Assistant Head Usher.

The Council has constantly devoted its efforts to promoting the various non-athletic undergraduate activities to the greatest possible degree of efficiency as well as making them an extremely valuable part of the community life of the College.

The Aegis

THE 1937 AEGIS may be considered a transition issue both from the administrative and from the editorial points of view. Administratively, although the usual undergraduate staff still exists and functions as a staff, its policies are now guided by the college administration. Editorially, we have tried to keep the 1937 AEGIS free from the rubber stamp common to most yearbooks.

The editor of the 1937 AEGIS had had no previous connection with the AEGIS and was more or less drafted for the position. Along with this radical departure from the traditional competitive method for attaining positions on the staff, another newcomer was added to the ranks in the form of a professional typographer: Vrest Orton of Weston, Vt. Mr. Orton is familiar with Dartmouth publications, having designed the Alumni Magazine, The Letters of Eleazar Wheelock's Indians, which won entrance in the Fifty Best Books of the year, and the 1936-37 Dartmouth College Bulletin series. Mr. Orton is at present head of the Countryman Press where he is editing a new magazine, The American Countryman. In his own words—"Ordinarily I would not tackle another job of design even for love, but the chance to be the first book designer to do a college annual was so appealing that I couldn't resist. College annuals do need designing. My notion is to make a book that will have the masculine spirit of Dartmouth . . . that will have that fresh sweep and freedom characteristic of Dartmouth . . . and that will be, at bottom, easy and pleasant to read. This is being done largely by slashing out all the cute little folderols and fancy petticoat-lace decorations that have made college annuals such monstrosities in years past. And it is done in general by simplifying the pages and getting a continuity, so when a reader takes up this book and starts through it he will be invited to do so by the fact that it looks and feels like a book instead of a series of trick advertising pages.

"The college annuals of the past have had a mad race to be different by trying all kinds of stunts with type and art work a la fin de siecle . . . and they have all ended by becoming just alike. After prayerful consideration I believe Allah will guide our hand in this effort to make the AEGIS a book worth having. . . . Most covers look like those on catalogs of the United Twist Drill and Gear Shaper Company. The new cover of the AEGIS will make it look like a book, and look like a million dollars on your table."

This statement shows very clearly what we have attempted to do, and what we have attempted to get away from. The AEGIS is a comprehensive record of the college year. It is not a definite effort to entertain, and yet it must be readable. It is to a large extent a reference book, not a reference book which is hidden at the bottom of one's bookshelf, but a book in which a stranger can find a true picture of Dartmouth, and in which the Dartmouth man can find a lasting record of the Dartmouth he was a part of.

That is the task we set before us. The actual accomplishment of this task was not as simple as the mere statement of it. We had at our disposal two media—word and picture. The problem was to find the correct proportion of word and picture to accomplish our end. Our space was limited and it was up to us to find the words and pictures which, when taken as a whole, gave a complete picture of each individual event and yet fitted into the pattern of the book—a well unified mosaic, so to speak.

In a book such as the AEGIS the creative element does not play too large a part. The field from which we can draw is definitely limited, and the material from this field can only be arranged in a manner different from other years in order to achieve a sense of originality. This striving for originality has probably done more toward stereotyping yearbooks than any other force. The results are quite familiar—a series of show pieces smacking of "Joe College" and "Rah-rah"-ism. The 1937 AEGIS hopes to create a new line in college yearbooks by removing the frills that can't help but give the impression of tawdriness, and replacing these frills with a simplicity of design that is a mark of richness and quality. Quality is our guide from cover to cover in materials and in design. The result should be a book that will enhance any room no matter in what period the room is furnished.

At the present writing it is difficult to determine whether or not we have accomplished our purpose. It is the old story of not being able to see the forest for the trees, so all we can do is sit back and wait for the finished product to come off the press. Then and only then can we see if we have succeeded. We have set for ourselves a high ideal. Failure to attain it does not necessarily mean that we have failed. The personal gains and losses have occurred during the compiling of the data, and it is this experience which we shall carry with us through life. We are only amateurs, and quite inexperienced at that, and it was in the amateur spirit that we tackled the job. Our remuneration can not be measured, but it is there.

The Dartmouth

THE GROUP of ten men from the class of '37 who assumed control of The Dartmouth in January, 1936, were bound to the paper by strong ties. The Dartmouth meant most of the ideas that had troubled them in three years, nights without sleep and overcuts, disappointments and bitterness, praise and change. For five of them who were roommates it was a fraternity whose ritual was climaxed by a two-in-the-morning deadline six days a week.

In their first editorial they said: "It is only by visualizing The Dartmouth in its relation to the College, only by trying to make The Dartmouth a part of the growth of the College that the foundation of a valid, coherent policy is assured. We shall be interested more in the applications of ideas than in ideas themselves, more intent upon treating problems in relation to the College than in emphasizing them because they are problems."

Now, as seniors, almost removed from Dartmouth, and six months removed from The Dartmouth, the validity of the approach suggested in the above paragraph seems even more certain.

In operation, the results of this approach may be more in the form of irritation than stimulation. This was evident in the year which preceded us, under Budd Schulberg, and which is following us, under Hal Berman. If it was not as true under our directorate, it may be that at times we consciously or unconsciously avoided irritation, consciously or unconsciously compromised, in the hope that our whole contribution might be more.

It is a matter of conjecture whether this was so.

At any rate, it must be admitted forthwith that the approach of The Dartmouth for the past three years has lead to certain basic frictions. Politically it has stood on the opposite side of the fence from the majority of campus opinion, and although it has never pretended, or attempted to represent majority opinion, nevertheless, as the only daily expression of undergraduate thought it has naturally been confused with majority opinion. This results in a certain resentment on the part of that majority. The "power of the press" makes our sentiments, general as they may be, appear more widespread than they really are. The power of a Republican press in the past election in concealing (in that case deliberately) the extent of Democratic popular opinion, is a case in point.

On the question of education and the function of the Liberal Arts College, The Dartmouth has, for three years now, maintained a position opposed in some measure to that of the College administration. The sincerity of both positions cannot be contended nor can the friction resulting from these two living under the same roof be denied. We cannot accurately summarize these positions in a limited space; but they might be said to hinge upon the point of whether one believes in education by examination, or education by participation . . . whether one can learn to play better ball by sitting next to a wise manager on the bench, or by actively participating in the game. The Dartmouth has maintained the latter position.

Under Ed Ryan's leadership it was our job, we believed, to minimize both conflicts, without sacrificing our basic positions—and at the same time, to eliminate in so far as possible the technical faults which were preventing The Dartmouth from being as effective as possible in presenting, in newspaper form, the daily history of the College.

Consequently, during the course of the directorate's year in office, more emphasis was laid on securing accurate news, interesting features—and in presenting both views and features as attractively as possible, through the medium of an increased number of cuts, and various innovations in the presentation of the news. Sports appeared in new dress—with a whole page to itself each day, and often more, and with two ace columnists, Whitey Fuller and Pat O'Sheel, contributing three or four columns a week, as well as supervising sports coverage.

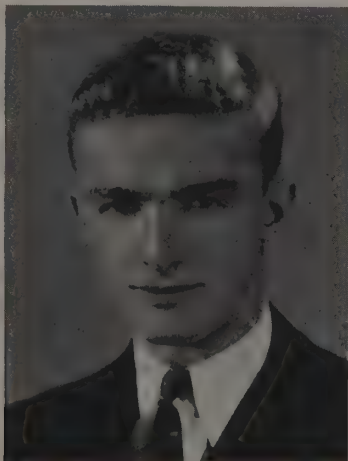

The editorials more and more took on an interpretive rather than a provocative tone. There were no "stinks" raised, many movements supported, analyzed and interpreted. The Dick's House Health Insurance campaign was well under way when the directorate took office and it was kept alive until positive action resulted. But not even a Nugget campaign sprang spontaneously from our editorial offices—and perhaps it was as well. We were, instead, more interested in the floods that swept by Hanover early last spring; in the possible outcome and possible significance of the Presidential election; in the Social Survey Report, and the implications it held for the individual within the College; in the baseball team and beating Yale in the fall; in war and peace and their relation to the undergraduate—these things merely as examples.

It was our aim to correlate our editorials each day, as closely as possible to our news content, local and national, and through the combined medium of editorials and news, to increase, if even imperceptibly, the circle of Dartmouth's awareness to herself and to the world.

And we had a hell of a lot of fun trying.

The Jack-o-Lantern

JACKO has gone through the twenty-eighth year of its existence with something roughly approximating flying colors. The directorate started confidently a year ago last February to pull Jacko out of what looked like a rut, as we facetiously called it. The least we can say of ourselves is that we have been erratic.

We realized then, as we realize even more vividly now, that Jacko should be run by a closer, more harmonized group. The editors and the staff men should get together and try to create a common line of thought, a common idiom. Only in this way, we think, will Jacko become inevitably better.

This was not possible during the 1936-1937 administration; we did keep our staff relatively small, thus attaining, perhaps, a degree of our ideal.

We retained the various time-tested departments. The Vox Clamantis section has kept its deserved popularity; Jacko Thumbs His News, a sure-fire department in any magazine, was more carefully edited and presented than in previous years; we had our usual fun with The Dartmouth and other publications in this department.

Improvement was made in the reviews, which are considered in some quarters, at least, to be the best in collegiate circles. They were effectively broken up with photographs and subheads, as well as drawings. Words and Music, We Saw a Movie, We Read a Book and Fashion Note have been the usual reviews.

The outstanding and most quickly apparent change in Jacko under the retiring directorate was the reorganization of typography which took place last fall. Managing-Editor Blees was largely responsible for this improvement. In an attempt to get away from the stylized humorous cover idea, we adopted a new layout simplifying and enervating the effect. A new type-face was employed throughout the book and a general clarifying and sharpening of the pages was sought. This was especially effective in cleaning up the appearance of the ad section in front and back. The directorate was very happy when Scribner's began using the same new type face.

The best issues of the year were the Parody Number, issued at Thanksgiving, The Carnival Number, and last year's Green Key Number. We received congratulations from the editors of the Penn State Froth and the Columbia Jester on the Parody Number, which consisted of satire on current magazines. Prof. K. A. Robinson said that "it was a pleasure to report that in the main Jacko's parodists have succeeded. . . ." At least two other well-known college magazines followed suit in producing similar parodies.

The Carnival issue was one of the biggest since the golden twenties, when advertisers begged magazines to run their ads. Much time and money was put into its publication. Memorable were the arresting snow-besprayed cover and the inclusion of light blue decorative effects inside the book. Professor Lathrop said of the photograph layouts, "They are higher than the top, and they have speed, excitement, and precision."

In some respects the annual Jacobite number which came out at Christmas was outstanding. This issue was made up entirely of material sent in by Jacko's alumni who form the Jacobite society. Among those who contributed were Dr. Seuss, Alexander Laing, Charles O'Neill, Abner Dean, William L. Klingaman, Richard Spong, and Donald Brockell. Corey Ford, Jacko's adopted and faithful son, submitted some parodies.

We took the "Jacko dogs," which appear on the second page of Vox Clamantis, through the third year of their existence. Another dog, Withers, also appeared regularly.

In February the Williams Purple Cow published an exchange issue which rated Jacko third among its collegiate contemporaries. Whenever we are in doubt, we like to think that the New Yorker, unofficially of course, has rated us first.

Of one thing we are especially proud. Not once did we editorialize. Only seldom did our readers have to hear about what goes on "in our little Robinson Hall cubicle." In fact this is the first time we've really said anything definite about ourselves.

Memorable of the year as a whole are the pixotic suggestions of John Lee Burton; the day when he and Jack Morrison changed positions, Morrison taking over the duties of Literary Director and Burton sitting in the Business Manager's chair; the general excellence of Donovan's art work; Burton's drawings; Blees' efficient frown; two beer parties; a satisfying closeness and harmony with the business board; "The Cocktail Party" by Burton in the Carnival Number; the parody on a Dartmouth review by Merrill.

The Jack-o-Lantern hopes it has lighted, with however little candle-power, the seasonally changing scene in Hanover; it hopes above all that it has caused no one to think.

The Pictorial

VERY few colleges in the country have ever been able to boast of a photographic magazine. Thus, The Dartmouth Pictorial, now in its twelfth year of publication, has been compelled to stand on its own feet and evolve its own unborrowed policies. Because there are few other magazines with which to compare it, the merits of any particular issue can only be judged in comparison with other issues of the Pictorial. Therefore, it has been easy for the Pictorial to become set in its direction of progress over a period of years.

This year's editorial board has deemed it wise to branch away in several directions from policies of recent years. Greater freedom and variety in lay-outs has been pursued in the hope that a more pleasing general effect would be produced. Increased emphasis on the artistic aspects of photography, combined with a greater effort to obtain technical excellence, is gradually breaking down precedence and creating a superior magazine. Few pictures increased to larger size have demanded that their inherent quality be of more importance.

Feeling that the purpose of the Pictorial is to represent the best photographic work of the college students, the editors have featured the names of the individual photographers under their pictures. This has resulted in increased interest in the students as photographers, and has also stimulated campus photographic activity on the whole. Thus an increased number of students have submitted their work, much of which has been promising. When the Pictorial can both stimulate the creation of the best work and bring it before the college as a whole, its purpose will have been fulfilled.

The two issues which have appeared at the time of this writing have both been well received, as judged by comments from divers sources and by the sales, which in the case of the first issue has left the editors themselves with but one copy. The first number came out at Fall Houseparties featuring on the cover an unusual angle view of the pillars of Richardson Hall, this being a break from the regular showing of athletics on the cover in previous issues. Throughout, there was an attempt to show familiar Hanover scenes and activities in an unusual and artistic manner. Perhaps the best examples of this were "The Holy Cross Rally" by Dave Fox '36, the "The New White Church" by Phil Jacob '38, and the distorted construction digger by Ernest Foss, Jr. '38. The lay-outs were unimpressive with the exception of the double page showing the various ways in which spare time is spent at Dartmouth. The value of giving ample credit to the campus photographers is shown by the fact that both in this issue and the succeeding one all of ten men in addition to the photographic board and editors had work included.

The second number appeared at Carnival and it was fitting that both the cover photograph and the majority of the skiing pictures were taken by the Carnival skiing star, Dick Durrance. Attempts at humor were made throughout in both the pictures and the captions, examples of the former being the skeleton skier, and the Senior Fellows fitted into the Orozco education mural. This issue saw the inclusion for the first time of several things: pencil drawings by Vivian Bruce '40, action photographs of both basketball and hockey taken during the games by use of photo-flash by Paul Jones '39, and performance photographs taken from the front row during the Concert Series with an extremely fast lens. The work of both Ernest Foss and Dave Fox is again notable in this issue, as is also the photograph by Bill Powers '38 of classes changing across campus.

The last issue, put out by the new editorial board, will appear in May and will continue the policy of the first two issues with perhaps the additional inclusion of some of the best painting of Dartmouth students.

The Pictorial has six executive positions, the majority of which are remunerative. Several competitions are conducted each year for men interested in these positions. The Photographic Board is made of men who have had a certain number of pictures printed.

The Green Book

THE FALL OF every year is punctuated by a sudden influx of men who seek Dartmouth as their new home, their new guiding principle, and the shaper of their lives to come. They arrive fresh and eager and a little awed by their new surroundings. As the years creep on and they acquire the Dartmouth stamp, their ranks thin out as the finger of Fate beckons to some and disregards others. For numerous reasons the unfortunate drop by the wayside and the memory of them grows dim with time.

It is the purpose of the Green Book to record the name and the picture of every man who enters Dartmouth so that this valuable account will be preserved for posterity. It is so serviceable for reference purposes that it has suffered very little misfortune in its long active life and it is rightfully considered one of the most valuable possessions that a Dartmouth man can have. Unlike most publications, the value of the Green Book increases with age.

In keeping with the book's tradition, the standard this year was raised in order to make it a complete and reliable directory of the freshman class, and to improve its appearance. New arrangements of pictures were made and the book bound in a better grade cover of newer style.

The Green Book staff and heelers have worked hard to gain their objective and they are satisfied that it is a job well done.

The D. O. C. Year

By HAROLD T. A. RICHMOND '38

FOR MORE than 150 years the heritage of its out-of-doors facilities had neither been taken very seriously nor considered an especial asset to Dartmouth College. Winter sports were limited to whist and other parlor games. A reversal of the situation began in 1909, when Fred Harris '11 and a few associates founded the Outing Club, and proved the College's location to be an advantage to the white man as well as to the Indian. It's an accepted fact, nowadays, that the Dartmouth man cherishes all that the Hills of Hanover and the White Mountains have to offer; he is proud of that one great heritage and tradition that is distinctly Dartmouth.

The 1936-37 season discloses a new high in the Outing Club's activity. More organized trips have been taken over D. O. C. trails to its cabins than in any previous year. The green-clad skiers have figured prominently in nearly all the leading Canadian and American competitions; as a unit, the Dartmouth skiers have won numerous important victories, ever since their organization. We have all become more ski-conscious than ever. No longer is the dyed-in-the-wool outdoor man the only one who takes to skis; there are many individual interests among Dartmouth men, but the sport of skiing seems to be one which is common to them all. Ski week-ends to Moosilauke alone are now running an even competition with peerades to Hamp, while Mansfield and Mount Washington continue to compete and hold their own against the attractive towns of Saratoga and Montreal.

The annual program of the D. O. C. is not one which thrives in one season and lags in the next; it embraces year-round activity. Summer has come to mean the concentration of the Club's functioning on the Moosilauke summit and trails. Spring and fall are generally devoted to an extensive trips program; winter means skiing, skating, and Carnival.

The first meeting of the old governing body of the Club—Cabin and Trail—was held at the Outing Club House a week previous to the beginning of classes in September. There had already been a Council meeting on Moosilauke, and a pre-season, six-day trip for incoming freshmen. Chairman Will Brown sounded the keynote for the year's policy in stating, "The Outing Club Council is determined to center this year's program around the individual members." Judging from the enthusiastic undergraduate support of the new features and the increased variety in the old, the Council seems to have been successful.

"This year's program" started out with the Freshman

Feed at the Moose Cabins. Following this, in Hanover, were moving pictures of the winter Olympics at Garmisch-Partenkirchen, presented by Ted Hunter, as the main feature of D. O. C. Night. The first week-end of the active Fall Trips schedule offered the ascent of Camel's Hump, in the Green Mountains of Vermont, where the men present met hikers from the Vermont Outing Club, while other trips went to "Dartmouth's Own Mountain," Mt. Moosilauke, and the seldom-visited Mt. Jefferson in the Presidential Range. Sixty-five men took part in these three trips. Within a month after this, trips were made to Twin Mountain, in the Pemigewasset Wilderness, Mt. Liberty, Mt. Lafayette and Mt. Lincoln, in the Sandwich Range, Chocorua ("The Matterhorn of America"), famous Mt. Washington, and Carter Dome, the easternmost of the taller White Mountains.

At the height of autumn, there seemed to be no place in the vicinity so attractive as the White Mountains, especially Moosilauke. Thus Moosilauke was the logical choice of location for the season's first great I. O. C. A. hiking week-end, in the middle of October, attended by one hundred representatives of fourteen colleges. Girls from Vassar, Wellesley, Skidmore, Smith, Mt. Holyoke, Radcliffe, Vermont, and Middlebury donned shorts and dungarees and bright plaid shirts to match strides with the heavy-booted male contingents from Dartmouth, Yale, Williams, Rensselaer, New Hampshire, Brown, and Wesleyan. The hikers were divided into groups which ascended Moosilauke and the Franconias. A barn dance in the Town Hall in Warren climaxed the week-end.

Of the few men who didn't go to Boston for the Harvard football week-end, some sublimated the urge in a three-day trip into the Adirondacks, where they climbed Mt. Marcy and Mt. Whiteface. Other parties of hikers scaled the peaks of Mansfield and Katahdin, the highest in Vermont and Maine respectively. Appalachian Mountain Club cabins and shelters served as bases for the expeditions. The regular trips program was resumed with visits to Mounts Pico, Garfield, and Killington, after which Director of Trips, Bar Moseley, devoted his time to getting skiers off to Mansfield, Washington, and later, Moosilauke, a program lasting from the middle of November to late in the spring.

Throughout the fall, too, Jack Durrance's newly organized Dartmouth Mountaineering Club celebrated an active schedule which proved to gain more popularity than anticipated. Daring feats of vertical ascent and descent, with the help of courage and a little rope, were begun by conquering Bartlett Tower and the forbidding walls of Mount Middle Mass., to be climaxed by trips to Huntington Ravine on Washington and the slopes beneath the Old Man of the Mountains, and on Joe English Hill.

The Club also managed to provide weekly entertainment for the students right in Hanover, in the way of song-fests, movies, and instruction in almost every line of outdoor activity. The fall program was copious with moving pictures; an illustrated talk by H. L. Wheeler, chief lecturer of the United States Forestry Service; hunting and fishing instruction by Professor Dent; a talk on mountain-climbing by Professor Goodrich; an evening featuring the well-known British skier and author, Arnold Lunn; another skiing lecture by Walter Prager; and a talk by the internationally famous Fritz Weissner.

A situation demonstrating complete lack of cooperation between the D. O. C. and St. Peter prevailed most of the winter, especially during January and February, and we were confronted by the serious problem of bare ground and rain instead of the prayed-for snow. Never in the history of Hanover had there been so much ski equipment on hand and so little snow for making use of it. This peculiar circumstance forced weekly expeditions to distant trails and slopes, as well as to the nearer ski tows in Bradford, Woodstock, and West Hartford.

Aside from the action of the three ski teams, the College sports fans' attention was attracted to the College Championships late in the season, when snow conditions were more favorable. Even at that time it was necessary to hold the downhill and slalom races at Moosilauke. The winners of the Championships were Warren Chivers in the jumping event, and Whit Miller and Ed Wells in the downhill and slalom, respectively.

With its ski background, it is quite fitting that Dartmouth should boast what it believes to be the first ski museum in the United States. This move was instigated by Bob Mussey '38, and in the space of the lobby in the Wilson Museum, he has arranged a collection of early skis and accessories, as well as much modern material which has figured in prominent competitions and famous polar and mountain expeditions.

The opposing forces, who, from above, seemed determined to maintain a snowless winter, yielded to our supplications the week before Carnival, although the blanket of damp snow was scarcely adequate. But it did give the chairman of Carnival, Owen Collins, his opportunity to present literally the most successful Carnival in the Club's history. Under his direction, over two hundred undergraduates participated in the organization and execution of Carnival. For better or for worse, more than twelve hundred out-of-town guests attended, overflowing Hanover's rooming and dining facilities. Winter Tempo at Outdoor Evening was a new high in snow and ice vaudeville, presenting skiers of three nations and Evelyn Chandler, famous exhibition skater, who was so enthusiastically acclaimed at Carnival two years ago. By floodlight, the skiing skill exhibited was unprecedented, while the weather turned out to be fine, despite all our fears. Many of the crowd stayed afterwards for moccasin dancing on the pond, an innovation this year.

For more than thirty seniors, a fitting conclusion to four years of Outing Club activity at Dartmouth was embodied in the annual Senior Mt. Washington trip. Bar Moseley, Pete McLane, and Alec Jones led the four-day excursion over the town holiday week-end. With headquarters established at the Pinkham Notch huts of the Appalachian Mountain Club, the seniors experienced a strenuous hike over the ice-covered and barren cone of the mountain to the deserted summit house, but most of the time busied themselves in taking advantage of the perfect skiing conditions in Tuckerman's Ravine, and on the Sherburne and Wildcat Trails.

The Intercollegiate Outing Club Association, of which the D. O. C. is one of the founders and active members, is an organization of increasing popularity and strength. Founded on the summit of Moosilauke in the summer of 1932, it has grown from a membership of three colleges to that of twenty-five colleges. In addition to the fall hiking week-end, the D. O. C. was host to this organization on a ski week-end in March, again at Moosilauke. Libby's Farm, Spyglass Hill, and Great Bear, Glencliff and Jobildunk Ravine cabins were filled to capacity. At the time of writing, the I. O. C. A. is assembling at Mt. Washington for the last ski week-end of the season.

Immediately after spring recess, the arduous labors of Fran Fenn and his committeemen bore great fruit when the Club adopted a new constitution embodying significant changes in the organizational set-up. Primarily, the new charter increases the opportunities for leadership in Club affairs, involving as it does, the creation of some eleven new positions. Instead of vesting the entire control of the Club in one council as was the case under the old constitution, the new document provides for three councils governing respectively the Cabin and Trail, the Carnival, and the Winter Sports activities of the organization.

Following this move, elections were held to bring up to

The Swiss Invasion

DAVID J. BRADLEY '38

The editors gratefully acknowledge permission from the SKI BULLETIN to reprint the following article.

There has been a movement during the last year to purge America's most newly adopted sport—skiing—of all hereditary Europeanism. Skiing has now become thoroughly American, the exponents of this fantasy contend—one of our infant interests—and must be protected from all alien influence (least it should divide its allegiance).

This carping cult of critics—Madison Square Garden skiers, for the most part—are commendably violent in their anxiety to defend our national reputation and assert our independence. But this is an impetuous and misplaced patriotism, for sadly enough, skiing cannot be appraised by narrow nationalism. It is as international as snow, and as universal as companionship—because skiing is the union of these two elements. It matters not if you speak Jap or German—beer song, sudden plunge into the chill embrace of a snow bank, and the merry delight of a friend (who has probably just emerged from his own shell hole)—all these are the same in any language.

Hell's Highway

That this is true needs no firmer proof than the recent invasion of the Swiss Universities Team. Their coming to American was a coup d'etat and their participation in the ski activities of the United States and Canada an intoxicant from which our spirit may never hope to recover. I can feel no guilt of overstatement for I have seen the indelible impression which their personalities as well as their prowess have insensibly produced on those skiing centers fortunate enough to be their hosts.

Wherever they have been—at the Dartmouth Winter Carnival, at Tuckerman's Ravine or Mount Mansfield, at the Intercollegiates in Canada and the Canadian National Championships in Banff, and finally in Sun Valley—wherever they have raced and rattled the rafters with their

the proper level the administrative personnel of the Club, and at a series of banquets, the 1936-37 officers of the Club relinquished the reins into the eager hands of the 1937-38 directors of the several divisions. At the same time, twenty freshmen were elected to membership in Cabin and Trail, and announcement was made of the appointment of numerous assistant managers and directors from among the sophomore membership of the Club.

Finally, to complete the process of putting the new constitution into effect, the newly formed Executive Committee, designed to tie together the three councils and their divisions into a unified Club whole, was selected. Walt Averill '38, representing the Cabin and Trail Council of which he is chairman, was elected to the chair of the new Committee. This distinction likewise carries with it the title of president of the Outing Club, and puts Averill in a position of great responsibility and not a little honor in the affairs of the Club for the coming year.

Moose Cabin

spirited Swiss ski songs, they have shown us the utter folly of attempting to covet skiing for ourselves. The heart expanding with such fellowship will crack any limiting nationalism as a root splits a rock.

But perhaps you have not met them individually: let me introduce you.

1. Willi Buerger, the Captain, is looked on affectionately as an older brother. He is married and has two children, which together with the more mature judgment which comes to a man of thirty, accounts for his conservative fall-less skiing. With a smile that threatens to dislodge the top of his head he races downhill and leads the others in their songs.

2. Pierre Francioli is the ablest downhill-slalom runner of the team, placing second in every race in which his dilemma—the Demon Durrance—entered, and winning both events at the Canadian Nationals. Skiing with grace and dash, he gets a hold on an icy course which an alpine fly would shun.

3. Franz Obrecht is the strong, silent man of the team, frequently seen with an admiring member of the fair sex on each arm (but his talents are equally extensive in skiing and it must not be supposed that his teammates neglect their own social responsibilities).

4. Jacques de Senarcles upholds the religious duties of the team. A theology student, he mixes skiing and the Bible with a health liberalism and races with a divine assurance which allows a complete disregard of speed and trees.

5. Rudolph Gallati prefers to be silent on most subjects, particularly that which interests Franz. His abandon as a skier, therefore, is the more complete. Sometimes he goes with too much abandon (euphemistic for "out-of-control") and his crack-ups together with his good-natured reticence, make him the butt of endless jests from his teammates.

6. Max Mueller, an exchange student from Ohio, came to join his teammates for the Dartmouth Winter Carnival. More interested in teaching skiing than in actually competing, he is reported to have so inspired a young protégée that she insisted on having a lesson immediately—it then being 3:00 A.M. of the Carnival Saturday.

And lastly, Arnold Kaech—called "Noldie" by his intimates—was their best all-round skier. Always high in slalom and downhill, he shared combined honors with Durrance at the Quebec Kandahar, placed a fine third in the hard Intercollegiate langlauf, and equally fine sixth in the Canadian Championship langlauf at Banff. His fluency in English was made almost superfluous by his graciousness and the rare friendliness of his smile.

We who have known the precious companionship of these fellows find no adequate way to express our thanks to them and to Mr. Karl Weber, organizer and manager of the trip.

Of what they took back with them over and beyond a large proportion of the Nations' silver resources in the form of trophies, we can make no assessment. What they have left behind over and above a cord of broken skis and a collection of moist, dainty handkerchiefs, they will never know.

I recall particularly how we all had climbed in a grim uneasy group to the top of the down-mountain run at Banff. The last thousand feet had been so bombarded by inexperienced skiers during the previous days that the course looked like no-man's-land on a 40-degree slant.

The intense seriousness with which we took this championship race had magnified the apparent difficulty of the conditions. Francioli's only comment was a brief, "Ca ne me plait pas beaucoup!"

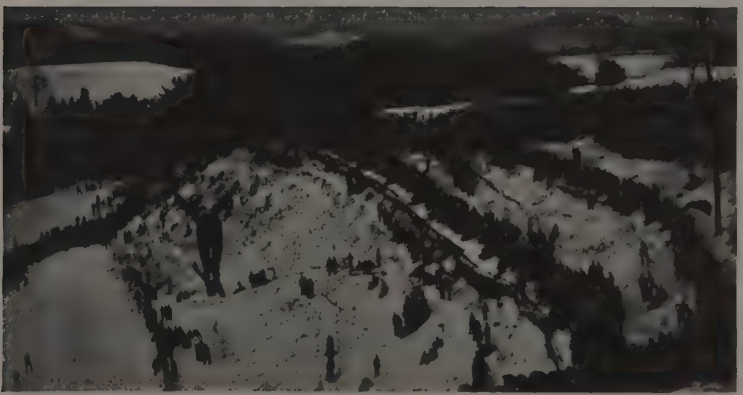

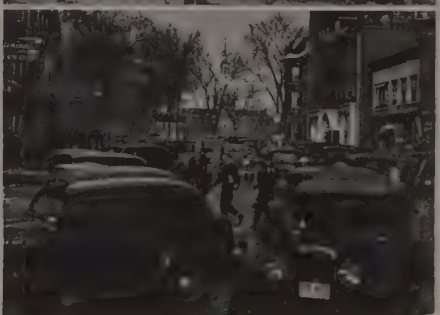

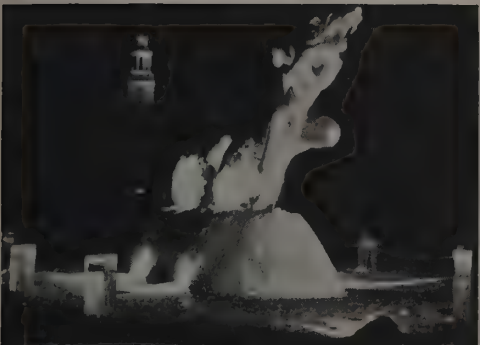

And then at the top of the course, as the timers were coolly preparing to sentence us, while all eyes seemed hypnotized by the mutilated aspect of the course, while all breathing seemed reduced to gasps and all language to a stricken "Jeeesis!"—then suddenly Arnold began to sing and yodel, his teammates immediately lustily joining in.

The change was miraculous. For the first time some of us realized that the sun was shining. For the first time we really paused to look across the tremendous void to the magnificent layer-cake precipices which surrounded us in the silent distance. Gone was the ghastly motto of "Do or die!"—superceded by the realization of the truth in racing as in skiing: "This is Great!"

The wake of the Europa may quietly spread and fade, but I doubt if the echo of those gay Swiss songs and rollicking yodels will soon fade from the snowy mountainsides of this country.

D. O. C. House in Its Winter Setting

Twenty-Seventh WINTER CARNIVAL

By OWEN D. COLLINS '37

A WEEK BEFORE Carnival the campus was as bare of snow as a Fourth of July parade ground, but while the sceptical hesitated about buying ski boots, the Carnival Committee, the Players, the Glee Club, and the Athletic Council went ahead with well-worked-out plans that included a continuation of the twenty-seven years' standing faith with St. Peter. The patron saint did his part nobly and the blessed fall of snow that caused a sudden rush for ski equipment enabled the committee to put the finishing touches on the most extensive Carnival preparations ever made.

Most striking of the Carnival features was Wayne Guythers' "Wolfwind," which, with icy fangs clashing, stood in a powerful springing position on his pedestal in the center of the campus and watched one innovation after another turn out successfully. Seven of the Swiss Universities Ski Team, crack skiers of Switzerland, arrived in Hanover a week early and set a fast practice pace for Dartmouth skiers.

Sixty skiers, picked from seven colleges, arrived in town Thursday night, and Friday morning their downhill teams were roaring down the new Moose Mountain trail in the first competitive event of the week-end. Dick Durrance took first, leading the Dartmouth team that garnered the 100 points for team victory. The Swiss team and McGill came in second and third respectively.

By two o'clock Friday afternoon over eleven hundred girls, gorgeous ones from all over the country, were in Hanover all set for the events that were to follow one another in fast tempo. Fraternity houses were filled and evacuated quickly as the guests were plunged into the whirl of activities. On Occom Pond, in the New Hampshire Open Meet, splendid skating brought in victories for Joseph Fox of the Boston Olympic Club; Dwight Parkinson of Dartmouth took the Figure Skating Championship. The girls' slalom race, innovated the year before, brought out more than twenty skiers and much admiration from the enthusiastic crowd. Elizabeth Durrance, of the famous Durrance family, took first place in one of the fairest crowd of skiers ever to grace the golf course. Almost simultaneously, the cross-country teams began to finish their gruelling fifteen-kilometer circuit. Howie Chivers '39 led the field for what turned out to be another 100-point team victory. McGill took second, and New Hampshire third. The last competitive events of the day closed with Dartmouth losing the swimming meet to a strong Harvard team.

Girls and undergraduates crowded Hanover restaurants 'till seven o'clock when the wildly ringing bells of the Baker chimes announced the beginning of the torchlight parade from the campus to the golf course. The Outdoor Evening presentation had been given the name of Winter Tempo described as "a fast moving review of the finest skating and skiing." At seven-thirty the darkness was dispelled by a huge aerial bomb and flare that revealed a gleaming artificial pond with the snow-clad hill rising behind it. At one side, a modernistic throne backed by graceful circles of ice glowed with an ever-changing pattern of color. Led by the Dartmouth varsity, team after team swooped down from the top of the hill under spotlights to compose a review of "Skiers from Three Nations." Bruce Mapes, one of America's foremost figure skaters, followed quickly with his interpretation of an Argentine Tango and was then joined by his famous wife, the lovely Evelyn Chandler, whose daring cartwheels and leaps were greeted with roars of applause. With attention centered back on the hill, a Gymkhana of Dartmouth skiers led by Ted Hunter demonstrated mass ski technique with great precision and grace. Climaxing the Gymkhana, the inimitable Durrance brothers brought cheers from the crowd with a side-splitting burlesque, skiing the hill dressed in female attire with a difficult clumsiness most unnatural for them, finishing up with a pole-somersault in duet at the edge of the pond. A fanfare and roll of drums from the Dartmouth band announced Sigmund Ruud, internationally famous jumper, who sped down the hill and, with perfect form, executed a rare somersault from a specially constructed jump. A "skiing moose" added to the fun by descending the hill spectacularly, if a little uncertainly. Evelyn Chandler again skimmed over the ice to the tune of a sailors' hornpipe, delighting the crowd with her intricate revolutions and perfect balance. The crowd hushed to hear the announcement of the judges' difficult choice of the Queen from the thousand fair girls who had passed through the Winter Tempo gate, and roared their applause as Dartmouth's 1937 Queen of the Snows, Miss Florence Allen of Birmingham, Alabama, escorted by her court, was drawn around the pond and up to the throne on a sleigh. As she reached the throne, a spotlight followed Walter Prager, Dartmouth's popular new ski coach, as he zoomed down from the top of the hill to honor her with a silver cape. A brilliant display of fireworks ended Winter Tempo, though a large part of the crowd remained to dance on the ice, ski by floodlight, and consume coffee and doughnuts.

At nine-thirty an audience heterogeneously dressed in formal clothes and ski suits, crowded Webster Hall to see the Players outdo themselves in the first of two splendid performances of The Chocolate Soldier. By midnight, with a Cinderella change typically Dartmouth's, ski clothes were laid aside for formal evening clothes; lights glowed and the muffled strains of dance music issued from the fraternity houses till far into the morning.

The large crowd that packed Oak Hill early Saturday morning to see the slalom races, proving the stamina of Dartmouth men and their guests, marvelled at the second day of perfect Carnival weather. A warm sun made the spectators comfortable, yet it was cold enough to preserve the providentially sent snow, and one team after another sent their skillful skiers down the winding course in a colorful display of beautifully controlled skiing. The mighty atom, Dick Durrance, again swept the field—Dartmouth winning the event by only a scant fraction of a point from the visiting Swiss. In keeping with the increased realization of winter sports enjoyment, many spread over the surrounding hills to enjoy perfect skiing, but a capacity crowd filled the Davis Rink at eleven to witness our fighting hockey team lose to Harvard. The announcement of the prize-winning snow sculptures ended considerable speculation as Delta Tau Delta captured fraternity honors with a tableau of "Eleazar Greeting a Carnival Guest," and College Hall received first dormitory prize with a classic depiction of "The North Wind." Their triumph deserves great credit, as the aggregate efforts of all the houses and dormitories were almost unanimously considered "the best yet."

After lunch early arrivals at the ski jump were rewarded by the exciting ski-joring races and the preliminary jumps, while the natural amphitheatre of the jump rapidly filled with over five thousand spectators. The beautiful spectacle of the many-colored ski suits massed on the plateaus around the jump formed a perfect set for the brilliant jumping that was to follow. As the daring skiers launched out into the air, the crowd shared their thrills and roared applause. Bob Johannsen of McGill repeated his triumph of the year before and lead his team to a 100-point victory. His prowess was matched only by the pulse-stirring exhibition leaps of Sigmund Ruud and Sverre Kolterud, internationally famous jumpers, who set new hill records for both form and distance. The jumping over, tea dances in informal ski clothes vied with the still-perfect and popular skiing until supper time.

State Championship Skating Race

At seven-thirty a record crowd packed the Gym to cheer the basketball team's 35-25 victory over Yale. At the same time, the skiers from three nations met for a congenial banquet at Stell Hall where prizes were awarded and the final results of the meet were announced. Dartmouth placed first, McGill second, and the Swiss third in a meet of the most brilliant skiing ever seen in Hanover. A second performance of The Chocolate Soldier followed, while in the Little Theatre the Glee Club presented a fitting Winter Carnival Concert that sent an enthusiastic audience out into the night humming the Winter Song.

Sleighing parties and skiing again gave way to formal and informal fraternity dances, and until night turned to day, all made the best of a Carnival spirit whose joyousness knew no bounds. With the last farewells on Sunday, the grim re-orientation to college routine left the 1937 Carnival something pleasantly in retrospect; a three-day party to the perfect success of which every Dartmouth man contributed.

The Season

By ROBERT P. FULLER '37

DURING THE season of 1936-37 the Dartmouth ski squad accomplished what had heretofore been considered impossible—perfecting the records of previous Indian ski teams. It has been generally felt among the winter sports fans that the Dartmouth skiers of the past decade and more had already reached perfection in the national intercollegiate and amateur ski world to the *n*th degree.

In fact, there have been many who have annually expected that Dartmouth supremacy was in danger of serious challenge from the many newcomers to skiing competition. However, this was not the year, and the Big Green Indians under Coach Walter Prager reversed expectations and silenced any fears in this quarter by capturing new championships, setting new records, and all in all leaving a blazing trail of team victories and individual accomplishments so brilliant that it would be far easier to relate what wasn't won than what was.

From a team standpoint, the Big Green's most remarkable performance came in the Intercollegiate Ski Union meet held at St. Margaret where the "A" team made history with a perfect 500-point winning total—the first time this score has ever been made in American skiing competition. Then, too, the Dartmouth "A" team won the Dartmouth Carnival meet going away and the Eastern Downhill Championships.

Dartmouth's "B" team placed second in the Middlebury Carnival meet; the "C" team won the Vermont State Championships, placed second in the New Hampshire Class C

Coach Walter Prager

Championships; and the "D" team placed second in the Bartlett Winter Carnival.

Individual championships were so numerous that space permits only the recording of the most noteworthy of these for each individual.

Captain Warren Chivers '38 proved to be a leader in letter as well as spirit when he captured the first of the national titles to come to Hanover during the winter months. Warren's contribution was the National Combined Jumping and Langlauf crown won at Minneapolis. He also won the I. S. U. combined title, and placed second in the combined in both the Dartmouth Carnival meet and the Eastern Slopes races.

Dick Durrance continued his assault and battery on the American skiing ranks, winning the National amateur downhill and slalom titles, the National open downhill and slalom, the National amateur combined (slalom and downhill), the National open combined (downhill and slalom), and the Sun Valley Open Championships. In addition Dick won the Eastern Slopes slalom crown, the I. S. U. downhill and slalom individual awards, and the Dartmouth Carnival titles in the slalom and downhill. Dick also stepped out of his specialties to take third in the regular combined (langlauf and jumping) in the Nationals.

Ted Hunter, who with Warren Chivers and Dick Durrance completes the veteran trio of United States Winter Olympic Team members, featured his season with a championship in the Eastern Amateur Slalom competition. Ted also finished well up in many other meets with a third in the I. S. U. slalom, a fourth in the Dartmouth Carnival downhill, a tenth in the National Downhill Amateur Championships, 15th in the National Downhill Open championships, and a sixth in the National Amateur

Dick Durrance and Warren Chivers

Slalom championships, and a seventh in the National Open Slalom championships.

Howard Chivers, sophomore member of the Chivers brother act, enjoyed a banner year with a first in the Eastern Slopes langlauf, first in the Dartmouth Carnival combined, a first in the I. S. U. langlauf, and a first at Banff in the Dominion of Canada Championships in the langlauf.

Jack Durrance, who with Dick makes another famous Dartmouth brother pair, skied well all during the season and headed his accomplishments with the Eastern Downhill Championship title. Whit Miller, freshman star, and Charles Goodwin likewise climaxed promising skiing feats with individual championships. Miller won both the New Hampshire Championship Class C downhill and the Dartmouth College Championship. Goodwin, in winning the Vermont Class C downhill championship, established himself as a future luminary.

Dave Bradley, captain-elect of the Dartmouth skiers for 1937-38, rounded out a strong Dartmouth langlauf, jumping and combined team with a fourth in the Dartmouth Carnival combined, a third in the I. S. U. combined, and a fourth in the difficult cross-country competition for the Canadian championship. Brother Steve followed Dave across the line in the I. S. U. langlauf and placed fourth in the combined.

Veteran ski team members Johnnie Litchfield and Ed Wells continued their previous display of ability for exceptional records of their own. Litchfield, with a first in the Rumford Winter Carnival jumping, a third in the langlauf, and a fourth in the slalom, was one of the most versatile scorers. Wells proved a consistent performer with a third in the Eastern Slopes slalom, a third in the Dartmouth Carnival slalom, a third in the A. M. C. downhill, and a second in the Schussverein downhill.

The veteran Eddie Meservey continued his record of former years with a first in the Middlebury Carnival meet, a second in the A. M. C. downhill, a first in the Schussverein downhill, and a fourth in the Hochgebirge downhill and slalom races. Freshman Harold Hillman, a newcomer to the ranks of the "A" team, was third in the I. S. U. downhill, third in the Dartmouth Carnival downhill, and fifth in the Eastern Slopes downhill.

Other new "names" to break into the skiing headlines were: Charlie Goodwin, winner of the Mansfield Carnival langlauf and the Vermont Class C downhill; Joe Dunford, who placed fourth in the Vermont Class C downhill and fourth in the Woodstock Class C downhill; Carl Boothroyd, who finished third in the Mansfield Carnival langlauf; Everett Wood, third-place winner in the Middlebury Carnival combined; and George Sheldon, second-place winner in the Mansfield Carnival langlauf.

Two of Dartmouth's best prospects for another year, Roy Chamberlin and Johnnie McLane, contributed their part to this long list that seems to go on and on. Chamberlin finished sixth in the Hochgebirge combined, third in the Middlebury Carnival downhill, and second in the slalom. McLane placed second in the Middlebury Carnival downhill.

All of which makes no pretense at including every single item amassed by some 40-odd capable skiers. It should be enough itemization to convince anyone that the D. O. C. ski team is a very remarkable "gang."

And much of the credit should go to Walter Prager, who in his first season as coach set a new high for the skiers to aim at. Perhaps one of his best contributions was his own skiing ability, which was ever present to show the Dartmouth skiers that there were still new tricks of the trade to learn and that at least one man in America could beat them when he was at his best. Skiing conditions were discouraging to the new coach during the heart of the winter months, but how well Prager overcame this natural handicap is shown conclusively by the records given above. And although the present level of excellence is better than any ever before reached, how far the skiers will go next year is an unanswerable question. From the entire squad, only one man will be lost through graduation. Our class can at least claim Harrison Cooke, who has been a steady performer during his four years on the Dartmouth squad.

Varsity Skating Team

THE LARGEST number of candidates ever to try out for the skating team made excellent use of the uncertain ice conditions on Occom Pond. Captain Harold Putnam '37 and Ralph Johnston '38 were the outstanding veterans on the squad, but they were hard-pressed for honors by an unusually large and powerful group of freshman skaters.

The team trained diligently for the most ambitious schedule any Dartmouth squad ever faced, and everyone proved the benefits of such arduous conditioning by the success in the Boston Christmas Carnival, and in the Northern New England, New Hampshire, North American, Northern New York, and Vermont Championships. The year 1937 marked the first season that Dartmouth has ever sent a complete team to the major events of the east, and the creditable showings of the speed-skaters in such important competition augers well for the future of Dartmouth skating.

The strong group of skaters who will return next year are already looking forward to even better seasons. A continuation of the spirit and interest that have characterized the work of the skating team this year will insure another colorful chapter in the history of Dartmouth skating.

The Players

By PETER S. CARDOZO '39

It is a far cry from the professional theatre on Broadway to the inadequate stages in Webster and in the Little Theatre, but this year the Dartmouth Players have proved conclusively the old adage that innumerable handicaps serve as goads to success. Fulfilling one of the primary purposes of the Players . . . a Community Theatre . . . the subscription season which met with so much success last year was carried into effect again. This year, in order to allow considerable flexibility in a program that is at the same time quite definitely outlined, the Play Reading Committee submitted to the Directorate a group of twelve plays from which six were to be produced. The purpose of this plan was to give the season subscribers a chance to name their preferences and to provide a way around any casting difficulties that might arise.

In planning the season the Players followed closely the primary objective of the organization which in brief is:

To produce representative plays of all phases of the drama, past, present and experimental, and by so doing to:

1. Further the appreciation of good or representative plays.
2. Provide training in the theatre arts and science.
3. Provide entertainment value to the college and community at large.

During the 1936-37 season these fundamental aims have been adhered to closely and fulfilled to the letter. Such an undertaking would not be possible without the untiring and truly devoted efforts of Warner Bentley and Henry Williams. More than mere directors, they have been the beloved parents of a large family devoted to producing art in the theatre for enjoyment's sake alone. One cannot tell in words of the countless hours that they have spent in coordinating, in planning and in supervising the activities of the Players. Without these two the Players could not have hoped to undertake such a strenuous season as they have in the past two years.

And now we raise the curtain on this, the 1936-37 season. . . .

She Loves Me Not, a recent Broadway success by Howard Lindsay, was chosen for the first production of the year. Concerned with the antics of two Princetonians who hide a girl in their dormitory rooms, buy gin from bootleggers, kidnap the Dean, and secure the backing of a communist agitator, it produced, needless to say, a tempo and a dialogue that made for an ideal Houseparty show. Faced with the difficulty of casting the part of Curly Flagg, the girl in question, the Players were extremely fortunate in securing the services of Miss Gerrie Worthing, who was the understudy in the Broadway production of the show. It was a hard play to put on. The building of the set called for two levels and six separate stages. This was done by an excellent working crew under the ever-watchful eye of Henry Williams. Plaudits for acting must go to the entire cast who did a really great piece of work in playing up to the professional lead. Bill Bleas as Buzz came up to high expectations after an eventful summer at the Co-hasset Theatre. Joe D'Esopo, an old favorite of Hanover audiences, succeeded in stopping the show with his part of Abram Liebowitz, a publicity-crazed Communist. Bob Taylor turned in the best performance of his career as Gus McNeal, the effervescent press agent. Norm Anderson paused from his tennis long enough to give a colorful characterization of Mugg Schnitzel, the gangster. Jack Rourke, Blake Johnson, Bruce Lemmon and the rest of the cast were all a necessary part of She Loves Me Not or The Rise of a Deserving Chorus Girl. After the curtains closed and the audience applauded their approval, Warner looked at Henry with that knowing look of "Well, we did it!"

With the coming of December, the Players moved their talents from Webster Hall to the Little Theatre in Robinson. Here Nicolai Gogol's The Inspector General, a riotous comedy of political graft in an obscure Russian village, came to life. It was one of the finer productions that the Players have shown this year. The play succeeded in capturing the spirit of the period and was also able to make its comedy vital and alive today. The intensity of action and pomposity of attitude and gesture so characteristic of this Russia were all captured under Warner Bentley's direction. The settings were tastefully designed by Sidney Cardozo who has an adept faculty for harmonizing colors. Bill Mowry, varying his tempo and mood to good advantage, gave the part of Hlestakov a polished finish. Blake Johnson, in the difficult role of the pompous Mayor, gave an able characterization. Mention must also go to Herb Levine who in direct antithesis to the high tension of the play, quietly gave to the Postmaster a real part in the play. The pantomime of Landsman and Zeman as Tweedle-Dee and Tweedle-Dum provided many moments of hilarity. Mrs. Francis Merrill was admirable in the part of the Mayor's wife. She was truly in the part. Sally Drury did better than nicely with her part as the pretty young daughter.

Leaving Gilbert and Sullivan for a while, the Players turned to The Chocolate Soldier for the Carnival presentation. The precedent of a musical show at this time was well carried out by the light operetta of Oscar Straus. With such things as (1) A libretto taken from Bernard Shaw's Arms and the Man, (2) Music by Oscar Straus, (3) Warner Bentley's direction, (4) Henry William's sets and costumes, (5) Otto Asherman's choreography, and (6) Prof. Longhurst's musical direction, it was bound to be a well-rounded and colorful show. The proof of the pudding was in the eating for it was more than favorably received by the co-ed audiences that filled Webster Hall to capacity.

Marion Folger sang thrillingly in the starring role of Nadina. Other feminine laurels went to Emily Merrill and Laura Carter. In the title role, Bob Lang handsomely filled the part, while Barton Jones capably played the rival, Spiridoff. It will be a long time before we will forget the rolling eyes of Colonel Popoff, rolled so well by that one and only Joe D'Esopo. Blake Johnson climaxed his studded career by stepping into the part of Massakroff two days before the show. To top it all, he was handicapped by having a broken foot. It was one of the best characterizations in the show and a fitting climax to Blake's career on the Hanover stage.

Hailed as a success last year, the double feature program was the next event of the season. The Players selected Bury the Dead, a grim anti-war play by the young playwright, Irving Shaw, and for direct contrast, Thornton Wilder's A Happy Journey to Trenton and Camden. Although the difficulty of having most of the cast on probation, Warner Bentley's ill-timed attack of the grippe, and the problem of where to bury the dead had to be faced, nevertheless both plays came off as scheduled.

In many respects Bury the Dead was one of the hardest plays that the Players have ever attempted. The author had hold of a potent idea but there were many times when he had too much abruptness between his realism and his expressionism. The total effect of the play depended upon the rapid-fire transitions from one area to another on the stage, and with the facilities in Robinson Hall, it was a hard job for the technical crews to keep pace with the script. But all in all, the play was an effective bit of anti-war propaganda. The cast of thirty turned in uniformly even performances, with Bill Leonard, Herb Levine, Bruce Lemmon and Harold MacGilpin outstanding. Eileen McDaniel, Elizabeth Pressey and Sally Drury bore the highest banners of the women.

The Happy Journey to Trenton and Camden is one of the best of the modern one-act plays using the Chinese technique, which in the words of Thornton Wilder, "calls out the imaginative collaboration of the audience, extends the stage's powers to stretch time and space and enables the dramatists to make his specific characters into widely generalized types." In the part of Pa Kirby, Dave Todd turned in the best performance of the evening, getting everything out of the part there was to get. Herbert Landsman, a promising freshman, shared honors with Sally Drury in typifying two truly American children. Robert Taylor ably handled his part as stage manager, after a quick change from the Third General in Bury the Dead.

Special praise is due to Henry Williams, for when Warner Bentley was forced to place himself on the sick list, Henry took over both plays and did a fine job of keeping the plays off the sick-list. Stepping closely in his footsteps was Al Reinman, president of the Players, who did a good job in directing The Happy Journey. Stan Beskind and Martin Howell showed originality in their settings for the shows in the double bill.

Just before Spring Vacation, the annual interfraternity play contest sponsored by the Players was held, with 14 houses entered. Fighting for top honors in the finals were Sigma Chi, Delta Tau Delta and Phi Kappa Psi. The judges gave the decision and the coveted cup to the Delt's for their production of A Question of Principle, Viv Edwards directing. This year a new precedent was set by awarding a preliminary cup to the winning house on each night. The houses ranked in this class were Kappa Kappa Kappa, Theta Chi, Delta Tau Delta, Sigma Chi, and Phi Kappa Psi. The prize for the best original play went easily to the Phi Gams for the Bradley brothers' adaptation of Wodehouse. Another new prize was won by Dutch Holland for being judged the best actor. Each year one finds more and more gratification from the Interfraternity Play Contests—better plays, better actors and directors, and above all a growing interest in the theatre. Mention must be given to Bruce Tompkins who ad-libbed for fully ten minutes when he forgot all of his lines and then when his imagination was finally exhausted turned to the wings and nonchalantly cried out, "What the Hell is the line."

Warner and Henry at Work

Following closely behind the Interfraternity Play Contest came the announcement of the winners of the original play contest. Bruce Tompkins, winner of last year's contest, is again in the running with Oh That Music, Milton Goldberg with His Father's House, and Yale Mintz with Time to Sing. These three plays will be produced sometime in May for further judging.

For the April show the Players presented Bernard Shaw's entertaining Heartbreak House. It was here that the Players really got into their stride and the result was one of the better offerings of the season. In the words of the reviewer, Mark Schorer . . . "It was a real achievement, not only because of the excellent acting, but because the play is in itself considerably more difficult than much of Shaw. For successful presentation it requires the communication of double sensation—high nervous tension and the remoteness of dreams, and as a group the cast conveyed this with considerable force."

The most distinguished performance of the evening was turned in by Steve Bradley, who as Captain Shotover, was seeking the "seventh degree of concentration." This turned out to be nothing more than good old English rum. It was difficult, because Shaw is indefinite, but he did a truly beautiful characterization, giving all the fullness to the part that was called for. As the faint idealist, Mazzini Dunn, Herbert Landsman was excellent with that polished touch of remoteness that was necessary. Vivian Edwards did more than justice to Boss Mangin, which was one of his toughest assignments in his four years behind the footlights. On the feminine side of the stage, Marion Folger, leaving her singing roles in Carnival shows, did a fine piece of work with Hesione Hushabye, the mistress of Heartbreak House. Barbara Hassrick and Ann Edmunds, both newcomers this year to Hanover audiences, stepped out of Bury the Dead into Heartbreak House as Ellie and Lady Utterword. Both did particularly good work in bringing their characters to life. Miss Hassrick, especially in her scenes with Captain Shotover, and Miss Edmunds, as she eluded Boss Mangin. Mrs. Gilbert was most entertaining in her part of the nurse and general housekeeper.

Stage Crew

It was a well-rounded and smooth production and proved an ideal play for the three-night stand that opened the spring season of the Players. When it has been said that justice has been done to Mr. Shaw . . . enough has been said.

For Green Key week-end the Play Reading Committee picked Robert Sherwood's delightful The Road to Rome. This comedy is Sherwood's answer to the question of why Hannibal, just when he was in a position to take Rome, turned back to Carthage. Mr. Sherwood believed that Amytis, lovely Greek wife of the Roman dictator, Fabius Maximus, having been told by her husband that Hannibal's men were accustomed to violate the women they captured wondered rather wistfully what it was like to be violated. She left Rome and sneaked into Hannibal's camp to find out. What transpired explained Hannibal's departure—but not before Sally Drury, lovely and dignified, had played her part in winning Hannibal to a realization of his real self in a moving and convincing manner—and Bill Mowry had, in his usual professional manner, brought Hannibal to life for us in a light and charming manner—and Bill Blees, as Hannibal's brother Mago had performed in a suave and pleasing way—and Herb Levine, as the Dictator of Rome had ably carried out his part. To these must be added, Dick Shaw, Mrs. Stone, Norm Anderson, Dave Todd, and all the others who together formed an excellent cast.

In the minds of many people The Road to Rome was the best production that the Players did this season. It was played with a certain deftness and light touch that could not fail to make it a success. And so with the end of comprehensives the "old guard" will be back in Webster Hall once again putting the final touches on The Road to Rome before it is produced again at Commencement time.

When June rolls around, graduation again will cut deeply into the ranks of the Players. After four years of unceasing work with the Players we find the following members of casts, production crews and business office taking their last bow:

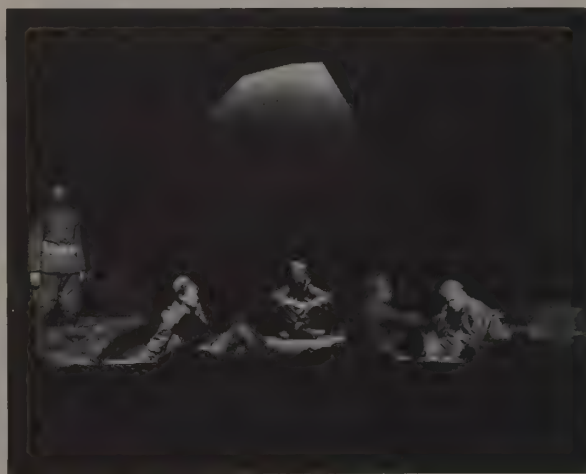

"She Loves Me Not"

Sam Dillon writes his last letters and closes the desk in the business office on one of the best business managerships the Players have experienced in a long time. . . . Tom McIntyre steps out of the publicity office probably with a sigh of relief, for Tommy has had a hard job and handled it to a new degree of perfection. . . . Versatile Ben Doran will long be remembered as the Lion in Androcles and the Lion, as well as the manager of the paint crew, student director, and actor. . . . Viv Edwards who took a lead in The Tavern his freshman year rounds out four years of excellent acting with the part of Boss Mangin in Heartbreak House. . . . Robert Taylor reached a four-year peak as Gus McNeal in She Loves Me Not. . . . Dave Todd, who has rebuilt the costume crew, beside heading the play reading committee, also found time to do great justice to the part of Pa Kirby in The Happy Journey. . . . Herb Levine who rose to fame as "Fat" in Waiting for Lefty has never dropped from the ranks of good actors as proven by his portrayal of the Postmaster in The Inspector General and Fabius in The Road to Rome. . . . Light Manager Doug Orton has had a terrific job this year with the trick sets he has had to light. The successful year of the light crew was certainly a fitting climax for Doug's four years on the crew. . . . Long will Hanover audiences remember the perfect characterization of the part of Anthony in Julius Caesar given by Bill Leonard as his best performance in four years with the Players. . . . Warren Crumbine, Will Coe, and Tommy Nast also leave the Players with records that will long be remembered. . . . The Players with great regret say farewell to Hesty Hirst, who not as a senior but as a post-grad takes his leave of an enviable career with the Players as light manager, president, and consulting electrician. . . . And lastly we come to Al Reinman who has been president of the Players for this season. This year Al has done an almost super-human job. More than any other year there have been hundreds of loose ends to be tied, and it has been the same answer every time: "Al will do it," and it has always been done. Al started his career in the Players as a member of the building crew and as the Sheriff's assistant in The Tavern. After this magnificent walk-on part he decided to pursue his field out of sight of the footlights. For four years he has had a varied career: building manager, stage manager, president, and always accepting those coveted walk-on parts. His effort has been unceasing and he has set a high precedent for future presidents of the organization.

It has been a big year for the Players . . . both smash hits and indifferent ones . . . but all worthwhile experiments. Next fall the Monday-morning-quarterbacks will get together and they will start all over again producing more and better shows. A few more freshmen will learn how to build a "flat," another "old guard" will be showing up, and Warner and Henry will be back on the job trying to find some one to fill the holes on the ranks left by the class of '37 and not infrequently wishing they were back. Yet, as in all years, new men will rise and the Players will present still another successful season.

The Junto

COMBINING an intensive on-campus program with the presentation of a selected group of outside speakers, the Junto during 1936-37 has most nearly fulfilled its function as an undergraduate organization "to promote interest in the arts and the social sciences" than at any time since its founding.

Funds to be utilized in the presentation of outstanding lecturers are granted the Junto each year by the College. In the past, unfortunately, there has been a tendency for the members of the undergraduate body, as well as the leaders of the Junto, to regard these lectures as the most important aspect of the group's work.

In 1935 a step away from this routine function was made by the Board of Governors headed by Dan Schwartz '36, and this work was continued by the 1936-37 Board which added a number of hitherto unthought of features to the program.

In the first weeks of the year, the Board of Governors, the Faculty Advisory Council and the membership decided that the program would stress the modern arts and the current social problems.

The emphasis throughout was placed on the small informal Thursday evening meetings of the membership, with the discussions and presentations springing out of student participation.

Prof. Ramon Guthrie opened the program of these weekly meetings with a record concert of modern composers. An outside speaker, and former Dartmouth man of the class of 1925, Ralph Thompson, delivered the first public address. Thompson, book reviewer of The New York Times, attacked the best seller as a "refuge for indolent minds."

Other outside speakers included Carl Sandburg, who was accorded an ovation by an overflow audience in Dartmouth Hall, and Paul Love, commentator on the modern dance. The latter's talk was accompanied by a recital-demonstration of the subject by Miss Eleanor King, whose dancing brought the whole field of the modern technique up for the scrutiny of the College.

The Thursday evening meetings were varied. Rene Clair's film, The Italian Straw Hat; a record concert and talk on modern jazz by Les Koenig; a discussion with Francis Merrill of the Sociology Department on "Social Disorganization in Literature"; Bill Clay's talk on "Southern Politics"; Otto Ashermann, dance director of the Players; Asher Lans '38, who spoke on President Roosevelt's plan to reorganize the Supreme Court; and Prof. Sidney Cox, who read Sandburg's poetry and described him in preparation for Sandburg's lecture to the College . . . were some of the Thursday evening attractions.

Two public lectures by faculty members were presented in Carpenter Hall. Prof. Ernest Greene spoke on the Spanish crisis, while Prof. Rees Bowen described his experiences in observing Russia.

The most ambitious task undertaken by the Junto was the showing of six programs of Series III of the Museum of Modern Art's Film Library. Tracing the development of the German and French motion picture, and their influence on the Hollywood technique, the six consecutive Monday evening performances in Dartmouth Hall brought a new appreciation of foreign films to the College.

The 130 members of the Junto have worked together, as a cohesive organization . . . contributing to the general intellectual life of the College, arousing new sentiments and ideas, tackling new problems, and most important . . . enjoying themselves in all they attempted.

THE DARTMOUTH UNION continued this year its regular program—student-faculty discussion groups, the Rural Preachers Bureau, participation in student conferences, and cooperation with the Green Key in providing freshman feeds—with the addition of two new activities, the weekly Wednesday Forum and an intercollegiate student conference at Hanover.

Organized four years ago for the dual purpose of promoting closer student-faculty relationships and of developing an interest in religion through inquiry and discussion, the work of the Union is largely personal in its nature. Aside from the Wednesday Forum, where members of the faculty speak briefly on topics of current interest, the activities of the Union are shaped to serve the needs of individual students. Each discussion group, organized on the basis of returns to a questionnaire, brings together ten or twelve students and a faculty leader who thresh out ideas and questions that had been bothering them. Likewise, because of the frequent requests from neighboring churches for student speakers, the Rural Preachers Bureau has organized a group of undergraduates interested in church work, who receive instruction in practice preaching and oral reading, and who have successfully met the increasing demand. The Union's part in freshman orientation consisted of securing a speaker for each feed, while the Green Key rounded up the freshmen in each dormitory.

In addition to these campus activities, the Union has attempted to establish contacts with student groups in other colleges. Last fall an intercollegiate student conference on the campus, under the leadership primarily of Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr, proved invaluable to the student delegates from three different colleges. Delegates are sent to the Northfield conferences in February and June, as well as to conferences at Wellesley and Swarthmore. Two Dartmouth men, subsidized by the Union, worked with the Friends' Emergency Peace Campaign last summer.

Forensic Union

THE GRADUATION of seven seniors and the absence on re- search work of two of last year's veterans seriously depleted the ranks of the Forensic Union, so the sophomores have played a prominent part in debating activities. Neverthe- less the union continues its practice of carrying a heavy schedule, the highlight of which was the southern trip of 3,500 miles, including debates with colleges as far south as Rollins College, Winter Park, Florida. Hathaway, Van Riper and two sophomores, Abrahamson and Brown, com- prised the team which debated seventeen colleges on the tour.

The home schedule featured debates with Harvard, Wil- liam and Mary (women), Georgetown University, and the University of Tulsa. The year was marked by a number of well-received off-campus debates before Community Forums and Rotary Clubs in Meriden and Waterbury, Conn.; Cambridge, Mass.; Littleton and Claremont, N. H.

The thirty-five varsity debates should not be permitted to obscure the activities of the freshman squad, which was the largest to report in recent years. As this is written, their season is just getting under way, but the freshmen already have a victory over Andover Academy tucked away. Debates with several high schools, Bates College, University of Vermont, and a proposed invitation college freshman tournament at Hanover will round out their first year of debating.

Delta Sigma Rho, national honorary forensic fraternity, has selected Ekirch, Greenspan, and Mackey for member- ship. Hathaway, Beckel, Lans and Van Riper will be eligible for consideration at the spring elections.

An interfraternity debate tournament and the organiza- tion of a Dartmouth College Speakers' Bureau are being planned by the Union and it is quite likely both will be accomplished facts by late spring.

Barbary Coast

AFTER A VERY enjoyable summer spent on board the Holland-American liner S. S. Rotterdam, which included cruises to North Cape, Russia and South America, seven members of the class of '36 became part of that ever enlarging group of "old Coast men." Only three undergraduates, Frank Newman, Leonard McChesney, and George Zeluff, remained to organize the 1937 Barbary Coast Orchestra. After a series of tryouts, Don Pease, Fred Mayne, Ken Howard, Frank Danzig, Jerry Tosi, Howard Stoughton, and Bob McCoy were selected to fill the vacated positions. With the exception of Bob McCoy, who was forced to leave because of excessive duties and was replaced by Roy Block, this group has been unchanged.

Naturally there was the problem of developing a consistency in the style which has made "the Coast" distinctive among college orchestras. After careful rehearsing the orchestra inaugurated its new season successfully at the Harvard-Dartmouth Ball, and later was enthusiastically acclaimed by Dartmouth when it first appeared before the student body at the pre-Princeton game band concert.

Because of the unusual talent of some of the men who can play several instruments, the orchestra has been especially fortunate in being able to utilize rather unique combinations of instrumentation. In this way certain musical effects are made possible which would ordinarily require a much larger group.

Week-end engagements have included Skidmore, M. I. T., Connecticut College, Colby, Princeton, Wells and other colleges in addition to many private organizations in New York and New England cities. The opportunity to represent Dartmouth at West Point's 100th Night Ball was outstanding. During the Christmas holidays "the Coast" planned a ten-day tour and is anticipating its annual Spring trip with the Glee Club to Washington, Chicago, Albany and points en route.

GREEN COLLEGIANS

Director

SHERMAN A. MURPHY, JR. '37

The Green Collegians

WITH THE CONCLUSION of their fourth year on the Dartmouth campus, the Green Collegians continued the remarkable rise which saw them come from the virtual obscurity of two years ago to a new high in popularity. The loss of three key men at the beginning of the college year turned out to be a blessing in disguise as the new men added made for a combination better in every respect. With a nucleus of six veterans to build on, the Collegians took Anderson, Joel, and Smith from the sophomore class, thereby filling the brass and sax sections with the finest array of talent the band has ever had.

The discovery of the year was Charlton, whom the Collegians took from the freshman class as their drummer. This addition completed the lineup for the band and its success is reflected in the amazing popularity which the Collegians have enjoyed. Serving notice of their ability in a performance before the College prior to the Princeton week-end, the Collegians reached their peak in their performance over a coast-to-coast broadcast of the National Broadcasting Company. This broadcast did more to place the Collegians in the college eye than any event since the band's organization.

The band was again led by Sherm Murphy '37 and managed by Mike Petti '37. Mort Ely was again responsible for the band's arrangements. The style of the band remained essentially the same as last year. Ensemble effects were emphasized and tone quality was stressed rather than the wild blaring so noticeable in many other college bands. The policy of playing danceable music was strictly followed and the Collegians made no attempt at "corny" efforts to "get hot."

Adding Middlebury and Amherst to their list of engagements, the Collegians were busy practically every week-end. The Christmas vacation was spent on a West Indies cruise on the "Saturnia," Easter aboard the "Volendam" to Bermuda, and this summer the Collegians will sail again on the "Roma." The latter cruise of 53 days will take them to some twenty ports in the Mediterranean. This will be the sixteenth cruise for the band and will make the Collegians the most travelled college band at Dartmouth, if not in the country.

University Club Orchestra

THE UNIVERSITY CLUB ORCHESTRA under the leadership of Al Lansberg '39 is filling the need for a third dance band on the Dartmouth campus. Organized to take the place of the now defunct Green Serenaders, the orchestra has proven popular with the student body. Playing "the kind of music you like to dance to," this organization can look forward to a very promising future. The band has a "set-up" which rivals that of any college dance orchestra in the country and surpasses that of many professional units.

Making its debut before a Dartmouth audience at the French Club Soiree, the possibilities for future prominence as a college dance orchestra were at once recognized by those who heard the band. On Green Key week-end the band met with popular approval from houseparty guests while playing at the Phi Gamma Delta House. The band has filled several engagements outside of Hanover, the most important perhaps being the Junior Prom at Green Mountain Junior College.

The orchestra is made up of ten men incorporating four saxophones, two trumpets, trombone, piano, bass, and drums. In addition to a vocal trio, the band presents a vocal soloist in the person of Paul Winship '39. Another sophomore, Ralph P. Folsom, Jr., has written several special arrangements of popular "swing tunes."

For the coming summer season the entire ten-piece orchestra has been engaged by the management of the Mount Kineo Hotel, on Moosehead Lake in Maine where the boys will furnish dance tunes and semi-concert numbers. Having decided to remain together as a unit next year, this orchestra will return to Hanover next fall capable of giving the other orchestras on the campus the stiffest of competition.

Germania

By JOHN V. KELLEHER, Jr. '39

IN THE fall of 1930 a group of German students, for the purposes of promoting the knowledge of German culture and language and the relationship between the United States and Germany, joined together to form the Deutscher Studenten Verein. There was nothing very remarkable in this. Anyone who reads the notice columns in The Dartmouth will realize how customarily and how often clubs and associations are formed here. But what was remarkable was the sturdy way in which the club took root and began to flourish. Today, some seven years later, the club is one of the largest and most firmly established on the campus. This success can be explained by various means. The students have been interested from the start. The organization is well planned and efficient. Color, spirit, and tradition have been built up by the use of a uniform regalia of cap and stripes, the success of the club's well-attended and long-remembered festivities, the fostering of a willingly cooperative spirit among the members, and the guiding genius and energy of the club's faculty adviser, Dr. Stephan J. Schlossmacher.

Prof. Stephan J. Schlossmacher

To Dr. Schlossmacher's labors more than to any other cause has been due the national fame which the club has achieved. He has designed and welded the organization, introduced the club constitution, which was modelled on that of his own fraternity in Austria, directed the uniformly successful club plays, and pushed the club through many and many a trying strait by the sheer force of his own energy. Few clubs have been so fortunate in procuring the assistance of so competent a faculty adviser.

In December, 1930, under the direction of Dr. Schlossmacher and its first President, W. S. Conklin '31, the club presented its first Christmas plays, Apostelspiel by Max Mell, and a medieval play Weihnachtspiel. On this occasion Consul-General Kurt von Tippelskirch was present and expressed great enjoyment over the presentation. So successful was this Weihnachtsfeier and those that followed it, that it is by now traditional and marks what is probably the highest function of Germania's annual activities.

From this beginning the club has gone on to produce more and finer plays, both modern and classic. The standard of production has been unusually high for amateur performances; and, indeed, one of the most prominent modern German playwrights, Gerhart Hauptmann, has tendered the club a letter of thanks for its presentation of his Hanneles Himmelfahrt. Up until the present year a list of those plays produced includes, Goethe's Klavigo, Timmerman's Spiel von den heiligen drei Koenigen, Schiller's Der Neffe als Onkel, Grebenstein's Der Stern von Bethlehem, and Sudermann's Fritzchen. All these have been well received in Hanover, where, as any good Hanoverian knows, an audience at any amateur performance, particularly a language play, is almost an unnatural phenomenon. Several of the plays have been request performances at other colleges.

Another activity of Germania's has been the highly laudable one of bringing the best German films to the Nugget. These came on the average of three or four times a year and furnished a refreshing relief to those saturated with the eternal triangle and the cutenesses of acute child actresses. Some of the fraternity's most notable achievements have been the bringing of Das Blau Licht, Zwei Herzen im Dreivierteltakt, Maedchen in Uniform, Zigeunerbaron, and Zwei Menschen.

In 1933, the Verein was reorganized under the new Austrian-fraternity-model constitution as Studenten Verbindung "Germania." Under the new code a selective system of admitting new members was introduced. Through this system a candidate is first admitted to the subordinate rank of Fuchs and is elected Bursch, or full member, only after he has demonstrated his fitness and fulfilled a certain requirement of work. The ceremony of installation is an entertaining one for all concerned, and is carried out at a special Kneipe held for that purpose. Functioning under the new constitution, the Verbindung has attained even greater stability and capability.

Among the sponsors of the Verbindung is Mr. Paul C. Hessler, Sr., of Wilmington, Delaware, father of last year's president and, himself, an honorary member. Mr. Hessler has rendered the club great financial service during the past years, thus enabling it to carry out plans and projects which would otherwise have been almost impossible. He has also presented the club with its beautiful white, green and silver banner, which he had made for the club in Munich and which he dedicated in 1934 at the reception given the cadets from the training ship Karlsruhe.

At intervals since the inception of the club and continuously since 1931, a German conversation table has been maintained at various dining places in Hanover. Here, only German is allowed to be spoken and those who foregather have daily practice in the living speech. This arrangement has been found particularly helpful in the training of actors and accounts in no small degree for the clarity which has marked the dialogue of the club plays.

That the influence of the club continues in and out of session is evidenced by the fact that, twice, two orchestras composed of Germania members have been afforded the opportunity to work their passage on a summer tour to Germany by playing on boats of the North German and Hamburg-American lines.

Dr. Hugo Eckener

This year a very ambitious program was mapped out by the officers and Dr. Schlossmacher. And to date it has been carried out with outstanding success. Many interesting and thought-producing talks have been given. Prof. Royal C. Nemiah, one of the honorary members, spoke on "Germany in 1936," recounting his personal observations made during the summer. Prof. L. Dean Pearson addressed one of the open meetings on "The Church and State in Germany" and Dr. W. C. Behrendt lectured on the "Architecture of Frederick the Great at Potsdam and Berlin." In February Dr. Hermann M. Burian gave an illustrated lecture entitled "Deutsche in Jugoslavien," and, in March, Prof. Eugen Rosenstock-Huessy spoke on "Karl Schurz." Again, on March 18th, a lecture by Dr. Ian J. Bald on "Schiller und sein Werk, Kabale und Liebe" served as an introduction to the fraternity's "Magnus opus," the great dramatic event of two years' hard work, namely: the presentation of Schiller's tragedy, Kabale und Liebe. The play was given in the Little Theatre on the night of March 20th, and was repeated at a special request performance in Montreal, on the 22nd, at the invitation of Professor W. L. Graff and the German Club of McGill. It was highly praised in a review in The Dartmouth by Prof. Nemiah, who was particularly struck by the distinctness of the dialogue. Both the Montreal Star and the Montreal Gazette were highly friendly in their criticism and commended the degree of intelligibility and sureness with which the long speeches were rendered. The difficulty of handling so heavy and impassioned a revival was marked by all the critics; and the success of Dr. Schlossmacher's direction was uniformly noted. Professor Nemiah's review expressed the opinion that the performance was a notable achievement and the society's most ambitious and most successful undertaking.

"Kabale und Liebe"

Those who took part in the play were: H. C. Lullmann as President von Walter; E. W. Hartung as Ferdinand, his son; C. J. Schuck as Hofmarschall von Kalb; Mrs. W. E. Stevens as Lady Milford; D. C. Bridge as Wurm, secretary to the President; J. B. Moore as Miller, a music teacher; Miss Freda Harold as his wife; Miss Irmgard Kuntze as Luise, his daughter; Mrs. Charles H. Voelker as Sophie, a maid; and L. C. Chesley as a servant to the Prince.

This year's Christmas play was Wir sind drei Koenige mit Ihrem Stern by Adolph Wurmbach. The cast of this play included: B. D. Morrissey as Leileschien; P. J. Linden as Duewelkeler; A. Meyer, Jr. as Knickbein; P. B. DeWitt as Der Mann; Miss Irmgard Kuntze as Die Frau; L. C. Crowe as Der Knabe; Miss M. Swoboda as Das Maedchen; and E. F. Fetske, W. I. Dennen, G. H. Kruschwitz and J. B. Moore as Einige Alte im Armenhaus.

At this year's Weihnachtsfeier, Consul General Kurt von Tippelskirch accepted, on behalf of Dr. Hugo Eckener, the famous Zeppelin Captain, honorary membership in the Studenten Verbindung "Germania." A few days after the celebration the following letter from Dr. Eckener was received:

Ich danke Ihnen fuer Ihre freundliche Mitteilung vom 3. ds. Mts und moechte Sie bitten, den Mitgliedern der "Germania" mitzuteilen, dass ich es als eine besondere Ehre und Auszeichnung ansehe, die Ehrenmitgliedschaft der Verbindung annehmen zu duerfen.

Vielleicht ergibt sich einmal die Gelegenheit, persoenlich mit den Mitgliedern der Verbindung Fuehlung aufzunehmen, wenn ich in den Vereinigten Staaten bin.

Inzwischen bin ich mit verbindlichen Gruessen und den besten Wuenschen fuer das Gedeihen der Verbindung.

Ihr aufrichtig ergebener

gez. ECKENER.

In cooperation with the Music Department, Germania presented, on November 2, a concert of 16th and 17th century music by the Young Artists Group of the Guentherschool of Berlin. Germania also cooperated at the North Country Fair's hospital benefit program by presenting a musical skit "Alt Heidelberg."

This year's additions to the list of notable German motion pictures brought to the Nugget Abel mit der Mundharmonika, Schloss Hubertus, Slalom, and The Royal Waltz.

Three Kneipes have so far been held, and the Stiftungsfest and the senior reception still remain to be enjoyed. There is also to come a lecture of "Theatre and Stage in the Third Reich" by Professor M. F. Schmitz of Smith College, and, on April 15, a travelogue film with two parts Climbing in Austria and An Austrian Village.

This year's Stiftungsfest is to be held at the Hanover Inn; and delegations from other colleges will be entertained. There will be a dinner, and dancing, and singing, and other entertainments, and we may confidently say in advance that a good time will be had by all. It never fails.

Le Cercle Français

FOUNDED SOME thirty-odd years ago the Cercle Français has steadfastly adhered to its policy of providing a meeting place for those of the College who are interested in French culture, being substantially aided in this respect by our great friend, Mr. Edward Tuck, through whose generosity the club room has been furnished.

In its years of existence the Cercle has always striven to present the latest artistic developments in France and this year, through the efforts of Professor Francois Denoeu, faculty adviser of the club, a varied program of the best achievements in the French cinema was presented, among these Madame Bovary and Marie Chapdelaine. In addition to this Professor Denoeu presented us with an exposé of the politics of Léon Blum's present administration; this was followed by a causerie given by Dr. George Diller on Jules Romain; also of interest to the members was a talk given by three former members of the Delaware Group, who spoke on the activities of this group during their year in France.

The Cercle has always taken pride in its dramatic productions and this year attempted to climax all former efforts in the giving of Professor Denoeu's new play Les Per-ruques s'Amusent. This amusing play dealing with the times of Moliere was received with acclaim and it was a privilege for the Cercle to help in its first presentation. Away on sabbatical leave, Professor Verriest, who usually has taken charge of dramatics, was replaced by Professor Denoeu himself.

The piece de resistance of the Cercle is its annual Romance Language Soiree which it gives in conjunction with other language groups. The program was presented to an enthusiastic audience which later enjoyed dancing, helped appreciably by the presence of representatives of Smith and Skidmore.

Centro Español

A GROWING MEMBERSHIP has made it possible for the Centro Español to maintain its position as the social and intellectual center for the students interested in Spain and Spanish America as heretofore and to enlarge, besides, the scope of its activities.

This year we shall have a Spanish dinner on May 8 solely for the members of the Centro and the Spanish staff, in addition to the now customary Romance Language Banquet at the end of the academic year. The Centro has also been able to undertake the production for the Romance Language night, on April 24, of the first cuadro of "Don Juan Tenorio, Libertinaje y escándalo," with the following cast: Don Juan, Fernández Chardiet; Don Luis, Jova; Buttarelli, Calleja; Don Gonzalo, Arce; Don Diego, Draper; Avellaneda, Hyde; Centellas, Schott.

The fortnightly meetings have been given up to a diversified program enlivened by music and refreshments. The Spanish situation, an unavoidable topic of conversation at the meetings, was more systematically discussed at a symposium on October 13, the main topics being: "The Backgrounds of the Present Conflict" and "Toward a New Spain," treated by Professor Folger and Professor Arce respectively. Dr. W. R. Hatch, of the Biology Department, spoke on January 12 on a recent scientific trip through Guatemala; Professor F. C. Flint, of the English Department, gave his impressions of an automobile trip through southern Spain; and Dr. J. H. Cutler presented on October 27 his views on Manuel González Prada. The Centro was also instrumental in bringing Professor Pedro Salinas, of the University of Madrid, to lecture to the Hispanophile group at Dartmouth, on April 15, on "Modernismo and the generation of '98." Two meetings were devoted to informal games and to Spanish and Spanish American music.

Il Circolo Italiano

IL CIRCOLO ITALIANO is open to all members of the college who are interested in Italy, Italian music and culture. The Circolo attempts to expand these interests as its main purpose during the year. Its meetings are fortnightly and quite informal. They are devoted to lectures and discussions about Italy and the place it holds in the world of literature, art, and music as well as descriptions of its people as seen by competent students and travelers. Among the speakers this year were Dr. Alberto Vazquez, who lectured on "Dante," and Prof. Allen Foley who covered the relations between the church and the state in Italy past and present.

The Circolo has occasional meetings with the other Romance Language clubs and participates with them in an annual combined party. The club's contributions to this party consist of a short play and a few selections of popular Italian music. The Circolo is also very fortunate in having an annual dinner consisting of Italian food in the Italian manner as prepared through the kindness of Mrs. Pianca.

These activities cover most of the club's time and are carried on only through the enthusiasm of its members. The support and interest that Professors Wood and Pianca have contributed toward the success of the Circolo have been much appreciated by its members.

Ledyard Canoe Club

SPRING AND FALL are the seasons when the canoes of John Ledyard cut the waters of the Connecticut, the White, and many another New England waterway, or buck their flooding spate with clean, cool green prow.

As the leaves began to turn, two voyageurs lashed their bateau to the trailer and struck out for the College Grant where they dodged boulders and eddies in the upper reaches of the Dead Diamond River.

The fall membership feeds were soon begun and, garnished by the cookery of Pete McLane '37, the novices spent afternoons learning the arts of the ashen blade and repairing Chase cabin, battered by the flood of 1936. The final feed culminated in a moonlight trip down the Connecticut from Orford with waffles in the club house at one a.m. to top it off. Next day the aspirants immersed themselves in the icy waters to prove their hardihood and technique, after which ten new men were admitted to membership.

With the spring rains the renaissance comes after the long winter quiet. The wide boat-house doors are flung open to the warm spring air. The master craftsmen come down of an afternoon to paint and patch. And soon cars bearing strange inverted craft depart deep-laden for Gaysville, the Ammonoosuc, or the Saco, bent on a day or an afternoon of quick, lithe movement and breath-taking excitement in the conquest of white water. The river recedes, flowing smooth and deep; a merganser is flushed in her feeding by the approach around a bend of a little group of canoes moving silently and rhythmically southward—threading their ways through the meanders of the Connecticut toward the sea. Or beneath some pine-banked shore a basking lake trout is startled by the sound of an Alpine yodel echoing from the rocky walls of Lake George, and sinks leery-eyed to the bottom of his pool as a flotilla of slim, green keels pass overhead.

And so forever the waters roll and forever the paddle-beats resound.

Bait and Bullet

BAIT AND BULLET is an informal club interested primarily in hunting and fishing. It was founded in 1922 and since that year has been operating two cabins located in the choice sections of the state. The Club holds frequent game feeds where the members can feast on the results of their own luck. On these occasions the bill-of-fare varies from the dainty woodcock to the hind quarters of bear.

The fall is the busiest season of the year, the main attraction being the woodcock and grouse which are hunted in nearby alder swamps and hillsides. This is noble sport and in thick cover these birds prove a test for the Club's best shots. Deer are allowed to be taken in November, and sometimes venison is served at the early winter feed. Springtime is trout fishing time and the dry and wet fly enthusiasts alike have plenty of chance to try out their feathered favorites on the fine streams of New Hampshire and Vermont.

Even during the off-season Bait and Bullet is active sponsoring such events as keep continual interest in the Club. Trap-shooting has become popular of late and formal and informal meets are held with different organizations. Besides this there is always a week-end or two at one of the cabins where the members come together without rods and guns just to have a good time.

Boot and Saddle

THE BOOT AND SADDLE riding club has been active at Dartmouth for several years now, but up until the present year the Club has confined its activities to a recreational type of riding. This included afternoon rides, week-end trips to the Outing Club cabins, membership rides, and joint rides with other riding clubs of New England colleges.

This year, the club underwent a revision, not only in character but in its original constitution. Such a change was in the direction of producing a wider range of activities to include more phases of riding and horsemanship. Polo was organized and incorporated in the Club, and this new item has proven very popular. A successful practice season of outdoor polo was held last fall, and an indoor season was inaugurated last winter. The Club team, consisting of Bob Fletcher '39, Johnny Knutsen '40, Henry Beck '38, and Chuck Urschel '39, played indoor games with Norwich University, and two Cleveland indoor polo teams, at Cleveland, during spring vacation. This spring, outdoor games are scheduled with Norwich, Princeton and tentatively with Dedham.

In addition to Polo, the Club plans to include a jumping team, as well as continuing the former activities. It is hoped that with the wider appeal thus given the Club will continue the fellowship and interest in riding which it has enjoyed in the past.

During the winter, the Club turns to ski-joring activities, which play an important part in the annual Carnival. This last winter there were eleven teams competing in what proved to be an intercollegiate affair. The winners of the race were H. W. Merrill, Jr. '39 and H. S. Streater '38. Cups were awarded the winners and medals to the runners-up.

There are two rushing periods for those desiring to join the Club, though daily rides and practice polo games at home are open to all those interested. Demonstrated ability to ride, fundamental knowledge of the principles of good horsemanship, interest, and personality are the determining factors in judging prospective members.

The Dartmouth Rowing Club

UNPRECEDENTED EXPANSION of activities and improvement of equipment was realized by the Dartmouth crew during this, the fourth year of its existence. The generosity of Alvin T. Fuller, former governor of Massachusetts, and of James Bonnyman, of Cincinnati, and others made this progress possible, for it was with their contributions that the oarsmen supplemented the previous meagre outfit of the club with sufficient equipment to train a representative crew.

In the eyes of the college as a whole there were two great steps forward. First, rowing was brought closer to the college, both figuratively and literally, when practice was transferred from Lake Mascoma to the Connecticut River. As this is being written in April and although the river is still covered with ice at Hanover, it is nevertheless expected that the Indian varsity will be able to meet Williams in the race scheduled for Green Key week-end at Hanover. The second achievement hailed by the student body was the scheduling of four races, two for the freshmen and two for the varsity, thereby establishing Dartmouth as a regular contender in intercollegiate rowing circles.

The schedule of the varsity consists of a home race with Williams during Green Key week-end and an encounter with Yale's third varsity at Derby, Conn., on May 15. The yearling boat meets the Rutgers freshmen and the Princeton second freshmen at the latter school on May 8 and journeys to Boston to face Harvard's second freshmen on May 22. The boatings of the two shells are not known as yet, but those members of the club failing to make the trips will compete in regular intramural races on the Connecticut.

The new boathouse, the two shells recently acquired and the new coaching launch, as well as the increased prestige of the Dartmouth Rowing Club on the campus testify to the unceasing efforts and intelligent leadership of Gilbert Tanis and Robert A. Southworth, president and manager of the club respectively. The very existence of rowing at Dartmouth may be accredited to their sensible guidance and to the enthusiasm they have engendered in the fifty or more men who are striving to make rowing a recognized sport at Dartmouth.

Corinthian Yacht Club

ALONG WITH NEARLY a dozen similar organizations in other New England colleges, the Dartmouth Corinthian Yacht Club is growing by leaps and bounds. Through the stimulus of the M. I. T. Sailing Association, the old Intercollegiate Yacht Racing Association, of which Dartmouth is a charter member, has been reorganized and regular intercollegiate dinghy racing has become an established fact. Keeping in step with this development, Dartmouth plans to substitute dinghies for its two "Wee Scott" sailboats on Lake Mascoma. If increased interest and the example of other colleges is any criterion, these dinghies will be the foundation for a fast growing fleet.

The MacMillan Cup regatta, composed of the six charter members of the Intercollegiate Yacht Racing Association, is held every spring, last year the scene being Marblehead. Dartmouth took second at that time, outclassed only by Princeton.

The other half of the I. C. Y. R. A., under the leadership of the Dinghy Racing Committee, is open to all interested colleges. In the spring and fall regattas held at the M. I. T. sailing pavillion Dartmouth was again a strong contender, finishing a close third in the spring of 1936 and sixth the following fall. Aside from these regattas, invitation meets are held all over New England and New York in college owned boats until ice closes the lakes and rivers. Dartmouth competed in four such meets last fall with Princeton, Brown, Cornell and Williams, besides a quadrangular meet with M. I. T., Harvard and Brown at the Charles River Basin during the Harvard-Dartmouth week-end, and another at Brown on the Seekonk River on December 4. The end of Christmas vacation saw simultaneous regattas at Indian Harbor, Conn., and Manhasset Bay, L. I., where Dartmouth finished sixth and second, respectively.

Undergraduate Fire Squad

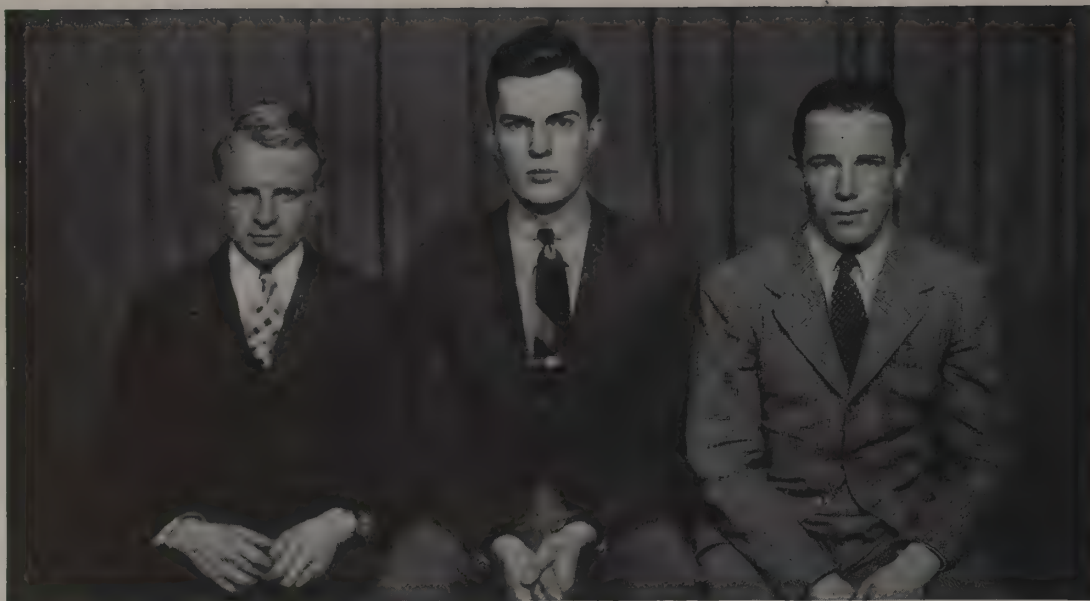

UNDER THE leadership of Chief "Mutt" Ray, the Undergraduate Fire Squad proved throughout the past year a valuable aid to the Hanover Fire Department. Always the first of the student body to respond to the fire signal, they have become a fixture in the protection of property of the town.

This organization is following out traditions established back in the days of Daniel Webster when that worthy statesman was an undergraduate member. In those days it was primarily a "bucket brigade" chosen without any definite duties except to assist the regular firemen wherever possible. The activities of those early volunteers showed the value of such an organization and played an important part in the history of the college. The activity was dropped for some unknown reason until it was revived again shortly after the war. It assumed its present form in 1930 and is now a recognized college organization.

There are twelve members in the Squad, six seniors, four juniors, and two sophomores. Their duties are to assist the firemen wherever necessary and to take charge of all student activities at fires. They are supposed to keep onlookers off the trucks, to set up fire lines, and to keep the crowds back.

The activities of the twelve stalwarts have not been too arduous this year but in the few emergencies they have been of assistance in organizing the apparatus and keeping the spectators under control. Their greatest service was at the blaze that gutted the East side of Main Street when they were aroused from a deep post-carnival slumber to answer the alarm. Also they were very much in evidence when flames broke out in the S. A. E. house and in a few small fires about town.

Although the fire whistle has been pleasantly silent of late, the members of the Squad still lay their clothes out carefully before retiring, ready to clap on their dazzling scarlet fire caps at the first moan of the alarm.

Press Club

THE DARTMOUTH PRESS CLUB, with an informal but responsible organization, has for years symbolized the serious side of journalism and gives practical training in newspaper reporting to its members.

This group, made up of the correspondents of the various metropolitan papers, is an independent organization, responsible to the newspapers which employ the individual members as correspondents, although tact and a sense of news values must necessarily rule in its coverage.

Each important metropolitan newspaper has its own correspondent at Dartmouth, this individual having the same status as any person working in the office of the paper, and it is his task to give the news of the College and community as quickly and accurately as possible to his paper. The Press Club has always acted as its own censor, and points to its record of always handling its own problems in this respect as far as its individual members are concerned.

The Press Club does not run competitions nor solicit membership, leaving it to any individual interested in reporting to contact one of its members. If the newcomer shows promise, he may cover assignments for members of the Press Club, and after a period of apprenticeship may gain a paper of his own when members graduate.

Many former members of the Dartmouth Press Club are now engaged by metropolitan newspapers, working in every conceivable field, from sports to politics.

Dartmouth Law Association

ON FEBRUARY 16, 1937, Benjamin M. Cardozo '37 and George E. Mackey '37 wrote a letter to the Editor of The Dartmouth. It proposed the establishment of a Dartmouth Law Association "to stimulate enthusiasm and interest among those who intend to enter the legal profession and who are also interested in a discussion of legal problems; to have speakers from the several departments of the college give to our organization real color, by talking on the various aspects of the law, such as philosophical approach, and the relation of sociology, economics and history to it" hoping "that this organization will give to Dartmouth men a taste of the broader aspects of the law which they will carry on through later life."

The Dartmouth supported the Law Association enthusiastically and stated in a leading editorial that "the proposal merits the attention of the entire college. . . . Any organization designed to study the balance between logic, history and sociology; between precedent and the present needs of society is an organization which concerns the prospective businessman, and the prospective laborer, as well as the prospective lawyer. We therefor endorse the contemplated 'Dartmouth Law Association.'"

In order to provide for permanency, members of the lower classes will be appointed as Senior Executives to carry on the organization. In order to stimulate interest among the undergraduate body, the meetings have been conducted openly. James P. Richardson, Parker Professor of Law and Political Science, was chosen faculty adviser.

The following members of the faculty have spoken to the Association: Eugen Rosenstock-Huussy, Professor of Social Philosophy; Craven Laycock, Dean Emeritus of the College; Edwin Power, Professor of Psychology; Judge Harry E. Burton, Daniel Webster Professor of the Latin Language and Literature; Malcolm Keir, Professor of Economics; Herman Feldman, Professor of Industrial Relations, Tuck School; Elmer E. Dartmouth College Athletic Council ORGANIZED ATHLETIC control has existed at Dartmouth since 1893, the year in which the Dartmouth College Alumni Association organized a Committee on Athletics and sponsored the formal opening by the Trustees of the Alumni Oval, now known as Memorial Field. The original constitution, drafted by Edward K. Hall '92, has undergone numerous revisions in keeping with changing conditions, the latest revision having been made as recently as 1934. Under the present constitution, authority for the activities of the Athletic Council is definitely placed in the hands of the Trustees of the College from whom it is passed on to the Council.

The controlling body today is known as the Dartmouth College Athletic Council and is composed of three alumni members nominated and elected by the Alumni Council, three faculty members belonging to the Faculty Committee on Athletics and elected by the faculty, and three undergraduate members elected by the Athletic Council at the last meeting of the academic year from a list of six undergraduates nominated by Palaeopitus from the varsity and freshman managers succeeding to office the following academic year. The Council has two officers, a president and a secretary, and appoints the Director of Athletics to act as its executive officer.

The Athletic Council is authorized by the Trustees to organize and direct all athletic activities of Dartmouth students which involve the representation of the College in competition with other academic institutions or organizations. It appoints all coaches, trainers, and undergraduate managers and establishes their duties. It establishes the rules of eligibility governing the participation of Dartmouth students in intercollegiate athletics, awards insignia and prescribes the conditions for such awards, maintains a historical record of Dartmouth athletics, and approves all College athletic records.

The Season 1936

By ROBERT P. FULLER '37

WHEN IN the course of athletic events another non-pareil Dartmouth football team comes roaring across the mesa of Hanover with all the concentrated plenitude of power and mien of a buffalo herd hell bent for leather, let this eleven be plenty hot or it will suffer in comparison with the 1936 Indian tribe—perhaps the greatest grid-iron consolidation Eleazar's legendary wigwam ever housed, and if not the greatest, at least one of the three best.

For one thing, it had a post-war line that was of the rough-and-ready school that asked and gave no quarter. Its outstanding asset was undoubtedly its defensive skill fore and aft. From end to end, Johnny Merrill and "Stinky" Davis on the wings, Captain Gordon Bennett and Dave Camerer at the tackles, Bill Cole and Jack Williams at the guards, and "Mutt" Ray at center presented an array of impregnable frontier that was rivalled during the fall only by Fordham's "Seven Blocks of Granite"; and when N. Y. U. proved that the "Seven Blocks of Granite" were in reality "Seven Blocks of Jello," the Big Green line remained alone as the undisputed all-star aggregation of the East, if not of the nation.

Defensively the backfield of Hank Whitaker, Bob MacLeod, Fred Hollingworth and Johnny Handrahan was a quartet of hard-tackling "backer-uppers" that should receive deserved credit for its part in the amazing record of only 17 first downs scored against Dartmouth during the entire season, a record that no other "Ivy League" eleven has ever closely approximated in all Eastern football history.

For another thing, the greatness of the 1936 football team also depended somewhat on its very unexpectedness. Unquestionably a comprehensive review of the final excellence should hark back to the outset of the season, when in September the outlook was anything but promising. Captain Bennett, Camerer and Ray were the only holdovers from the 1935 forward wall. Line Coach Harry Ellinger and End Coach Joe Donchess had before them the problem of rebuilding the line at the ends and guards . . . no small problem on any man's football team.

Donchess selected to solve his problem by segregating Davis and Merrill from the end squad

Coaches Ellinger, Gustafson, Blaik, Donchess, and Chamberlain

MacLeod Gets Away for a Long Gain in the Yale Game

and bending his every effort toward developing this well-built pair into suitable ends, not dreaming for a moment during the early season that he was to be rewarded with the jackpot for his chance.

Coach Ellinger in his turn decided that Williams and Cole had the size, if not the experience, for the wide open guard slots left vacant by the absence of the veteran Joe Handrahan and the uncertain physical condition of veteran Latta McCray.

Thus from a dismal start, the Indian line sprang from nowhere under clever coaching guidance into a powerful organization.

It is likewise important to remember that fullback Johnny Handrahan was the only known factor of the final backfield four when the curtain went up on the opening Norwich tryout. But it became immediately apparent during the initial game that quarterback Hank Whitaker was destined to more than fill the requirements of the defensive fullback after he had made but a few of his spine-shattering tackles that continued to characterize his play throughout the campaign.

In addition to Whitaker a sophomore unknown, yclept MacLeod, successfully jumped the wide gap between freshman and varsity football in his first season to hold his own as an important cog in the defensive brilliancy of the entire eleven and to become one of the Indians' most consistent ground-gainers of the year.

Fred Hollingworth, never outstanding for his ball carrying abilities through the season, deserves full praise for his own defensive dependability and his real merit as a blocking back. These two qualities earned Hollingworth his regular post and when Coach Blaik desired a running threat or passing accuracy he had at his beck and call sophomores Gordon Clark and Len Viens and one of the most spectacular running backs Dartmouth has ever had, junior Warren King.

Dartmouth's remaining substitute strength, so valuable to the success of the team that it can not be overestimated, was not numerous but capable.

McCray, who regained his junior-year form with miraculous rapidity, considering the seriousness of his skiing accident the previous winter, saw much service behind Cole at guard and was also a valuable general when leadership was the demand of the moment. Phil Sparticus Conti and Joe Kiernan lent their two previous years of experience at right halfback and fullback. Conti's great day came with the Harvard encounter and Kiernan covered his career with a last-minute laurel wreath when he smashed the Princeton line standing up for the second Dartmouth touchdown of the afternoon. That fate should have ruled that these two veterans who toiled loyally in substitute roles were each to enjoy starring honors in two of Dartmouth's most important games seems the most justifiable happening of the entire season.

The Indians were also most fortunate in having two strong second string tackles in Fran Schildgen and "Moose" Taylor, for these two men bolstered the campaign-weary Bennett and Camerer in both the Cornell game at Ithaca and the Princeton game in Palmer Stadium and contributed much toward the aforementioned defensive strength of the Indian eleven by their timely assistance. Two other sophomores, Quarterback Harry Gates and End Joe Pyrtek, must be placed high in the list of valuable substitutes. Gates performed yeoman service behind Whitaker, and Pyrtek will be remembered for his last-play tackle in the Yale bowl that preserved the slim Big Green lead over the Bulldogs.

A failure to mention Herb Christiansen for his consistent effort would be to commit a cardinal sin as would a like failure to recognize the unheralded part played by the jayvees in building up the wonderful varsity machine. And so we say that the 1936 jayvees will be remembered as the most enthusiastic, loyal and capable scrub team Dartmouth's football squad has ever had the pleasure of setting up as a standard for all future jayvee teams to shoot at.

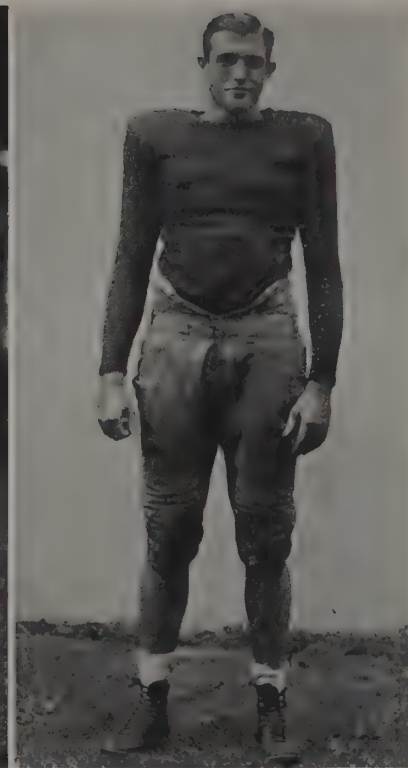

A View of the Overflow Crowd Which Saw the Holy Cross Game in Hanover

Davis

Captain Bennett

Merrill

For the benefit of future critics who will glance over the won and lost column of the 1936 eleven and wonder why this team ever rated the praise of greatness, let us briefly reconstruct the season from a statistical approach.

Of course Dartmouth romped over Norwich in what proved to be the last of this traditional series that was colorful for its very age, but hardly in recent years a logical partnership for the Cadets. That the score of the last Dartmouth-Norwich game was 58-0 speaks volumes for Coach Blaik's attempt to hold back his vastly superior strength, but try as he would, the Big Green mentor could not prevent his third- and fourth-team backs from showing their wares for his benefit.

Vermont was next and escaped with a 56-0 trouncing in what was likewise the last of the current Vermont-Dartmouth series. The Catamounts put up the same plucky struggle that the Cadets had displayed the previous week-end, but they too were hopelessly outclassed by the Blaikites.

Then came the only defeat on the schedule for Dartmouth, but a defeat that was as undeserved as one could imagine. Few conceded the Big Green a chance against Holy Cross on that third Saturday of the season. Fourteen thousand fans packed their way into Memorial field and a generous half of this crowd were Holy Cross rooters anxious to be on hand as witnesses to a Dartmouth slaughter.

But much to their amazement the slaughtering was done by the Indians at the expense of the Crusaders. Dartmouth did everything but tally touchdowns in a complete reversal of pre-game expectations and so well did the Indians shackle the impressive looking Holy Cross offensive strength that the visitors had but four first downs to show for their earned yardage during the 60 minutes of play.

However, games are still won and lost on the final score, and to Mr. William Osmanski the Crusaders looked not in vain in their confusion. For the Wild Bull of Worcester took Dame Fortune by the hand, grabbed a deflected forward pass out of the air on his own 33-yard line and ran untouched to the Dartmouth goal line for the all-important touchdown. And when Rex Kidd converted for the seventh point it seemed that here was justice gone completely screwy.

Nevertheless, the defeat was not without its bright side even at the time, for Dartmouth that afternoon showed first signs of being an outstanding football team and a team released from all the worries of upholding an undefeated record.

A poor and disappointing Brown Bear was forced to take it on the chin for the disappointment of the Holy Cross defeat to the extent of a 34-point dunking. It was in this game that MacLeod first showed signs as a long-distance threat who could be considered dangerous from any marker on the field. Johnny Handrahan augmented the Big Green attack with a devastating warfare on the middle of the Bruins' line that left the Bears a scattered, badly mangled assortment of Cubs.

On to Harvard went the surprising Indians now recognized by local critics as something other than an ordinary eleven, although the real experts of the country were not to admit to this for some time to come. The Harvards proved unruly during the first half of the encounter, with speedster King providing all of the offensive fireworks for the Hanoverians. The second half was something else again, for with MacLeod and Handrahan leading the varsity attack and Conti stepping in for a bang-up job with the second eleven, the Crimson crumpled and folded 26-0 in almost less time that it takes to tell the story. So satisfied was Coach Blaik with his charges that he dismissed both his first and second teams after the third quarter and presented his third eleven to Harvard. And strangely enough, the Harvard team, which was afterwards to prove its worth against Princeton, Navy and Yale, found the Big Green third-stringers a full match, and that the Crimson scored at all was a gift of fortune. Twenty-six to six was gratifying enough to the Dartmouth followers, anyhow, for before the whistle had blown all eyes were pointing south to New Haven in anticipation of a second Dartmouth victory over Yale.

And their ambition was to be realized, but if any prophet had been able to prognosticate how close Dartmouth was to come to disappointment, only a few of the most hardy souls could have summoned up enough courage to attend.

For the Yale game was to bring about the first of two of the most atrocious official rulings of pass interference ever perpetrated on American grid-iron soil. The first one, in the Yale game, thrust

Handrahan

MacLeod

Whitaker

Dartmouth to the very brink of defeat in the last 30 seconds of play with the Indians leading by the slim margin of 11 to 7. The mere fact that Dartmouth's 11 points had come the hard way as Dartmouth shoved, pushed and buried the Elis all over the field during the first 50 minutes of the contest would have added to the crime committed had Yale defeated the superior Big Green on an official boner.

Johnny Merrill was the first to register in the scoring column for the Indians with a safety on Yale's attempt to punt out of danger. Captain Gordon Bennett was also on the bouncing ball with Merrill for the two early points. To the two openers, Dave Camerer added another pair by the same trick of blocking a Yale punt behind the Eli goal line for a safety to bring the grand total up to four. Then, in the opening minutes of the fourth quarter, backfieldmen Johnny Handrahan and MacLeod reached the decision that the line-men had scored more than enough of the team's tallies and their combined running efforts were rewarded by the first and only Dartmouth touchdown. Ray converted to bring the line's scoring contribution to five and the Indians' total to 11.

Yale's apparently very docile attack then began to function, Gil Humphries to Larry Kelley, for a very noteworthy scoring display. But even when Beckwith kicked the point after touchdown to bring the Yale score to seven, there seemed little or nothing to worry the Dartmouth gathering.

Then like a bolt out of the heaven, Field Judge Reagan's eyes became crossed forcing him to see Freddie Hollingworth interfere illegally with substitute end Hoxton on an Eli pass and he presented the Elis with the ball on the Dartmouth 2-yard line with 30 seconds to go.

Three plays remained on the clock, three plays in which all the masterful football played by Dartmouth during the entire game was to go by the boards in favor of a snap judgment by an official.

However, the Dartmouth line was still to have its last say and those three plays lost Yale exactly ten yards, or a backward progress of approximately three and three-tenths yards per play.

With all due respect to Yale as an opportunist organization, it can be fairly stated that for all-around football, defensive and offensive soundness, Dartmouth made the Elis look like just another ball club when face to face with a unit that was fundamentally well-trained and well-grounded on the essentials of football.

Neither did Dartmouth lose any of its rising national prestige on the following Saturday in winning over Columbia, 20-13, a score that might well have been, 20-0, if the breaks had gone with the Indians. And there's that word breaks again. It seems too bad that a great eleven must be classed as a team that received few breaks, but this is the case. Neither does the repeated claim in three different games render the case less formidable; for it was just one of those seasons that saw Dartmouth reach great heights, but not the top of the mountain worthy of the real ability of the team. We of today know this to be true, but those of tomorrow will not, and hence the stress on breaks in this article.

One of the adverse breaks of the Columbia encounter was another official decision, this one again giving Dartmouth's opponent the ball on the lip of the Indians' goal line. The claim was made that MacLeod had used unnecessary roughness when he warded off the block of a down-the-field Columbia pathfinder, paving the way for the New Yorkers' first six points. A fumble laid the foundation for the second Columbia touchdown and when Westphal passed to his end for the last of Columbia's 13 points, the break proved expensive.

Accordingly the final close score does not begin to tell of the real superiority of the Big Green over Lou Little's Lions. It was Johnny Handrahan through the line for 5, 10, 15, 20 yards all afternoon for this star fullback's topnotch performance of a long and luminous career. MacLeod also dashed hither and yon on long runs to help the cause along. That Dartmouth rolled up a grand total of 304 yards on rushes while Columbia was making but one first down tells the story much better than the score itself; although it must be admitted by even the most ardent admirer of the 1930 football eleven that it never was able to score in keeping with its weekly display of power in the yardage-gained column.

At Ithaca on the next-to-last Saturday of the season the Big Green showed every sign of general weariness and failed during the first 40 minutes to dominate the scene as expected. Between the minutes of 40 to 50 the Indians were winding up, and from 50 to the whistle they let drive a furious attack that reached a seasonal high for offensive power in my humble opinion.

Using three straight power plays, a sweep to the left by Clark playing at left halfback, a sweep to the right by MacLeod playing at right halfback, and a drive through the middle by Fullback Handrahan were the only weapons. So devastating was the blocking, however, that the Dartmouths went the length of the field twice within five minutes to crack out the comfortable margin of 20-6 at the end.

It was also in the Cornell game that "Mutt" Ray climaxed his three seasons of colorful and havoc-raising defensive play with an exhibition of backing up a line that will have to stand as perfection for Dartmouth centers until another Dartmouth pivot man arrives who can pack a harder wallop than a mule and pack it with the same unerring and analytical accuracy.

Going to Palmer Stadium, Dartmouth seemed destined to upset the last of the jinxes that existed on her record books. It was by every appearance the year that Dartmouth was going to end the Princeton supremacy, and an Indian win over the Tigers appeared a certainty. But one more break, this time the toughest of them all, intervened to thwart this last of the Big Green football ambitions. Most discouraging of all, until the last of the unfortunate official decisions robbed them of their goal, the same eleven seniors who had been mainly responsible for the first Yale win viewed the prospects of adding the Princeton achievement as their final gift to Dartmouth football.

This factor made it doubly hard to accept the official ruling of pass interference that pictures have since shown was never the case. Be this as it may, a 13-13 tie was the bitter pill that had to be swallowed, although there is some consolation in knowing definitely that Dartmouth was the actual winner of the game had the play been ruled competently. Thus Johnny Merrill's touchdown on a pass and Joe Kiernan's touchdown through the line won a ball game that we can consider inwardly as won albeit the records will never back us in this contention.

Officially we must say six won, one lost and one tied. That it was not eight wins and no defeats does not detract from the fact that an exceptional eleven represented Dartmouth in the year 1936, an eleven that had everything a great eleven needs plus a remarkable team spirit that alone was enough to recommend it for Dartmouth's top-most rung of athletic fame.

Freshman Football

A SQUAD of more than 100 yearling football players greeted the new freshman coach, Osborne B. Cowles, and his assistants, Bill Hoffman and Herb Stearns, when candidates were called out on September 17. As usual, this large squad was divided into "A" and "B" teams after several weeks of strenuous drills in fundamentals.

The "A's" took on Wentworth Academy on October 3 and smoothly ran up a 20-0 score, Dunlevy, Ingersoll, and Hutchinson each finding the way over the goal. The encounter with the Boston College freshman team found the Dartmouth frosh shaded by a score of 9-0. The playing of Dostal and McElroy in the line and of Weaver in the backfield could not reverse the score.

Coming back into the scoring column with a rush, the freshmen came through with a 20-0 win over New Hampshire '40, and on the following Saturday overcame their traditional rival, Harvard '40, to the tune of 34-6. A fitting climax for the new coach.

The freshman squad was somewhat lighter than the usual run, but this was offset by the punting and running of Hutchinson, the spearhead of the running attack, and by the accurate passing of Webster. Outstanding were the plunging of Dunlevy and Hayden, and the line-play of McElroy and Dostal. Numerous members of this freshman team should see active service on the varsity in the next couple of years.

C. Whit Miller, one of the mainstays of the line at end, was elected captain.

WHEN TOM DENT called out the soccer team last fall, he found one of the strongest and ablest squads of booters Dartmouth has been able to boast of in many a year. There was plenty of power and speed and aggressiveness behind Jack Devlin, peppy captain of the team, which enabled Dartmouth to finish the season with only two losses in seven contests.

In the opening game with Springfield, Dartmouth turned back one of the best soccer teams in the East with a last-minute goal by Marsh Land. Suffering a slight relapse in the next two games, Dartmouth lost a close one to Amherst by a score of 3-2, and Brown came to Hanover to win 2-0. From then on the team got a new hold on the winning column and won the remaining four games on the schedule. On successive days Dartmouth won out over Harvard, 3-1, and M. I. T. by a score of 2-1. In the final two contests, the booters held an unsullied goal while netting 2 goals against Connecticut State and 4 against Fitchburg.

Eric Davidson, stellar fullback, was elected to captain the team next season, and with a strong squad behind him it looks as if the soccer team will have another good season.

COACH DENT's freshman soccer team celebrated its sixth anniversary with an undefeated season. After reducing the squad of eighty-seven men which reported for early practice to a workable nucleus, Coach Dent started rigorous training which molded the inexperienced and raw material into a winning combination. The team showed vast improvement as the season progressed. Their defensive play was exceptionally strong, limiting their opponents to a single goal. This defense can mainly be accounted for by the stellar work of Sample who guarded the goal and who was one of the outstanding men on the team. Along with him must be mentioned Austin, who showed up well as a fullback although he reported as a goalie in the first part of the season. Other men who deserve mention are Rietzell at center, Pellington at right-half, Little at center-half, and Davenport at inside-right.

As for the season itself, on October 17 the frosh met the undefeated and consistently strong Exeter eleven and turned them back with a 1-0 victory. The following week found them winning another close 1-0 victory over Harvard '40. The remaining two games were won quite decisively, Tilton bowed on October 31 to the tune of 3-0, and in the final game of the season New Hampton came up to Hanover only to be repulsed by a 5-goal surge, the final score being 5-1.

COACH HARRY HILLMAN's harriers topped off a season—the most successful in a decade, in which they were defeated in meet competition only by Harvard and New Hampshire in the triangular race—by finishing eleventh in the IC4A championship run in New York.

The cross-country season opened on October 10 when the harriers defeated M. I. T., 20-35. The following Saturday saw the hill and dale boys triumph over the Catamounts on the University of Vermont's campus at Burlington. On October 23 the squad descended on Cambridge for the annual meet with Harvard and New Hampshire. The Wildcats violated all pre-meet dope by finishing ahead of both the Indians and Cantabs, although Stew Whitman broke the tape in first place for Dartmouth.

On October 30 Dartmouth's harriers returned to Cambridge for the annual Harvard meet, which the combined Indian varsity-yearling team won. Dartmouth was paced by Whitman and Hawkes, who finished first and second respectively.

The regular dual-meet season closed with a 16-36 victory over Middlebury. Stew Whitman, Hart Beardsley, Jim Wallace, who was elected captain for next season, and Fred Upton finished in a quadruple tie for first.

COACH HILLMAN'S cross-country team had a good season despite the comparatively short time for practice and the loss of Harold Hillman, who was absent most of the season due to illness.

In the initial meet with Manchester High on October 10, Malaney and Swenson led the yearlings to a 19-35 victory. The following week the Greensters came through again, defeating the Catamounts 24-31. Hawkes, Malaney, and Swenson finished in a dead heat. On October 24 the freshmen met the Harvard and New Hampshire frosh over a four-and-a-half-mile course. Although Hawkes and Swenson again gave Dartmouth first and second places, this was not enough to overcome Harvard's total. The final results were Harvard 31, Dartmouth 41, and New Hampshire 53. Nott Terrace High School came to Hanover to give the frosh their only dual meet loss of the season. Hawkes was again the individual winner, setting the Harvard course record in doing so. The final meet of the year was the Freshman Intercollegiates in New York City. In this heavy competition Captain Hawkes finished second in a large field, aiding the team to take fifth place.

The Season

1936-37

By PATRICK O'SHEEL '37

TEAMS FROM nowhere—that has been Dartmouth's happy fate in football since Earl Blaik took over three years ago. Mr. Blaik is from the West, or at any rate from Dayton, Ohio.

When Osborne Cowles gave up his coaching duties at Teachers College, River Falls, Wisconsin, to direct Dartmouth's court fortunes he had absolutely nothing to lose as far as making a first-season record was concerned. Nobody had any idea that the Big Green basketball quintet was going anywhere or even any conception of how it would get there. Then from a rather complete early-season nowhere, the Indian team hurtled upward in the rankings of the Eastern League race to land finally and convincingly in second place. It was remarkable to the point of being overwhelming; it was unmistakably a feat of something or other. Perhaps it was just the West scoring again.

There is nothing that gives more exquisite pleasure to the coaches, players, and spectators of a sport than to watch an under-dog team usurp the strongholds of the mighty. It is a constant source of wonder no matter what side of the fence you are on; it is a stunning delight if it is your own team that does the scalping. For Osborne Cowles, for the whole court squad, and for the crowds of Indian followers who came to look and stayed to marvel, this 1936-37 basketball season was one of Dartmouth's greatest athletic achievements and an infinite gratification to all concerned.

To begin with Mr. Cowles walked in on a rather discouraging situation, on the face of it. From the third-place, Stark-piloted quintet of the previous year there remained but one regular, the clever Willie Thomas, and a single other letterman, Captain Hal Parachini. Besides these two veterans, there reported to the new coach only three men with any previous varsity experience. They were the seniors Jack Dingle and Don McKinlay, and Hobie Rockwell, a junior. To put some real meat on this skeleton required more from the undefeated freshman team of the last winter than it was at all reasonable to expect. Surely it was a giant question mark.

Secondly, Coach Cowles faced the painstaking task of injecting a new virus into this shapeless squad. All the old system of play was discarded, and the new mentor began to lay the groundwork of a completely different style of offense and defense more or less in accordance with the Western bible of direct, fast passing and cutting, with rapid-fire close-in plays and quick shooting, safeguarded by a close-covering man-to-man defense.

Coach Cowles set to work in earnest. Rollie Bevan's services as trainer were enlisted in the struggle, and that was somewhat of a running start on the right track. Looking down the line, Thomas was the only player certain of a starting berth in prospect of the season's opener, with Captain Parachini not far behind. The strong sophomore representation looked to be the hope for a rounded team, with Joe Batchelder, Bob MacLeod, Joe Cottone, Roger (Moose) Dudis, and Rog Harrison showing considerable promise as green material. Jack Dingle began to make his presence felt, and Bob Reno, football manager for 1937, stepped up from the intramural ranks for a shot at the varsity. It was not an altogether black picture; the squad was bigger, faster, and included more capable shots than was usual in Hanover. But it was a problem of inexperience, a new coaching regime, and a tough schedule. Success would be a matter of whether the formula worked, of how much effort went into the struggle, and of whether there appeared that all-important sustaining spirit.

Cottone

Captain Parachini

Experimentation with plays and players was the rule of the early contests. The opening game with Vermont went to the Green, 34-29. Fitchburg State Teachers College succumbed weakly, 69-14. St. Anselms faltered before the Indians, 37-32, and Vermont dropped the return battle 47-38 in the last contest before the Christmas holidays. Unde-feated but untried, with starting positions still a question mark, the squad left for one of those typical Dartmouth road trips—three games in three nights after having played in Hanover the evening before leaving. The Green lost all three, but Cowles was not out to win—these games were experiments.

Back on the home court the Indians broke their losing streak by overpowering Brown 48-38, but thereafter had a relapse and dropped three more in a row.

The skirmishing along the Eastern Intercollegiate League front began January 9th when Dartmouth invaded the Palestra at the University of Pennsylvania. The Quakers flung a veteran team at the Indians—a team that had finished second the previous winter and one destined for the championship this season—and Dartmouth went away on the short end of a 49-32 score. The Red and Blue five had the best of the going all along, led 22-16 at the intermis-sion, and pulled steadily out in front in the last session. Conversions on 15 out of 20 free throws padded the Quaker score. Bill Thomas set the pace for Dartmouth with nine points. The unlucky 13th brought Providence and a 57-51 defeat to Hanover.

Returning to League warfare, the Cowles' quintet engaged Penn in the return debate January 16th. The In-dians threatened big things in the opening stanza by grab-bing a 13-9 advantage; but once more the attack crumbled in the last half as Penn applied the pressure to win in the last seven minutes, 34-22. Co-Captain Fran Murray guarded Thomas to a no-floor-goal standstill while collecting nine markers on his own account. The load was too much for the other Indians to handle. The victory sent Penn to the top of the League and Dartmouth into the cellar, just above Cornell.

During the exam-period lay-off the squad had time to get its breath, work out some glaring flaws, and polish up the new system in general. The lineup was fairly settled by this time. Thomas was at one forward; Dingle or Cottone at the other; Dudis or Reno or Dingle took turns at center; and Batchelder, MacLeod and Parachini handled the backcourt assignments. When the team returned to the courts they flattened Tufts by a 63-21 score, then turned to the business of ten remaining League games.

The efforts of the last two months began to bear fruit—and exactly in season—when Yale came to face the Big Green before a capacity Winter Carnival throng. The Indians gave the Elis a thorough going over, 35-25, and really looked like a great team doing it. It was one of the most perfectly played games ever seen in Hanover. Willie Thomas romped with a total of 16 points for the evening.

February 10th found the team at Harvard where Wes Fesler really found a winning team—after all these years—but which was still not quite good enough. Dartmouth won in a walk, 44-31, as team play continued to mark the work of Captain Hal Parachini and his mates. Joe Batchelder led the scoring lists with 11 points, but Thomas and Cottone each had ten, MacLeod got eight, and Dingle sank five. Thomas kept up his brilliant work in setting up all kinds of scoring plays, and this win shoved the Indians up to a third-place tie in the League ranking.

The charm was broken at New Haven February 13th when Yale came roaring back from an 18-6 half-time deficit to nip a die-hard Green quintet in the final seconds, 40-37. Thomas continued to click off his amazing string with 12 more points.

Dartmouth continued to be the League's surprise package by whaling the favored Harvards in the return match February 17th. The margin this time was 40-29. With Thomas again leading with 13 counters, the attack hung together with reassuring strength at all positions. This young club was proving it had the stuff that thrills are made of.

Thomas, Dingle, and Cottone threw in 34 of Dartmouth's total against Cornell as the high-scoring Indians bumped the invaders, 51-37. The victory shot the Cowles five up into a second-place deadlock in the League race.

The Big Green kept fast company with a rampant Columbia Lion on February 22, and managed to keep one jump ahead to win a pitched battle that left the crowd

MacLeod

Dingle

wilted at the end, 47-45. Pandemonium reigned throughout the contest as 39 fouls were called. Joe Cottone had a good night as he and Thomas had 11 points each. Having thus gained second place in the pennant chase, the team lost it again when the return visit to Columbia four days later found the Green lacking, 45-43. Mostly, the Indians were lacking the services of Willie Thomas who was kept out of part of the game by illness. At that he got 11 points. Cottone showed the way with 16 markers as the lead changed hands often in a ding-dong battle.

At Princeton the next night, Dartmouth had just enough left to hang on till the final whistle and stop the Tigers by a 35-34 margin. Cottone's late-game shot proved to be the winning edge, as Thomas got only four points. Bob MacLeod rose to the heights of defensive play by blanking the Princeton ace, Vruwink.

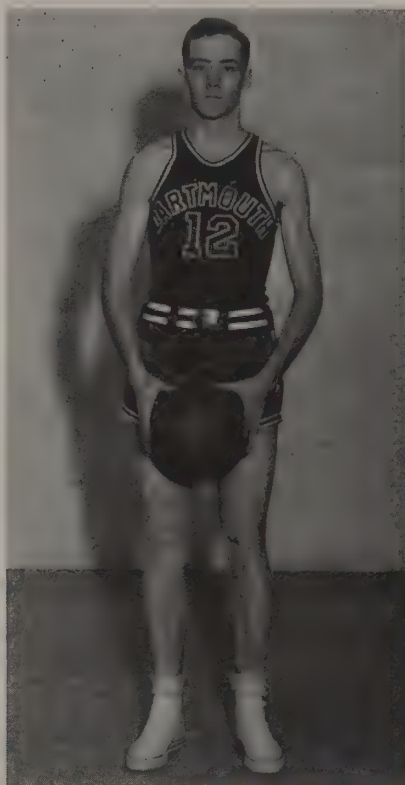

Seniors Captain Hal Parachini, Johnny Dingle and Don McKinlay made their final home appearance against Princeton March 6th, and received a long ovation from the crowd. Their efforts strengthened Dartmouth's hold on second place in the League standings, the Tigers again bowing, 46-37. Cottone had 15 points.

The Indians closed their League schedule against Cornell March 8th. Having bid nothing, the Big Green made a little slam by earning second place behind Penn in the final circuit standings with a 52-49 overtime victory. Cottone knotted the count at the end of the regulation time, and in the extra session shots by Cottone, Dudis and finally by Batchelder topped a Cornell advantage to tell the tale. Willie Thomas closed his remarkable season with 18 points and Batchelder collected 13. Foertsch of the Ithacans rang up 26.

The post-season activities found Bill Thomas selected as all-League forward for the second year in a row on both the coaches' and the sportswriters' polls. Honorable mention was accorded Bob MacLeod and Joe Batchelder. Thomas also placed third in the individual scoring race behind Foertsch and O'Brien. He amassed 126 points, and MacLeod, Batchelder, Dingle, and Cottone were high up on the lists—a testimony to a high calibre of team play that made the Green the highest scoring quintet in the League.

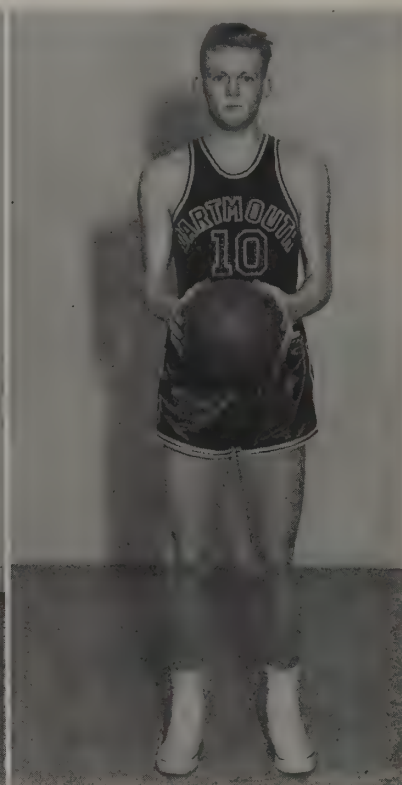

To the popular Osborne Cowles and his whole squad of industrious talent, their own success is their full congratulation. Their story is the most interesting that athletic competition can tell—they came from nowhere. The grand fighting spirit of this team can be no better exemplified than in the leadership of Captain Hal Parachini, who was forced to play only a minor role in the games as younger men came in to fit the Cowles building process. Yet his leadership was a fine one, and the force of it carried all down the ranks of one of the teams Dartmouth will most warmly remember.

Freshman Basketball

THE 1937 season was a successful one for the freshman basketball team, which won nine games from opponents of various calibre and lost but one game, its first defeat in several years. In the opening game, the freshmen found themselves hard pressed by Red Rolfe's team from Concord Business College but came through with a 32-29 win. Almost the entire squad saw action against the weak Kimball Union quintet. Clark School offered unexpected strength, losing to the Dartmouth team by a narrow margin. The first game out of town brought defeat by Montpelier Seminary, who topped the unorganized freshmen 19-13. The next night saw a comeback win over Spaulding High at Barre, Vt. In the following encounter New Hampton was unable to threaten the lead of a fast and accurate freshman team, which conquered the visitors 49-30. The next victim was an inferior five from St. Johnsbury. Travelling to Providence, the Green showed top form against the Brown '40 team and brought home a 44-24 victory. In an evenly matched contest with the Harvard Freshmen, traditional rivals, the 1940 group achieved a 28-26 triumph for Dartmouth. The freshmen concluded the season by way of a return match with Montpelier and in an impressive display of power firmly established their superiority over the Vermonters.

The Season — 1936-37

By LYNN BROWN '37

REREADING THE hopeful accounts which preceded the hockey season, thinking back to the December attitude of optimism which prevailed on the campus, and looking at the final record of Coach Herb Gill's sextet, provides a sorry contrast. For if ever a Dartmouth team failed to live up to expectations, failed to fulfill the standards of its followers not merely in its play but in its attitude of sportsmanship, the 1936-37 hockey team was that team.

Not that the situation in December was unclouded. Capt. Paul Guibord, who had provided the majority of the scoring punch over three seasons, had graduated; Vin Fitzpatrick, one of the Quadrangular League's outstanding defensemen had graduated; and Junie Allen, Red Riley, Red O'Hare, and Jay Wolfe had all also graduated.

But despite these losses, the optimism which characterized the campus was neither undue or ill-founded. There was the nucleus of a strong attack in Dick Lewis and Fud Mather; there was Jack Costello, Capt. Les Barrett, and Jack Devlin. There was the team of Bennett and Otis for defense, and there was Bob Faegre, who had behind him a season's experience in the nets.

Added to this foundation of veterans, there was a strong freshman sextet which would be coming up as sophomores. Goding threatened to displace Faegre at goal. Feeley and Allen were a fine defensive combination. Clark, Walsh, and Foster had proven themselves a strong line.

It was agreed, by the sportswriters, by the fans, and by the counter-men in Allen's, that Dartmouth had better hockey material than it had had since 1934.

Four months later, totalling up the record, one could find that this material, shaped into a team, had won 12 of 25 games for a less than .500 average, had finished sixth in the newly formed International Intercollegiate Ice Hockey League, and had placed second in the Quadrangular League. Lest this last figure mislead, it should be said that the Quadrangular League, save for Harvard, was weak as milk-toast, and it took the Indians but three victories to assure them second place.

Coach Gill and Captain Barrett

To explain the reason, or reasons, for such a slump from paper form is not easy. The story is involved. But in a review of the season, at least some of those reasons may be found.

To say that the team opened with a bang is unfair, for although the team was undefeated in its first four games, all played before the Christmas holidays, its opponents were hardly of a calibre to extend the Indians. Nevertheless, opening with the veteran line of Lewis, Mather, and Costello, the Big Green got off to a clean start with well-made victories over the Quebec Olympics, the

Feeley

Otis

Bennett

Columbia Lions, the Millville Bruins, and St. Anselms.

The first crack in the team appeared during the Christmas trip, a gruelling itinerary contributing the causes. Opening with its appearance in Boston, where it lost to an ex-Dartmouth-manned Boston Olympic team by a 5-1 score, the Green six headed West and stopped off en route in Detroit. There, facing a strong Holzbaugh-Ford hockey club, champions of the Michigan Ontario League, Dartmouth took a shellacking of 15-4 in a game that was better played than the score indicates.

A two-game series with Minnesota also proved heartbreaking, as strange ice, and weariness, contributed to defeats of 2-0 and 3-1, with both teams playing fine hockey.

From Minnesota the team trekked back to Rye, N. Y., for its annual stand. Here Dartmouth easily disposed of Colgate and Williams, but ran into trouble against Montreal. Montreal, playing hockey with the strength, speed, and finesse always expected of clubs from north of the border, proved itself too strong a team for the Indians and overcame an early 3-1 lead to defeat Dartmouth 6-4 in a hectic contest.

Only one night later the schedule called for the Green to make its debut in the Three-I league, when Toronto invaded Davis Rink on January 5. Tired and worn from the Christmas trip, the Indians were in no condition to face the Canadians and Toronto's smooth attack rolled up an early lead which Dartmouth's incoherent efforts were unable to contest. The result was a 10-1 shellacking.

Already the hockey situation was unpleasant, but the following week-end the team came back to play brilliantly against the best Harvard club in years, holding the Crimson for two and a half periods before Ford broke loose to tally twice in the final seven minutes and give Harvard the victory. Boston College was defeated 5-3 during the next week, and Yale scored its overtime victory in New Haven on the following Saturday.

Middlebury was defeated the following week, and then Carnival and catastrophe hit the squad at the same time. For more than four years, Dartmouth had been undefeated in League competition in the Davis Rink, but the Harvard invasion for the annual festivities threatened to test this jinx. And after the most depressing of games, a game in which Dartmouth was outguessed, outskated, and outfought, the jinx was broken and Harvard was a 14-4 winner. Seniors, unaccustomed to the thought of Dartmouth's losing at home, left the rink completely flustered.

That something was wrong in the hockey woodpile had been clear for a long time. After the Harvard game, it stood out like a sore thumb. For the Indian sextet was playing far below its capabilities, rising occasionally to brilliant heights, and then slumping off suddenly. And to aggravate the situation, rumors of "what was wrong with the hockey team"—99 per cent of which were untrue or ill-founded or mistaken or prejudiced—were drifting about the campus like blown snow.

Primarily, the trouble seems to have been psychological. Between Coach Gill and his squad there were differences of opinion on fundamentals of the game. There was tension, caused by Gill's sincere, but driving, methods of practice. And there was further tension, caused by the flagrant breaches of training in which a small part of the squad indulged.

With these physical differences as a basis, there arose between Coach Gill and the squad an unpleasantness that was largely psychological. Neither party could get along with the other, and between the two there was constant conflict. The resolution of the difficulty came when on February 10 Gill handed in his resignation to the Athletic Council, providing that he should lay down the reins at the close of the season.

Relieved of the tension which had been a major contributing factor in their mishaps, the Indians did an about face the following week-end. True, they lost to Queens 2-0, but in losing they played one of the best games of the entire season, and it was evident that the hockey six was again out to win, rejoining the lists as a Dartmouth team imbued with a Dartmouth spirit. And two days later they broke into the win column with their first Quadrangular League victory, defeating Yale 4-1 in a game that did much to restore the confidence of their followers.

A Canadian invasion, in which the Indians met Montreal and undefeated McGill, brought two losses but these were not unexpected. The loss to Boston University was, however, a surprise, but victory over a strong Brown sextet in Providence showed that the Indians were back on the winning trail.

And so they were, as they proved in their final game, in which they defeated Princeton on the Hobey Baker Arena, to gain second place in the League and wind up a season which was largely disappointing but not entirely devoid of high-spots.

What next season will bring is uncertain, and as yet no successor to the post of hockey coach has been named. But there is a growing conviction, and one justified, that next season should see the beginnings of a better hockey record, and that a new coach, and a new squad have before them a task of reviving hockey and redeeming the past season which can be faced and met squarely—with success in the offing.

The losses by graduation will be heavy, with Costello, Capt. Barrett, Bennett, Otis, and Devlin all finishing their hockey careers. It will mean replacements, and to replace these men will not be the easiest of tasks. But with a disastrous season behind it, the team can wipe off the slate and start fresh, with its goal the reestablishing of Dartmouth hockey in the minds and hearts of Dartmouth men.

Freshman Hockey

GAINING VALUABLE experience from decisive victories over New Hampton and Tilton, the freshman hockey team went to New Haven on January 16 to play the Yale freshmen. Although Dartmouth lost 4-1, it was a hard-fought and highly spirited game. The Yale team did not break into the lead until the third period, when Kite, a Yale center, was given and made a free shot against McCaffrey, Dartmouth goalie and captain. Cross made the only Dartmouth score, while McCaffrey excelled in the net.

After the examination period, the freshmen downed Clark School, 6-4. Hampered by Clark's 2-point lead in the first period, the team tied the score in the second. Sullivan and Snow scored in the third period to clinch the game.

On Saturday of Carnival the freshmen went to St. Paul's where they were beaten by a much stronger club. Sullivan scored the only Dartmouth goal. On the following Monday, the frosh were defeated by Hebron 9-2. Conant scored the two Dartmouth goals. Four days later, however, the entire squad participated to overwhelm Nichols 8-0. The freshmen won over the Stockbridge Club in a closely fought battle. With 13 seconds to go, Snow scored the goal that won the game. The freshmen, in the last game of the season, met a much stronger Tilton team than had appeared in January. The freshmen won, however, 4-3, after a hard-fought battle.

Varsity Swimming

WITH THE resumption of the Eastern Intercollegiate Swimming League this year, the varsity team found the quality of competition of the best. The net result of the season was three wins and six losses, with two wins and four losses in the league giving Dartmouth fifth place. This record, however, does not justly tell the story of the quality of the competition which the team displayed, for every meet and every race was fought to the finish. The Princeton, Penn, Army and Brown meets were all lost by the slim margin of the 400-yard relay.

Another proof of the quality of the swimming this year is the long list of records turned in by the members of the team. Ed White once again lowered his own College mark and set a new pool record at 2:31 in the breaststroke. Bud Stein broke the College record in the backstroke formerly held by Capt. Frank Young. In the medley relay, swum by Sandy Mills, Ed White, and Clark Fletcher, the College mark was lowered three times during the season. The 400-yard relay pool and College records were broken by the team composed of Clark Fletcher, Jack Goldman, Jim Whitcomb, and Bob Cushman.

The Columbia meet at the close of the season was the outstanding meet of the year. Each man surpassed himself and turned in such a fine performance that the final score was 52 to 23.

Freshman Swimming

THE FRESHMAN swimming team this year was unsuccessful insofar as victories were concerned, but it did reveal some very promising material for Coach Hazelton's varsity squad next year. They were denied victory several times by close margins, but lady luck failed to shine on them once. Amidst the poor season a real star was uncovered in the person of Art Ostrander.

At Exeter for the first meet of the season, the host team won by the score of 43-23. In this meet Ostrander beat the Dartmouth freshmen record for the 200-yard free style. His time was 2:08.8. Andover was host to the freshmen in their second meet and turned back the '40 swimmers 40-26. Ostrander was by far the outstanding star of the day by virtue of his winning both the 100- and 200-yard free style events. He swam the 100 in the time of 55.4 for a new freshman record. Deerfield, too, turned back the hapless freshmen to the tune of 38-28. Art Ostrander in this meet broke his own record for the 200 in the time of 2:08.

Brown '40 on March 1 provided the competition in what proved to be the closest meet of the season. Had it not been for the illness of Ostrander the score might have been different for the final total found Dartmouth behind by only three points. The score: 39-36. The last meet on the schedule was held in Hanover on March 6 and the Harvard freshmen traveled back to Cambridge on the long end of a 53-21 score. Ostrander, however, set two college records, winning the 220-yard free style in 2:17.8 and the 440 in 5:03.8, breaking the college record in the latter by more than 20 seconds.

Outstanding besides Ostrander were Dyer in the dive and Don Cobb in the dashes. Francis L'Engle who set a 100-yard breaststroke record in the first meet of the season had to retire because of sickness. Dyer, Cobb and Ostrander should prove valuable assets to Coach Hazelton's varsity next year.

Varsity Gym

AT THE beginning of the 1937 season, Coach Pat Kaney was faced with the problem of building a gym team around one letter man and but one other man who had seen varsity competition. With only Captain Dave Herrmann on the side horse and Bob Pollack on the parallel bars remaining from last year's team, prospects were fairly lean. However, with these men as a nucleus, a number of juniors who had not seen service before, and a few promising sophomores he constructed a team which met the five other schools of the Eastern Intercollegiate Gymnastic League.

Rod Washburn and John Scotford on the horizontal bar, George Neiley on the side horse, Rollie Linscott, Ted Thorne, Art Ide, and Bob Elkins on the rings, Chuck Farnum and Thorne in the tumbling, and Linscott, Jim Mathes, and Don Lieber in the rope-climb were the newcomers on the team. After a slow start early in the season, Captain Herrmann finally found himself and, among the cream of the country's gymnasts, tied for fourth place in his event at the Intercollegiates held in Hanover. Linscott, Pollack, Washburn and Scotford also competed.

After a lapse of twelve years, Dartmouth entertained the E. I. G. L. and its guests at Hanover in the Annual Individual Championships on March 20. In addition to the colleges in the league, Springfield College and the Universities of Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska, and South Carolina all sent entries. The total of sixty-four competitors—the best collegiate gymnasts in the country—gave an exhibition that Hanover will not forget for a long time.

With only one man on the team who will graduate this June, the team of inexperienced men who started this season will return next season considerably stronger in experience and well fortified by some promising freshman material.

The Season

By PATRICK O'SHEEL '37

THERE IS no more sacred doctrine in the world of sporting venture than the threadbare axiom that—once the old ball game has begun—"anything can happen." The fact that it usually does happen accounts for the continuance of athletic competition, the erection of stadia, the high mortality rate among sports writers, the existence of both timid and violent sports fans, and the high salaries of coaches who can stand the gaff. The coaches—who would sell their souls to know—naturally become the most ardent and thorough advocates of the philosophy. This is one thing a good coach has never been known to forget.

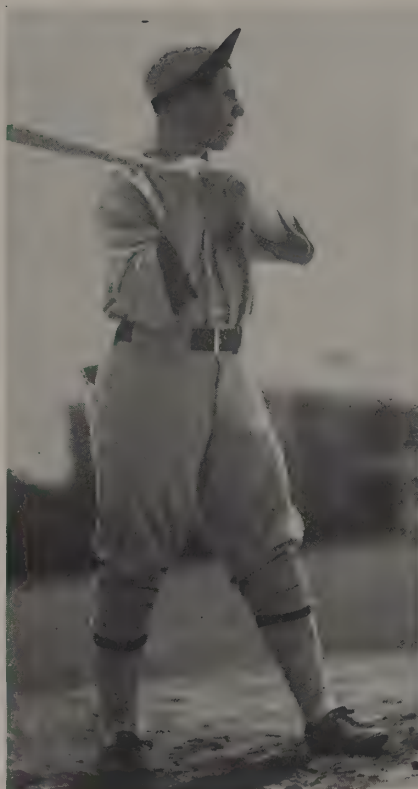

At that, it must have been a strain on big Jeff Tesreau when things started happening all over the lot last spring. What was wrong with the picture? The Indians had lifted the flag in 1935 by winning a record total of 11 out of 12, and the exact same club was again on hand save for a first baseman and catcher. Captain Olson, victor in nine League games the previous spring and holder of all the major pitching records of the circuit, had better-than-ever reserves in Ted Bruce and Joe Jayne. The outfield was a pleasant sight—Phil Clark, Eddie Casey, and Bill Hart all over again. Ray Ratajczak and Junie Allen repeated the old keystone combination. Mutt Ray solved the problem at first, and the diminutive fire-top, Bill Pounder, looked aces at third. When Joe Kiernan took up the big mitt, Dartmouth was due for new strength behind the bat. Just give this bunch a bat and ball and a few old gloves and warn the rest of the clubs to pin back their ears—a cinch.

Coach "Jeff" Tesreau

But spring is never so late but what it can be later in Hanover. And so it went; fearful weather, colds, poor physical condition, sore arms, lack of practice. And so a supposedly heavy-hitting, clean-fielding team of Dartmouth veterans, jammed full of good pitchers and boasting the best coaching, kept missing the mark in first skirmishes. That the goods were really there came to light at long last when the Indians hit stride after the Columbia game to blaze through the last seven games unscathed, walloping League-leading Harvard twice, Cornell ditto, and Penn once to earn a tie with the Cantabs for their own championship. But it was close; and the winning streak seemed more of a miracle than the early collapse.

Winning three out of four on the southern trip, the Green nine opened its northern campaign against Holy Cross in much-ballyhooed affair. The Crusaders won after a three-hour carnival of 29 hits, seven errors, and a parade of seven pitchers who needed practice, 12-11. The Indians took batting honors with 17 hits to an even dozen for the Crusaders, and held an 11-7 lead going into the last of the eighth, but Ted Bruce passed three men and hit another during the five-run uprising which gave Holy Cross the game. During the five innings he worked, Captain Ted Olson was the victim of poor defensive support by his teammates.

Casey

Captain Olson

Despite a sore arm, big Ted Olson gave up seven hits and fanned seven to beat Yale, 3-1, in the opener on April 25. Tesreau's trick double steal, two double plays, and the hitting of Tauno Frigard, senior and new outfield find, also featured the game. Olson pitched brilliantly whenever Yale threatened the three-run lead Dartmouth established in the fourth inning. In the big fourth Frigard's double scored Ratajczak, and the tow-headed outfielder scored a minute later when Jeff Tesreau gave the signal for a double steal which Yale watched open-mouthed.

Two days later Penn got a three-run jump in the first frame and beat Jayne, 4-3. Left-hander Ben Lane finished for Dartmouth. The Indians got back a run in the fourth, another in the seventh, and had a chance to tie it up in the eighth when Ray tripled, Pounder singled, and Hauze contributed a two-base wild throw. However, with Pounder on third and none out, Allen fanned, Kiernan lined out to third, and pinch-hitter Longley grounded out.

Dartmouth 8, Harvard 6

Hanover on May 2. His mates gave him four runs in the first and the rest was easy in spite of six Green errors. Dartmouth won, 9-3. Ratajczak, Frigard, Ray and Kiernan featured the Big Green fireworks, producing most of Dartmouth's ten safeties. The final Green run was made in the eighth when Hart slid safely across the plate on one of Dartmouth's famous double steals.

At Princeton on May 9, Olson fanned 10 to take his third scalp in the first game of a double-header. Ratajczak tied up the game in the seventh and Hart won it with a ninth-inning home run, 5-4. The Tigers turned the score around in the nightcap against Jayne and Bruce. The Big Green got only four hits, one a circuit drive by Ratajczak. Dick Bell, on the mound for the Tigers, did not allow a single Dartmouth batter to reach first after the fourth inning.

In the fourteen innings of the Columbia twin-bill shakedown on May 16, Dartmouth managed to strand 17 men on the paths—not counting four that were picked off—and bowed twice, 5-3 and 5-2. Barabas sent Olson to his first defeat when he cleared the bases with two on in the last of the opener. Joe Kiernan was taken seriously ill with pneumonia in New York, leaving the catching burden to Brad Jenkins. The season and Dartmouth's championship hopes were more than half shot. Mr. Barabas was a thorn in Dartmouth's side all afternoon, getting five hits and three walks in eight trips to the plate, and scoring or batting in four runs in the opener and two in the second game. Bruce started on the mound in the second game and pitched good ball until Columbia's three-run surge in the seventh. Junie Allen's homer in the second produced one of Dartmouth's two runs.

Pennant-bound Harvard, unbeaten in six games, came to town May 20. League-leading pitchers Olson and Ingalls paced each other until a Dartmouth uprising in the eighth, capped by Hart's two-base Texas leaguer, gave the Green star the verdict, 8-6. Ratajczak made it certain with a brilliant unassisted double play in the ninth. Ted Olson received credit for his fourth League victory although he was removed in the eighth for a pinch-hitter. After the lead had seen-sawed about for seven innings, Harvard came to bat in the eighth on the short end of a 5-3 score. A walk, a hit batter, a wild pitch, and Sullivan's long triple sent in three runs to put the Crimson ahead. In Dartmouth's half, however, four walks by Ingalls forced across the tying run, and Hart's double sent in the added pair that settled the contest.

Hart

Ted Bruce, fully recovered from the grippe, made it two straight for the Indians by holding Penn, 9-2, on May 22. The Tesreau strategy capitalized eight hits while three double plays kept the Quakers in check. Red Pounder's homer with two on in the first inning started the assault which was continued in the second inning for three more tallies and in the sixth for a third trio of runs. Penn outhit Dartmouth, 9 to 8, but Bruce was at his best with men on the bases. Still pursuing a mathematical chance to win the flag, the Dartmouth squad faced the giant task of meeting Harvard at Cambridge, Cornell at Ithaca, and Cornell at Hanover on June 11, 12, and 13.

Ted Olson pitched his final college game against Harvard and beat them for the fourth time in two years, 4-2. Ratajczak chipped in with a home run and Johnny Donovan, new IC4A hurdles king, joined the ball forces to play first and contribute three bingles. Joe Jayne and Ted Bruce hurled Dartmouth to a pair of 8-4 wins over Cornell to close the Green record at 8 wins and 4 losses in League play.

Harvard, needing one victory to clinch the crown, dropped its last two games with Yale to tie with Dartmouth for the League leadership. The final records of the League found Olson again the leading pitcher with five victories and a lone defeat. He also led in innings pitched, strikeouts, and gave the low mark of ten walks—leaving all his old records untouched. The Green team led with most chances, 12 double plays, and fielding average, and placed second to Harvard in batting. Frigard, Ratajczak, Pounder, and Hart hit .300 or better, and a key to Tesreau success is in the fact that these four men had a total of 19 sacrifice hits as against only 29 for the other 20 men who hit above .300.

When the scene faded, Olson and Ratajczak got All-League curtain calls and Olson was nabbed by the Red Sox even as Ratajczak was elected captain for 1937. Praise enough for this Dartmouth team is its record of recovery from an early handicap to stage a garrison finish—five straight—and cling grimly to its title as the East's best baseball team.

Freshman Baseball

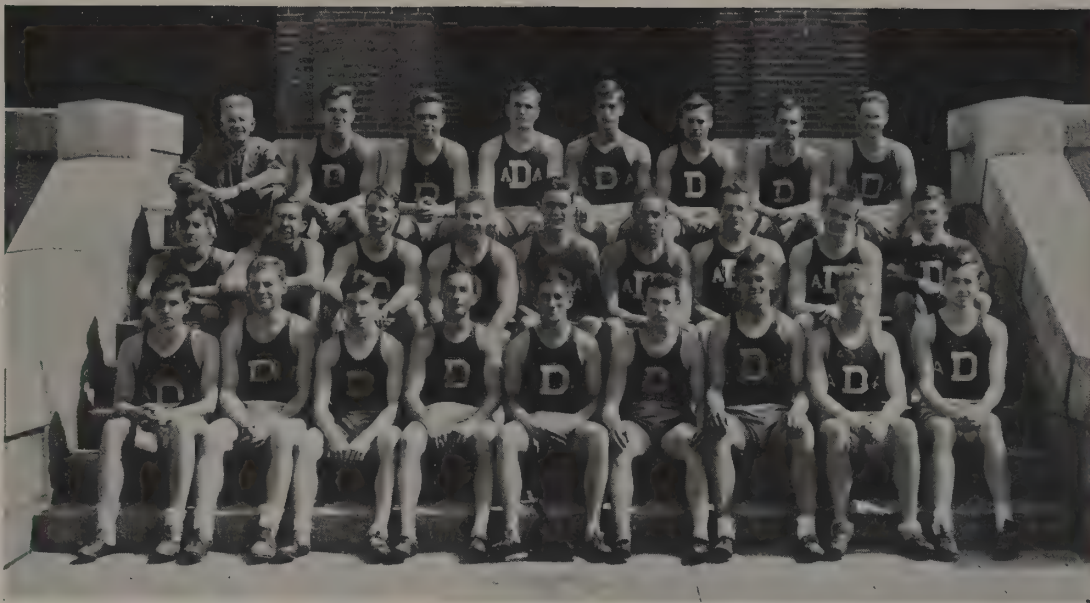

THE 1939 baseball team had only a fair season, showing at various times flashes of brilliancy and at other times an inability to take advantage of the openings which presented themselves. This lack of power in the pinches resulted in the loss of several games which might well have been won by either team, as far as the general play was concerned.

Despite this inconsistency, the 1939 team did produce several individual stars who will undoubtedly be of great value to the varsity. Bud McLaughlin and George Hanna were the outstanding stars of the team. However, the play of co-captains Urban and Woodman, the former behind the plate and the latter at third base, in addition to Ossie Linden's work at first, was a great factor in improving the team work and adding to the power at bat and in the field. The pitching of Ken Weidaw and Bud Clifford showed promise of keeping up Dartmouth's traditional excellence in this department.

After a victory in its opening game with Hanover High, the team traveled to Keene on Green Key week-end, losing by a 5-4 score. Here the freshmen showed a definite lack of experience in playing together, perhaps due to the small amount of outdoor practice they had been able to hold prior to the opening of the season. Traveling to Chestnut Hill for a game with the Boston College freshmen, the team lost by a 7-1 score. In their next game with Exeter, however, the freshmen began to hit their stride. This game marked a definite improvement in play, and in their following games the 1939 team was very successful. The Exeter game was won by a score of 6-0 and the final game of the season showed the potential power of the team coming to the surface. At Burlington the Dartmouth freshmen defeated the Vermont yearlings by a 13-1 score. With this overwhelming victory as a high mark of the season, Dartmouth fans can look back on a team which showed steady improvement from the beginning of the season and which at the end was a sterling representative of the college.

The Season

By LYNN BROWN '37

NOT ALONG-THE-LINE strength, but individual performances, set the stage for the 1936 track season. Yet, despite this lack of all-around power, the 1936 season—viewed in the after-light of almost a full year—appears to have marked the beginning of what promises to be a renaissance of Dartmouth track.

The story of Dartmouth's rebirth on the cinders is partially told in terms of simple statistics, statistics that show how the Indians won five of six dual meets and placed third in both the Heptagonal and IC4A games. But behind those statistics is a larger story, only the highlights of which can be told here.

The indoor season, which saw a Dartmouth team entered in but two of the many meets run over eastern boards, gave little promise of the record which the team was to make during the spring. Not until the annual Southern trip, when the Indians marched through the South to a perfect record amid the "ohs" and "ahs" of sports-writers, did the college at large gain an inkling of the fact that track was to regain its rightful position in the Dartmouth sports heirarchy.

And as the Southern trip focussed the attention of the college on track as a sport, so it focussed the attention of the college on the three individual performers who, of all Coach Harry Hillman's charges, were to do the most towards pushing Dartmouth ahead on the cinders. For to three men, Tony Geniawicz and Johnny Hoffstetter of the Class of '37 and Jack Donovan of the Class of '38, must go much of the credit.

Coach Hillman

Where they are concerned there are many highlights. There is Hoffstetter's record in the 440-yard dash of 47.8 seconds . . . Donovan's 23.9 seconds performance in the 220-yard low hurdles, which shattered Monty Wells' record by two-tenths of a second. . . . Geniawicz's indoor and outdoor IC4A championships in the shot-put, and a similar championship in the Heptagonal games where he set a new meet mark. . . . Hoffstetter's two firsts against Harvard, where he doubled successfully in the 400 and 800 meter runs . . . and Donovan's double hurdle victory in the IC4A, which meant that Harry Hillman, who had

Johnston

Geniawicz

Beardsley

Ballantyne

King

Watson

coached Earl Thompson to the same performance 15 years earlier, had trained the first hurdler since that time to duplicate Thompson's feat.

There are other highlights, too, contributed by other members of a team that saw its chance to increase the prestige of Dartmouth in track circles and took that opportunity. In the Heptagonal Games there was a double relay victory Johnny Johnson, running anchor after Warren King, Bob Button, and Ken Lynch, fought his way to the tape to give the Indians a victory in the 400-meter relay and in the 1600-meter relay Dartmouth was again a winner, as the team of Marsh Roper, Don Sutherland, Capt. Lane Donovan, and Hoffstetter defeated Princeton, in a thrilling contest that saw Hoffstetter make up a 9-yard deficit and pull out in front to win going away.

There are memories, too, of Park Johnston's discus heave at North Carolina, where he twirled the heavy platter with the best toss of his career to take first place and enable the Green trackmen to sweep the event of Stew Whitman's victory over Playfair of Harvard in the 3000-meter run in the dual meet at Hanover and of King's final leap in the broad jump, which gave Dartmouth the necessary points to assure its winning the Holy Cross contest.

But track victories are not won alone on outstanding performances. If any proof of that statement is needed, one can point to the meet with Duke, where Dartmouth and Duke each gained seven firsts, each gained seven seconds, but where the Indians gained $7\frac{1}{2}$ thirds to $6\frac{1}{2}$ for the Carolinians to win by $\frac{1}{2}$ point. When the going is hard, in track as in every other sport, it is the unsung performers who pick up a needed point here, or a second or third there, that make the difference.

So it is that when one looks at the record and sees the list of opponents whom Dartmouth bested, when one sees William and Mary, and Duke, and North Carolina, and Holy Cross, and Colgate, one must remember those men who never make headlines but make, in a very real sense, a team.

One thinks then of Watson in the hurdles, always just a shade behind Donovan and of Mitchell of Brister and of Wharton in the pole vault of Cuffe and of Eldridge and of Ferris in the high jump of Dwyer and Johnston in the discuss of Thomas and of Remington in the javelin of Lynch and Johnson and Button in the dashes of Sutherland in the half and of Lane Donovan in the quarter.

And, going behind these men, behind the team, one thinks of Harry Hillman. For Harry Hillman is the spirit behind Dartmouth track. An Olympic hurdler himself, he has developed a line of great hurdlers. Holder, with Pennsylvania's Lawson Robertson, of the three-legged record of 11 seconds for the 100-yard dash, he has not developed three-legged runners, but he has taught to his men the coordination and the technique which makes for fine performance as only a great coach can teach it.

Through the ups and downs of a long coaching career, Hillman has kept fresh his competitive spirit, and has imbued his teams with that spirit. And now, as Dartmouth stands on the track, with a fine season behind it and finer prospects ahead, it is well to glance back at Harry, standing there quietly doing his job, and nod one's head in token of the realization and appreciation that Dartmouth's regained prestige in track and field can be laid to his doorstep.

ONE OF the strongest teams in the past several years started the season by defeating Harvard, Yale, and Cornell in the mile relay in the first Quadrangular Meet at the Boston Garden. A well-balanced team composed of Sullivan, Kwis, Rohde, and Foster won the first heat from Yale and defeated Cornell in a close final with a time of 3:34.0. Later Rohde and Sullivan placed third and fourth respectively in the fifty-yard dash.

Offsetting the strong Nott Terrace runners, Dartmouth's well-balanced strength in the field resulted in a win of 74¹/₂ to 42²/₃. Bailey and Dyer tied in the pole-vault to set a new record. The following meet with the New Hampshire freshmen proved to be easy, with Dartmouth '39 taking a large share of the first and second places to win by the wide margin of 85 to 41. Two weeks later a strong Andover team, having already defeated Harvard '39 and Yale '39, nosed out Dartmouth by a score of 65 to 60, with McLanghoy of Andover winning three firsts.

The high point-scorers of the season were led by Captain Jud Foster, who ran undefeated in the 440, placed second in the 220 against Nott Terrace, and second in the half-mile against Andover. Bailey and Dyer outjumped all opponents in the pole-vault, both setting a record of 12 feet 6 inches. Hammel in the high jump, Rohde in the dashes, MacDonald in the broadjump, and Webster in the high and low hurdles were also point scorers.

IN SPITE of the wishes of the tennis team, the Hanover winter lingered on. After playing outdoors for several days the team opened the season by losing to Harvard, 8-1. Errors due principally to lack of practice proved too costly in this first match. A practice match with Longwood Cricket Club the next day found all members of the team hitting more consistently, with the result that the team registered an 8-1 victory.

After a week of intensive practice the team set out on its annual spring trip. The first victory was scored over M. I. T., 9-0, on the windswept courts along the Charles. The following day Dartmouth defeated Williams, 7-2, and the next day defeated Army, 6-3.

While the rest of the team returned to Hanover for several days, Guibord and Anderson remained at Middletown, Conn., to compete in the New England Intercollegiate Championships. Guibord won the singles championship from Winston of Amherst in a match made very difficult for both players by the violent wind which swept the court. Guibord and Anderson then made a clean sweep of the tournament by winning the doubles title.

Immediately after finishing their doubles match Guibord and Anderson joined the rest of the team at New Haven. There Dartmouth lost a close match to Yale by the score of 5-4. The team then moved to New York where they defeated Columbia 7-2. The season ended with a 7-2 defeat by the strong Princeton team.

LED BY Bill Harty, who succeeded his brother Phil as captain, the freshman tennis team had the most successful season in its history, sweeping all five matches on the schedule. Three of the best prep school teams in New England—Choate, Exeter, and Andover—fell before Coach Herb Gill's yearlings by the narrow margin of 5 to 4. The Choate match was the biggest upset in many years of prep school and college freshman tennis. With the exception of losses to Lawrenceville, with the nationally famous Frank Parker, Choate had not been defeated since Frank Shields and Ellsworth Vines played for Roxbury ten years ago.

The season opened with an easy victory over the Brown freshmen, Avery and Davidson, in the doubles, suffering the only defeat. At Choate the following day, the first three singles matches were dropped, and the number one doubles, during which Harty and Foster had the former boys' champions, Low and Daniels, at match point twice. Dartmouth took the remaining matches over stiff opposition to win.

On May 16, at Exeter, another close one was pulled out of the fire, avenging the five to four defeat of the previous year. Avery and Davidson paired to take the number three doubles as Foster, Wheaton, Campbell, and Davidson won in the singles. At Andover the following Saturday, Harty, Foster, and Campbell defeated their opponents and Harty teamed with Foster, and Wheaton with Campbell to win in the doubles and take the match. The season was closed by a four-man match with the Vermont freshmen, which the Little Green won with the loss of but one set.

Varsity Golf

THE 1936 golf season began with a disastrous southern trip, the first ever to be attempted by a Dartmouth golf team. On the road the team was successively defeated by Johns Hopkins, North Carolina, and Virginia, but finally downed Navy for its first victory.

Back home, the team defeated Boston College in spite of the fact that the individual scores were poor. At this point, with the opening of the league just one week away, Coach Keane decided to re-vamp his entire team. Dick Heneage and Doug Porter were placed at number one and two, respectively; Tom Von Tacky and Bob Heneage made up the second twosome, and Capt. Sykes and Fred Kneip played in the last two positions. The results of this new lineup were startling. Regarded as out of the running by the experts, Dartmouth decisively defeated Williams and then triumphed over Yale for the second time in history. The credit for the victory over Yale must be given to three men: Porter, Bob Heneage, and Tom Von Tacky. Porter turned in a sensational round, playing the last 14 holes in four under par to defeat the Yale captain 4 and 3.

The following week-end the same team defeated Brown and Harvard to gain first place in the league. All that was needed to win the title was a victory over Holy Cross, but the Purple outplayed the Green, 7 to 2, deadlocking Yale and Dartmouth for the top position. In the playoff at Greenwich, Conn., Dartmouth lost to Yale, 9 to 0, in a contest which was much closer than the final score indicated, as practically all the matches went to the last green. Yale went on to win the national intercollegiate title. The record for the season was the best of any Dartmouth golf team since 1922, when Capt. "Red" Boyd won the national intercollegiate golf title.

AFTER THE 72-hole qualifying round, the yearlings appeared to have potentially the best team in recent years. With Bobby Jacobson playing in the number one position, closely followed by Bun Cotton in the second position, Dave Lilly third, Endy Smith fourth, George Jacob fifth, and Dave Walsh sixth, they presented a well-balanced squad.

In their first match, against St. Paul's, the first four members of the team lived up to expectation by defeating the Concord school by the one-sided score of 5-1, Endy Smith dropping the only point in a dull match on a wind-swept course.

In their match against Clark School the next week the team suffered a defeat due mostly to a streak of over-confidence. Bun Cotton won the only point in a 5-1 defeat.

After a long talk by Coach Keane and a reorganization of the positions, the squad journeyed to Taft School. Still smarting under the Clark defeat, the first-year men made short work of the Taft players. Led by George Jacob's 74, they snowed their opponents under by a score of 8-1.

The next day at Hartford, the team administered the first defeat in twenty-one starts to the New Britain High School, the Connecticut State champions. Paced by Bobby Jacobson's brilliant 70, the team reached its peak in a closely fought match, not decided until Dave Lilly sank a twenty-foot put on the home green.

From New Britain, the team traveled to New Haven to engage the Yale freshmen in the last match of the season. Playing on the treacherous Yale course, with its large, slippery greens, the freshmen were edged out by the close score of 5½ to 3½ in a well-played match which might easily have ended in Dartmouth's favor had the players been more familiar with the many blind shots demanded of them.

Varsity Lacrosse

A LACK of experienced material caused the weakness that was evident in lacrosse in 1936. Only four lettermen returned from the 1935 season, and Coach Tommy Dent was forced to build for the future rather than for the season at hand.

Although the southern trip was uniformly unsuccessful, the team broke into the win column with a victory over Colgate in the first northern game. After dropping one to Union, the league season opened auspiciously with a 5-4 overtime win over Williams, with Bob Reeve scoring the deciding goal.

Two days later the Indians went down before a New Hampshire team which scored heavily in the first and fourth quarters. Then came two rather easy games as Dartmouth took over Brown, 8-3, and Tech, 11-1, the latter being played in a pouring rain. Yale won handily the following week, for although at halftime the score was tied, six second-half goals provided a good margin of victory. After losing lopsidedly to Springfield, the Green finished the season with a close one, losing to Harvard only after an overtime period, the final score being 9-7.

Freshman Lacrosse

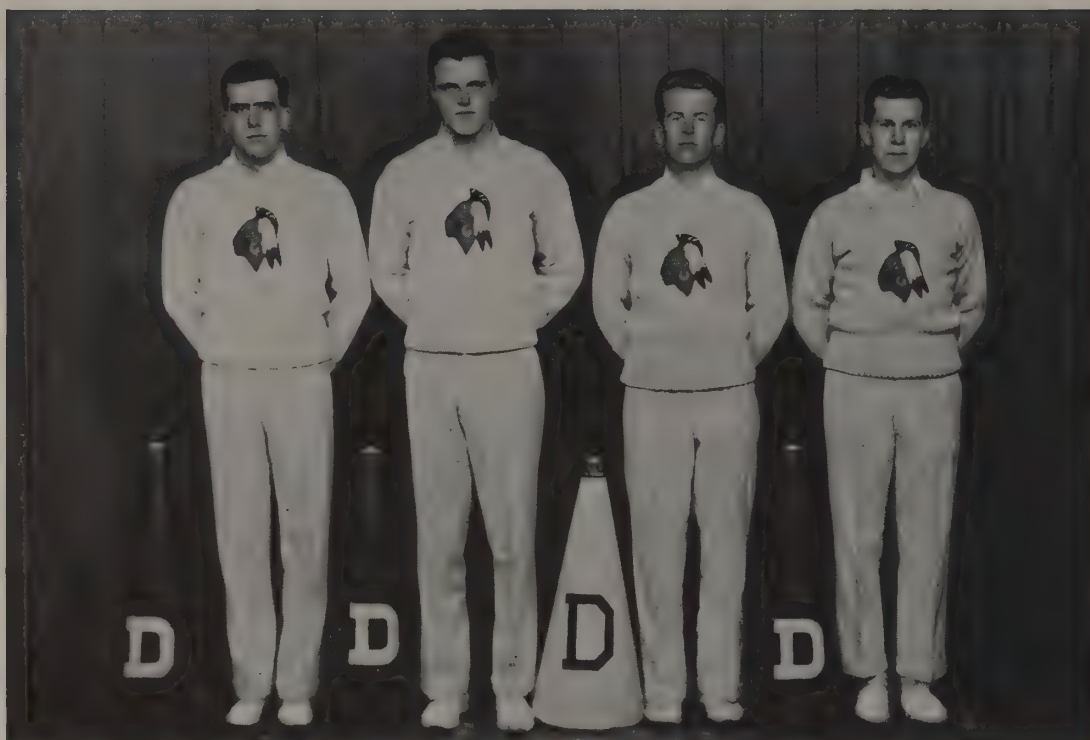

DURING 1936 the freshman team defeated four strong opponents to become Dartmouth's first undefeated freshman lacrosse team, scoring 38 goals to the opponents 26, to win the mythical New England championship of freshman and prep schools by virtue of comparative scores.

This was largely due to excellent teamwork in working plays, clearing the ball out and passwork, and the brilliant performance of the attack consisting of Capt. Moreau Brown, Junie Merriam, and Howie Chivers. Also outstanding were Henry Hastings, goal, and Red Fuller, who handled the job of calling the plays. Bob Catherine, Bill Parkhill and "Boots" Hoskinson showed a steady improvement throughout the season.

Much credit is due to Jim Boeckel who coached the team into a smooth-running aggregation with a system of well-conceived plays.

Traveling to Deerfield, the team ended its successful season by nosing out its traditional rival, 10-9. Playing against his former teammates, Junie Merriam led the attack which saw Dartmouth come from the wrong end of a 7-2 score at the half to win by scoring 8 goals while holding Deerfield to 2.

Capt. Brown led the scoring with 18 counters for the season. Merriam followed with 9, Fuller 4, Catherine 3, Chivers, who accurately "fed" the ball in scoring plays, 2, and Skeels and Parkhill one each.

Fraternity Sports

By RICHARD G. BRIERLEY '36

FRATERNITY INTRAMURALS have enjoyed progressive improvement during the current year. New sports have been added to an already large program, new ideas have been developed to increase interest in the old schedule, and increasing interest has been evident on all sides. The Department seems to have taken a few more steps toward its ultimate goal of best fulfilling the college need for informal sport on a regulated basis.

Early in November the Intramural Department announced that two new sports would be added to the fraternity schedule. Interest in boxing and wrestling had developed to the point where the Department felt a definite need for the addition of these sports. With the continued cooperation of Coach Bill Hoffmann and Bob Lewis, organization went forward, and daily conditioning periods were provided for fraternity men who were interested in using the college equipment. The first turnout presaged success, and the actual tournaments were scheduled for the middle of December—the entries exceeding the one-hundred mark and including nine former college champions.

When the final bouts were checked over, it was found that two former titleholders had met with upsets while the rest of the favorites came through as expected. Les McMillen '39, Psi U, replaced Warren Crumbine '37, Phi Psi, in the 155-pound wrestling by virtue of a time advantage of 1.29. And Charles O'Connor '38 came back to revenge his defeat of last year in the 135-pound boxing by defeating Paul Thorpe '38, S. F. E. Larry Hull '38, DKE, held on to his crown by pinning Hank Scheuler '39, Sigma Chi, in the finals of the unlimited wrestling, while Jack Richter '37, Phi Delt, became the heavyweight champion of boxing by a decisive victory over Bob McConeghy '38, S. A. E.

In the other bouts, Bud Little '39, Beta, lost his wrestling match in the 125-pound class to Dick Wallace '39, Chi Phi, by a time advantage of 3:25; Orville Haverfield '39, Phi Gam, defeated Tom Burrell '39, Sigma Chi, in the 135-pound class on a fall in 1:50; Bryan Abbott '39, Kappa Sig, threw Dan Hull '39, S. F. E., with a headlock in 1:54; Don Boyle '38, DKE, two-year holder of the 155-pound title took a decision over Buzz Waters '39 in the 165-pound class; and in the 175-pound division Johnny Vaughn '39, Tri-Kap, threw Sam Johnson '37, Zeta Psi, in 3:2.

In the boxing events, Johnny Wood '39 retained his title in the 125-pound class at the expense of Rod Allbright '39, Phi Delt; Bruce Gillie '39, S. A. E., was awarded a decision over Jerry Hochberg '38, Pi Lamb, in the 145-pound class; Whitey Isbrandtsen '39, Phi Sig, scored a technical knockout over Ralph Johnson '38, Delt, in the first round; Dick Morse '38, Beta, the new boxing coach, kept his title in the 165-pound division by virtue of a decision over Charlie Mann '38, Sigma Nu; and in the 175-pound class Gus Zitrides '39, Psi U, remained the champion by defeating Bob Emlen '38, Phi Psi, in the final match.

The final tally showed that Delta Kappa Epsilon had become the first Interfraternity Wrestling Champions, and that Beta Theta Pi had annexed the initial Boxing Cup for Intramural competitions. Phi Delta Theta was a strong second in the boxing and Psi Upsilon took second place in the wrestling.

The Intramural season for the year was ushered in, however, by the touch football games on the campus. The spotlight always focuses on touch football as the center of attention during the fall, and this year saw the defending champions, Phi Gamma Delta, go down to defeat and the crowning of Zeta Psi as the new Fraternity Football Champions. Phi Kappa Psi, Zeta Psi, Psi Upsilon, Sigma Chi, Pi Lambda Phi, and Phi Sigma Kappa won through to the playoffs in some of the most exciting of intramural battles, only to have the Zetas go through the whole field and beat the Phi Sigs in the final playoffs. Zeta Psi then went on to take the coveted College Championship by soundly defeating the dormitory champions, Middle Fayer, in the featured game of the touch football season.

With an eye to filling the void between football and basketball, the Department decided early in the season to advance the spring volley ball tournament to the fall. Sigma Chi was called upon to defend its championship from a field of imposing teams. Sporting virtually the same team that won last year, Sigma Chi again annexed the championship without the loss of a single game, defeating Delta Kappa Epsilon in the final game of the season. Sigma Chi seems determined to make the volley ball cup its permanent possession.

The winter season threw the Intramural spotlight on hockey and basketball. Despite the unseasonal and uncertain ice conditions, the hockey season progressed well and found Sigma Chi, Phi Gamma Delta, Phi Sigma Kappa, Beta Theta Pi, and Sigma Phi Epsilon in the final playoffs by virtue of consistent wins in each of their leagues. In the first two playoff games, Sigma Chi won easily from Sigma Phi Epsilon, while Phi Gamma Delta had a harder time with Psi Upsilon. Sigma Chi, the defending champions, seemed well on their way to the final round when they met Beta Theta Pi in what proved to be the most evenly matched game of the year. It required two games to determine the winner, the first game ending in a 1-1 tie after an hour of play, and the second game going to the Betas by virtue of a lone tally in the initial period of the game. The Phi Gams, however, after disposing of the Phi Sigs in convincing style, flashed too much style in the final game and defeated the Betas in an exciting exhibition of hockey.

In selecting an All-Fraternity Hockey team this year, the Department set another new precedent which bids fair to become permanent policy for the future. A committee composed of Coach Tommy Keane, Manager Dick Brierley, and Referees Hallett and Ossen, made final selections for the first two teams, and gave a vote to Les Chase '39 for the mythical captaincy of the all-star team. Members of the first All-Fraternity team were: Wings, Les Chase '39, Phi Gamma Delta, and Bob Wing '39, Phi Gamma Delta; Center, Art Ruggles '37, Psi Upsilon; Defense, Charlie Goodrich '39, Delta Kappa Epsilon, and Mouse Hallett '38, Sigma Chi; Goal, Ev Woodman '39, Sigma Chi. The members of the second All-Fraternity team were: Wings, Fred Mayo '37, Beta Theta Pi, and Crawford Ferguson '37, Zeta Psi; Center, John Litchfield '39, Phi Gamma Delta; Defense, Jim McGovern '38, Phi Gamma Delta, and Bob Bott '38, Sigma Nu; Goal, Jack Haley '39, Beta Theta Pi.

Competition in the fraternity basketball was so keen in the early games, that three of the leagues wound up in triple ties which had to be played off to determine the finalists. Sigma Alpha Epsilon ran up some impressive scores in the openers and looked like the eventual winner. They were joined in the playoffs by Sigma Chi, Zeta Psi, Pi Lambda Phi, Phi Kappa Psi, and Psi Upsilon. The rest of the games were a series of upsets. The Zetes upset the powerful S. A. E. team in the semi-finals, while Sigma Chi defeated the defending champions, Psi Upsilon, in the other semi-final game. Psi Upsilon has held the cup for two years running and their defeat came as a real surprise. The Zetes then went on to add to their collection of cups for the year by defeating Sigma Chi in the finals.

In line with its new policy, the Department also announced an All-Fraternity Basketball Team, and the following men were on the final team selected: Forwards, Bob Kaiser '39, Psi Upsilon, and Bill McMurtrie '38, Phi Kappa Psi; Center, Bob Loughry '39, Zeta Psi; Guards, Bob Gibson '39, Psi Upsilon, and Latta McCray '37, Delta Kappa Epsilon.

Due to the continued unsatisfactory weather conditions, the annual fraternity winter sports carnival had to be cancelled, but the skating races were run off on Occom Pond. Sigma Chi sprang the surprise of the races by winning both the dash and the relay to take the skating cup home with no questions asked. Mouse Hallett '38 came in with a strong finish in the dash to place first, while the relay team composed of Hallett, Frick, and Tower, paced the field to clinch the cup for Sigma Chi.

And so at this writing, with football, boxing, wrestling, basketball, hockey, volleyball, and skating all completed for the current year, the standings find Sigma Chi in fine position to repeat last year's impressive point total in winning the all-year cup which signifies Intramural supremacy for the year. Sigma Chi now stands with 129.6 points, with Phi Sigma Kappa second with 104.5, and Beta Theta Pi a close third with 100.1 points. With the spring schedule coming up, competition for the all-year cup looks more than interesting.

The extra-mural meet with Harvard, which has become an annual part of the schedule, had to be called off for lack of a suitable date on which both colleges could compete. Harvard has unfortunately disbanded its intramural boxing and wrestling, which takes much of the spice out of the annual meet. The Department is looking forward, however, to resuming such relations in the coming years. Perhaps future years will find even greater emphasis on extra-mural meets with New England colleges.

And now with ping-pong, squash, handball, swimming, track, tennis, and baseball still on the schedules, the Department is looking forward to its most successful season in its nine years of active organization. The Department is proving flexible in meeting the college needs, and is looking forward to greater and greater success in a very active and progressive field.

Dormitory Sports

By GEORGE R. GIBSON, JR. '37

THIS year the intramural department has continued its program of interdormitory competition with increased success. Although this program does not attract quite as much attention as the interfraternity schedule, it has proved to be a valuable asset in stimulating athletics. Some of the activities of this program have met with much more interest than others, but, on the whole, dormitory competition has been enthusiastically carried out. The department has made definite advances and has widened its scope to include activities such as squash, volleyball, and wrestling on a more organized basis than has previously been attempted. These competitions have been especially appreciated by freshmen and non-fraternity men who by necessity are kept out of the interfraternity leagues. In the three most popular events the dormitory winners have played off against the fraternity leaders, and these contests have in every case produced close and hard-fought contests.

On September 28, 1936, the ninth annual year of dormitory intramurals opened on the South Campus, with Crosby topping New Hampshire in touch football, 6-0.

Progressing rather slowly through the round-robin games in the five leagues, the teams entered the quarter finals in the second week in October. Middle Mass won from Gile in the opening game, 18-12, with Joe Hoover '39, H. Skeels '39, and Heath '38, all of Mass, scoring on passes. For Gile Al Tishman '39 aided in his team's scoring by his powerful throwing arm.

Trophy Room

In the next game of the final series Middle Fayer won the right to enter the semi-finals by winning over Woodward, 12-6. Middle Fayer then went on to win the right to meet Middle Mass by defeating Crosby 14-8. Hine, Miller, and Hoskinson of Middle Fayer were the stars of the game.

On October 27, Middle Fayer and Middle Mass met on the West Campus to decide the dormitory touch football champions of the college. In a rather slow game in which neither team showed to its best advantage, Middle Fayerweather managed to overcome Middle Mass. Starring for the winners were Bob Hallock '38, "Boots" Hoskinson '39, and Tom Hine '39. For Middle Mass Hoover and Skeels did their best to stem the Fayerweather tide.

The right to the name of the College Championship Touch Football Team was decided on the afternoon of November 10, when Middle Fayer met Zeta Psi, the fraternity champions. The first period of the game saw little action, and it was not until the second quarter that the Zetes began to pick up their points. The opening score followed a kick and a pass, which Sam Johnson '37 intercepted to race through the whole Fayer team for the first six points. The Zetes followed this first score with another in short order. The kick-off was fumbled by the Fayer team and recovered by the Zetes. Irv Stronach '38 made a long pass to Hobey Rockwell '38, who ran the ball across the line to close the half with the Zetes leading 12-0.

The final score of the game came in the third period when Rockwell scored a safety on Ed Cummings '39 behind the goal line. Long passes from Cummings to Hine and Hoskinson featured the remainder of the third and the whole of the fourth periods, but Middle Fayerweather could not score. Twice these long passes failed to score when they were dropped over the goal line, and the game ended with Zeta Psi holding the long end of the 14-0 score.

On December 7, the dormitory basketball season opened with New Hampshire winning easily from Crosby 18-7. Due to an unusual number of conflicts with recreational gym classes and with hour exams, and due also to triple ties in two of the leagues, the play-off stage was not reached until the second week of the second semester. Hitchcock, New Hampshire, Woodward, Gile, Middle Fayerweather, and the New Hampshire "A" team of the newly instituted "A" team league were the teams winning the right to participate in the play-offs by virtue of their conquests in their respective leagues.

In the opening games of the play-offs the New Hampshire team managed to win over the Woodward team, holding them to the short end of the 25-11 score; and Gile managed to defeat Middle Fayer 30-6. In the semi-final games the New Hamp. quintet repeated its win over Woodward and also defeated Hitchcock 22-12, while Gile won from the New Hampshire "A" team to the tune of 24-12. For New Hampshire, Fred Michael '40, Al Hessler '39, and Mayer Abrahamson '39 were outstanding in maintaining their ten-point lead throughout the game.

The finals of the dorm basketball leagues were played on March 1, with Gile and New Hamp displaying some of the best team-work of the entire season, despite the size of the score against New Hamp. Led by Captain Larry Gotfredson '38, the Gile team jumped into the lead after a slow start, and with Jack Carlson '40 setting the pace with eleven points, managed to hold their lead throughout the game. Jim Weaver '40 and Jack Weiner '40 aided Gile by their fine shooting and passing. For New Hamp, Abrahamson, Michael, and Jack Cooper '40 played well in attempting to stop the flood of Gile baskets, and the final score of 23-8 does not give adequate credit to the losing team.

On March 2, the Gile team repeated the coup that the Russell Sage team made when they beat the fraternity champions in the College Basketball Championship game of 1936. Gotfredson, Carlson, Weiner, and Weaver again showed their abilities when they defeated the much touted Zeta Psi team 24-10. Starting with a rush the Dorm team blinded the Zetes with a flurry of shots to go into the lead at the half, 12-4. Playing their best game of the season the Gile team combined excellent combination play and good passing for their victory. The tall dormitory men were quick to take advantage of their greater height. Close guarding also featured their play, and the Zetes were forced to attempt long shots from the middle of the floor.

Weiner, with ten points, was the high scorer of the evening, with Carlson at right forward accounting for seven more. Jim Weaver aided the cause with four points. For the Zeta Psi team Marsh Land '38 and Don Bridge '39 were the high scorers, with four points apiece.

In the dormitory hockey games, played on Ocom Pond, many complications caused the department and the respective teams no end of trouble. Lack of good ice throughout January and the early part of February caused innumerable delays and re-scheduling of games. Many forfeits also marred the schedule, and in the end the whole of the South Park League was declared ineligible for participation in the play-offs. New Hampshire, Fayerweather, Streeter, and Massachusetts alone earned the right to compete for the championship.

The opening game of the series found Middle Mass beating Streeter 1-0. On the following day Middle Fayer also managed to enter the finals by defeating New Hampshire by a low score in a well-fought game. The title was eventually awarded to Middle Massachusetts.

Following the success that the department had in the running of the interfraternity boxing and wrestling tournaments it was decided to attempt the same in the dormitory division. Under the direction of Bill Hoffman and Dick Morse '38, wrestling and boxing mentors respectively, instruction was given daily to all entrants. In the middle of February the opening bouts were run off and on February 19 the finals were held in the boxing and wrestling room in the gym.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

FOR A GROUP OF UNDERGRADUATES TO PUBLISH a book such as the AEGIS there is required the utmost in cooperation, not only from the board members themselves but also from those persons and organizations whose assistance has been necessary for the fulfillment of our purpose. With this in mind, the 1937 AEGIS board wishes publicly to extend its thanks to those who cooperated in many different ways, and more particularly to:

The College administration for its general direction and assistance in both editorial and business matters.

Those athletic managers and representatives of organizations who have contributed to the editorial content of this volume.

Whitey Fuller, Pat O'Sheel, Lynn Brown, Pete Cardozo, Harold Richmond, Ike Collins, Dick Brierley, George Gibson, and John Kelleher for their longer articles.

Professor Ballard, Ralph Brown, Paul Jones, Roger Graves, Phil Jacob, LIFE magazine, and all others who have contributed to the photographic contents.

The heelers for their indispensable aid in compiling records and getting subscriptions and in many ways making themselves useful.

The Athletic Council and Norman Stevenson for their aid in preparing the athletic section.

And on the professional side, the AEGIS board gives more than thanks to:

Vrest Orton for his designing of this volume and for his general interest and enthusiasm in producing a year-book that would be both typical and worthy of the College.

Samuel Safier for the excellent work and conscientious service given as official photographer of this volume.

The Vermont Printing Company for its intelligent and cooperative handling of all printing problems.

Cheshire Photo-Engravers, Inc., of Keene, N. H., for their quality work in the manufacture of engravings for this volume.

The Boston Bookbinding Company for producing the striking cover of this year's AEGIS.

The Meriden Gravure Company, of Meriden, Conn., for reproducing the Dartmouth views section.

NEW YORK

HANOVER, N. H.

Commencement . . .

. . . marks the beginning of a new era—for the Cafeteria as well as for the Seniors.

With the graduation of the Class of 1937 the "Cafe" also graduates . . . and so it is with a particularly friendly feeling that we invite you men of 1937 to visit us . . . when you return as alumni . . . in our new quarters in the Thayer Dining Hall for undergraduates . . . and to revive the friendships of your Undergraduate Days.

FAREWELL—

BUT ONLY FOR THE PRESENT

We say goodbye for now—Men of 1937—and wish you well in your life ahead.

However, we look forward to seeing you often in the years to come.

Since 1891 returning alumni have made the Inn their headquarters—their Hanover home.

Remember always—

OPEN HOUSE IN NEW ENGLAND

By Samuel Chamberlain

192 Pages :: 217 Photographs :: Complete Information

Here is a book that is both practical and beautiful. Every one of the 185 old New England houses pictured in the book is open to the public. The photographs are by one of the outstanding photographers in the country. And the data assembled with the help of the New England Council gives complete information about the architecture, history, location, and exhibits of each house.

"No more tempting book about New England has ever been compiled."

—CARL VAN DOREN.
